For lawns without an in-ground sprinkler system, the hose is the critical watering tool. When purchasing a hose remember one important-bigger is not necessarily better. In terms of hose diameter, a wide 3/4-inch contractor hose will minimize the water pressure. Experts recommend the smallest possible diameter for the maximum pressure. Similarly, a 100-foot long hose will minimize pressure and be bulky to carry and store. In most cases, 50-foot hoses are more cost and time efficient.

Hose material is also a consideration. Since summer nights can be cold in the Northeast, rubber hoses are often preferred since plastic hoses become stiff in the cold. Look for recently introduced yellow hoses to ensure the water is safe for drinking.

For a slow and steady watering system, consider irrigation sprinklers, which create a gentle spray or soaker hoses with are popular for flower beds. A drip irrigation system offers more control and precision via a web of hoses that run through a garden. The system provides a steady drip of water through a series of small nozzles, also called emitters, that are inserted in the lines.

Drip irrigation is a good alternative to a sprinkler system if you live in a place where water is at a premium since you control exactly where the water goes. Installation of a drip irrigation system requires basic plumbing skills and will take an intermediate do-it-yourselfer approximately 2 hours. Sprinklers Give Shower Power

Above ground sprinkler products generally fall into three categories—hand-held, impulse or oscillator. There are dozens of variations within each category based on budget and features de-

ENC Students Help Clean Debris Along Furnace Brook

Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) students from the Introduction to Environmental Science Class taught by Professor Jonathan Twining have been studying the Furnace Brook watershed since February.

Along the way they noted the unsightly trash that littered the banks of the brook in many locations. They decided to do something about it as a way to show that ENC cares about the community.

As part of their recent annual Environmental Awareness Day activities 16 students and faculty members joined forces to pick up garbage along the shores of Sailor's Home Pond, Furnace Brook, and Black's Creek. The Quincy Public Works Department provided gloves and trash bag, as well as trash disposal, for the event.

At the end of the day approximately 20 trash bags were collected by the cleanup team. Five shopping carts and several large pieces of debris were also removed from the stream bed. Some oily leaves were found by students in one section of the brook, and this has been reported to the Conservation Commission and Fire Department.

Despite their efforts, the cleanup team noted that they had hardly made a dent in the work which needs to be done. There is still much trash to be removed from Furnace Brook and Black's Creek.

"These bodies of water

are just two of the many natural resources in the Quincy community", Twining said. "Besides their aesthetic value, they serve as breeding and nursery areas for fish and shellfish, and they have great educational value to the Quincy area schools and colleges".

As a community we must take better care of these areas by not using them as a dumping ground for our trash and chemicals".

Conway Golf Tournament To Benefit Homeless Shelter

The 15th annual golf tournament sponsored by Jack Conway & Company Realtors to benefit Brockton's MainSpring house homeless shelter, will be held Thursday, June 10 at the Easton Country Club.

Since 1985, the Conway tournament has raised more than $125,000 to help defray operating costs at the shelter.

Tournament contributors this year may sponsor a tee or a green for $125, a cart for $50 or contribute raffle prizes said Denis Lilla, vice president of sales for Jack Conway & Company.

"We look forward to this event every year," said Lilla, the tournament organizer. "We are proud to be the corporate sponsor of this event, which benefits so many people. Our goal this year is to raise more than $10,000 for MainSpring House."

Founded in 1982, MainSpring House is operated by the Brockton Coalition for the Homeless (BCH) and provides shelter, food, clothing and services such as adult education courses, case management and referrals to individuals and families in need. The Conway House, BCH's facility for homeless families in Middleboro, was named in honor of Jack and Patti Conway to recognize their support of the organization.

Registration for the MainSpring House Charity Open begins at 7:30 a.m. and play opens at 8:15 a.m. with a shotgun start. To participate, sponsor a green, tee, or cart, or to make a charitable donation, call Denis Lilla, (781) 871-0080.

Norwell-based Jack Conway and company is the largest independently owned real estate company in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents in 36 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

sired. For example, handheld sprinklers today can feature switches to vary the spray options, such as mists for delicate flowers and steady streams for watering hearty tree bases.

Impulse sprinklers can cover a large area by linking hoses to the impulse sprayers. Spikes hold the mechanism in the soil and the spray stays closer to the ground than an oscillator. They heads typically allow for portions of an area to be locked off from spray (such as a driveway). Experts suggest metal impulse sprinklers since plastic can become brittle in the Northeast.

Oscillating sprinklers today include many features for controlling area watered and the flow. Some include a built-in timer. Oscillating sprinklers sometimes require more adjusting than impulse sprinklers to ensure even coverage of the lawn. A new product, however, called the "rain train" or traveling sprinkler ($60) allows you to create a pattern on the area that should be covered. The sprinkler moves along the pattern and shuts off at the end. Oscillating sprinklers typically have the added benefit of being a source for children's entertainment during hot summer days.

Today, there are plenty of inexpensive but invaluable watering gadgets, such as the $4 "quick disconnect" which eliminates the awkward twisting involved in connecting a hose to a faucet.

Most watering products are designed to save time and conserve water. For less than $20, a homeowner can purchase the necessary products to satisfy a lawn's summer thirst. Experts, like the Home Depot's Brian Worcester, contend, however, that the most time, cost and water-efficient method of watering is an in-ground sprinkler system installed along with your new lawn.

'Getting The Home You Want' Architectural Seminar June 5

The Boston Society of Architects will present a free seminar titled "Getting the Home You Really Want" on Saturday, June 5 from 10 a.m. to noon at Citizens Bank, 1200 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Friendly Visitor Program Helps Those Feeling Alone

The Quincy Council on Aging has a Friendly Visitor Program for those who may need someone to talk with and to reassure them that they are not alone.

Those with no relatives or friends nearby are invited to take part in the program.

Quincy Council on Aging volunteers call and visit with participants whenever they can. The program helps them to continue living alone in their home.

To participate, call the Council on Aging office at 376-1508 and speak with the Friendly Visitor program coordinator.

Labor Leader To Receive Quincy College Achievement Award

Quincy College and its Sullivan Center for Employee Relations will honor Joseph C. Faherty, past president of the Massachusetts AFL-CIO with its second annual Lifetime Achievement Award.

Faherty will receive the award at a reception Thursday, June 17 at 6:30 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Sheraton Tara in Braintree.

Faherty will be recognized for his "distinguished contributions to labor and to the process of social justice."

Proceeds from the event will go to establish a scholarship in his name at Quincy College.

For more information about this year's presentation, contact Paul F. White at the Sullivan Center for Employee Relations, 617-984-1747.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Preventing, Treating High Blood Pressure

High blood pressure occurs when your heart pumps blood through your arteries with too much force.

This puts a great deal on strain on your circulatory systems, which can, over time, lead to coronary heart disease and stroke. It can also contribute significantly to kidney disease.

High blood pressure (or hypertension) is also known as the silent killer, because most people with high blood pressure don't feel any different than they did when their blood pressure was normal.

In fact, according to the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, fully one third of Americans who have hypertension don't even know it.

The physicians of the Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital Network want to raise awareness of the need to prevent and treat high blood pressure. In observance of National High Blood Pressure Education Month this May, people are encouraged to find out their blood pressures and to take the necessary doctor-recommended steps to keep blood pressure under control.

- Have your physician or health care professional check your blood pressure at least annually, especially if a family member has suffered from hypertension.

- If you have hypertension, ask your doctor if weight loss and exercise will help.

- Quit smoking. People who have high blood pressure and who also smoke have a higher risk of developing complications.

- Restrict your sodium intake. This can mean giving up sodium rich foods, not cooking with salt, and not adding salt to your food when you sit down for dinner.

- Limit alcohol intake to no more than one to two drinks daily. Drinking alcohol can increase blood pressure and can interact with blood pressure medications.

- Exercise regularly. As little as 30 to 45 minutes a day of exercise can help maintain a normal level of blood pressure.

- The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute recommends that you maintain adequate potassium intake and adequate intakes of calcium and magnesium for general health. Your doctor can talk to you about what constitutes "adequate intake" for you.

- Try to minimize stress in your life. Set aside some time each day for yourself when you can read, meditate or take a hot bath.

- Finally, if lifestyle modifications do not result in adequately lowering your blood pressure, your physician will want to add pharmacological therapy. There are many diuretics or beta-blockers available with a prescription that can maintain your pressure within normal limits with minimal side effects.

Senior Olympic Games Underway

Ninety-six year-old Olympian George Conway and Mayor James lit the Senior Olympics torch symbolizing the opening of the 17th annual Senior Games Monday night.

Quincy's Senior Olympics began with a golf competition at Presidents' Golf Course followed by a 6 p.m. one-mile walk at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. The opening ceremony was held at Merrymount Park.

Mary Gougian, Beechwood's Elder Services director, opened the event by welcoming Olympians and spectators.

Lead sponsors, Hospital and Bay State Community Services, were introduced. They were represented by Renee Buisson, vice president of Public Relations at Quincy Hospital, and Ken Tarabelli of Bay State Community Services. Support sponsors Quincy Rotary, River Bay Club and Marina Place were also identified.

"Since 1982, the Olympics has been a joint effort between Beechwood and the City of Quincy," said Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals. "This ever expanding week-long event celebrates senior fitness and is produced solely through fundraising efforts."

At the opening ceremony, Beechwood was represented by Board members Bill McDonald and Caryn Smith. The Quincy Parks and Recreation Board was represented by Board member Ted DeCristofaro. John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, competed in the one-mile walk before the opening ceremony.

Special guest Dr. Wayne Wescott and Sheets lauded the fitness demonstrated by participating seniors. Wescott praised George Conway and other seniors known to him as participants in his fitness training and research at the YMCA. He congratulated Quincy's Senior Olympians and voiced his pride in their demonstrated fitness.

Sheets gave accolades to the Olympians, particularly acknowledging George Conway and others who compete in their 70's, 80's, 90's and beyond. "You are role models for us all. We are proud of your accomplishments. Senior fitness is a top priority in Quincy."

Following the opening ceremony, the mayor threw out the ceremonial first ball to start the softball competition between the seniors and Quincy women's all-stars. Final score was 9-3, with the women's team victorious this year.

The remaining schedule:

- Tuesday: bowling at Olindy's.
 - Wednesday: billiards and darts at Shooter's Club and swimming at Lincoln-Hancock School.
 - Thursday: bocce at Torre dei Passerie Club; swimming at Lincoln-Hancock School.
 - Friday: 3-mile walk and rotation events at Beechwood on the Bay.
 - Saturday: track and field at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.
 - Monday: celebrity/senior volleyball game at Beechwood.
 - Tuesday: awards ceremony at Beechwood, 6 p.m.
- Next Monday, the Seniors versus Celebrities volleyball game will be played at 11 a.m. and spectators are invited.

Adds Up To $11,200 Substitute Runner Raises $3,500 For Sara Chung And Children's Hospital

By TOM HENSHAW

For a while, it looked like 10-year-old Sara Jane's heroine wasn't going to make it.

On the eve of the Boston Marathon, Cecily Conway of West Yarmouth, who planned to run as part of the Children's Hospital Marathon team, specifically to raise money for Sara Jane Chung, was diagnosed with lymphatic cancer.

Sara is an ongoing patient at Children's Hospital, where she is being treated for a severe, complex case of bilateral congenital dislocated hip. She has undergone surgery six times and has spent several months in a body cast.

Luckily, Sara's mother, Cynthia Chung, attended a pre-marathon reception at the Colonnade Hotel in Boston for the Children's Hospital team and, lo and behold, there was Laura Liffand of New York, looking for someone to run for.

The match was perfect. Liffand ran the marathon — never mind her time — and raised $3,500 for Sara. Cynthia Chung raised

SARAH JANE CHUNG

$2,100 more and the total ($5,600) was doubled by corporate sponsors, Oechfle International Advisors and United Air Line, so Sara's cause was richer by $11,200.

A mile and a half from the finish line, the runner stopped and gave Sara a big hug and the Chungs had dinner with her and other runners after the race.

The marathon team raises money through pledges for the hospital's general fund but individual runners can run for specific patients. Sara's part of the proceeds will go to her physician, Dr. Michael B. Millis, who is researching cures for hip problems.

Since June 1995, the little girl has had six reconstructive hip surgeries and will continue to require surgery until she stops growing. Then, according to Dr. Millis, she will require a hip replacement.

In all other respects, Sara is a normal fifth grader at the Merrymount School, preparing to advance into the sixth grade at Central Middle School. She is enrolled in a program for gifted students which meets once a week at the Montclair School.

She also plays classical piano, flute and drums and is in the All Star Elementary School Band.

For those who would like to support Sara Jane, a tax-deductible donation of any amount may be made payable to Children's Hospital and sent to Cynthia Chung, 134 Samoset Ave., Quincy, 02169. For additional information, call Kelleen McGee at Children's Hospital, (617) 355-8868.

Meanwhile, Sara is preparing for a seventh hip operation in December.

Also on the inspection tour were architect Harold Goyette, public works commissioner David Colton and clerk-of-the-works Paul Hemphill.

Several changes are visible, including the construction of a handicapped accessible ramp at the front entrance on Lancaster Street and two other ramps with access from Edwards Street. Two old fire escapes have been removed, and new interior staircases are under construction, as is the shaft for a new elevator. The doors which once opened onto the fire escape will be turned into windows.

The major interior work, once completed, will not be visible to the students and staff — such as the new air conditioning and gas-fired heating system, the hundreds of feet of fiber optics and CAT-5 computer wiring and the new plumbing.

In addition to a new technology/media center on the ground floor where the industrial arts classes were previously located, each classroom will be wired for six computers, five for the students and one for the teacher, said Hemphill.

The ground floor also includes a remodeled cafeteria and kitchen, a consumer education (home economics) area, a music rehearsal area, another room for instrument instruction, plus a teachers' planning room and dining area.

The first floor has been reconfigured, moving the administration offices to the front of the building on Lancaster Street for security reasons and for the convenience of parents. The former offices will be turned into classrooms.

Many of the architectural details from the vintage buildings — the Daniel Webster was built in 1916 and the adjacent junior high in 1933 — will be preserved, said Goyette whose firm of Cole and Goyette Inc. of Cambridge, designed the Clifford Marshall School and was in charge of the renovations at the Parker and Beechwood schools. The firm presently is designing the new Quincy high school.

"We're saving all the good old slate chalkboards," said Goyette. "These are better than anything you can buy." He said the slate will be refinished to make them good as new.

In addition, many of the oversized thick wooden doors will be preserved as well. "You can't buy these either. Well, you could have them 'specially ordered, but it would cost a lot of money," said Goyette.

Money always is a consideration. When asked why not blast the paint from the brick walls on the ground floor instead of painting, Goyette rubbed his left thumb and forefingers together. "Big bucks," he said.

One of the most dramatic changes will be in the former media center on the second floor. Originally built as an auditorium, it will be restored, said Goyette. The ceiling tiles have been removed, and the tall half-round windows will be replaced entirely with glass to draw in more light. The electrical fixtures, he said, will be pendant lighting, more elegant, and a new stage curtain will be hung.

Goyette said many of the other windows throughout the building are newer and are made of insulated glass; those will be reglazed. Any windows made of Plexiglas will be replaced, he said.

The art room on the second floor will remain the art room, and the fireplace with its plaster ornamentation and wooden mantel will be preserved, he said.

The 4,800-square-foot gymnasium will have new showers and dressing rooms for both boys and girls, new storage rooms and offices for the physical education instructors. A balcony in the gymnasium has been removed and will be replaced with a scoreboard, said Goyette.

"We're working from the top down," said Hemphill, pointing to the classrooms which already feature new drywall and a fresh coat of primer.

"We took down the walls of the three science rooms and put up a new wall, to make two large science rooms" for a lecture hall and a laboratory, said Hemphill. "We also took out the coat rooms. No one uses coat rooms any more." Instead, more hallway lockers will be added, although the general contractor, Boston Buildings and Bridge Co., has been able to save about 80 percent of the existing lockers, which will be refurbished.

The classrooms will include new acoustical ceilings, new flooring and carpeting where needed, Hemphill continued. Most of the woodwork, including the built-in cabinets with drawers and others with glass doors and the decorative wood railings in the corridors, will be reconditioned. In other areas, new cabinets will be installed, he said.

Even though Point Webster won't open until the fall, Principal McGuire is keeping busy developing the curriculum and ordering books and supplies.

Staffing for the school is not yet in place, which is due in part to the lack of a teacher contract, he said. And, he is working out the geographical boundaries for the new school.

Last winter school superintendent Eugene Creedon said the new school will be large enough to accommodate 600 students, although the maximum number from Quincy Point will be about 300. For the past several years, Quincy Point sixth, seventh and eighth graders have been bussed to Sterling Middle School. Creedon added that in addition to the Quincy Point students, others from Atlantic and Central middle schools probably would be transferred to Point Webster.

Standing outside the building in the asphalt parking lot, the visitors lamented there is no money in the $7 million budget to resurface the entire area or to add green space to the area or create an outdoor basketball court.

"Something needs to be done," said public works commissioner Colton. They all agreed they would look for funds to ensure that the new school will have a fitting appearance.

INSIDE THE ART ROOM Mayor James Sheets, Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Rep. Ronald Mariano listen to architect Harold Goyette, right, about plans to preserve the old fireplace and plaster ornamentation.

EXPLORING HIS NEW OFFICE Point Webster Middle School Principal James McGuire likes what he sees.

LOOKING OVER THE AUDITORIUM, architect Harold Goyette, far right, explains to Rep. Ronald Mariano, Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Public Works Commissioner David Colton how the former media center will be restored to its former elegance.

Quincy Families Needed To Host Exchange Students

Foreign high school students are scheduled to arrive very soon for academic program homestays, and the sponsoring organization needs a few more local host families.

The agency also has travel/study program opportunities available for American high school students as well as possibilities for community volunteers to assist and work with area host families, students and schools.

According to P.I.E. Executive Director John Doty, the exchange students are between 15 and 18 years old, speak English, have their own spending money, carry accident and health insurance, and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families.

P.I.E. currently has programs to match almost every family's need, ranging in length from a semester to a full academic year, where the students attend local high schools.

Quincy area families interested in learning more about student exchange or arranging for a meeting with a community representative may call Pacific Intercultural Exchange (P.I.E.), toll-free, at 1-800-631-1818.

A funeral Mass for Sophie C. Stankevich of Quincy, a tax assessor for the state, was celebrated May 7 in St. John the Baptist Church, 44 School St.

Miss Stankevich died May 4 at Quincy Hospital after a long illness.

She worked as a tax assessor in the Corporation Tax Department for 20 years before retiring 14 years ago.

She was a licensed real estate broker and served in the National Guard for several years.

Born and educated in Cambridge, she had lived in Quincy for the past 18 years.

She attended classes at Harvard University.

Miss Stankevich is survived by a cousin, Carolyn Bentley of Las Vegas, and two long-time friends, Joan E. Russell of Quincy and Paul E. Russell of Dorchester. She was the daughter of the late John and Sophie (Rokicki) Stankevich.

Funeral arrangements were made by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Robert W. Bell, 50 Real Estate Agent

A funeral service for Robert W. Bell, 50, of Quincy, a real estate agent for 10 years, was held May 7 at St. Chrysostom's Church, 1 Linden St., Wollaston.

Mr. Bell died May 3 at home following a long illness.

He started his real estate career as owner of U.S.A. Realty, RE/Max Realty Pros. This past year, he formed a partnership with his daughter, Lisa Marie Bell, to create Bell Realty of Quincy.

He was formerly a bank officer in cash management and worked for State Street Bank and Bank of Boston.

He was a member of the executive board of the South Shore Realtors Association. He was a member of the Massachusetts Board of Realtors and the National Board of Realtors.

Mr. Bell was a vestry member of St. Chrysostom's Church in Quincy and a member of the Big Brother Organization.

Born in Boston, he was a graduate of Jamaica Plain High School. He was a 1975 graduate of Northeastern University in Boston.

He enjoyed travel, canoeing, boating and going to Disney World with his family.

He was an active booster for hockey, soccer and choir for North Quincy High School. He coached the Junior Farm League baseball team and the Koch girls softball team.

Mr. Bell was active with the Atlantic Middle School Parent Council and the Bernazzani School Parent Council.

In addition to his daughter, he is survived by his wife, Susan (Denzler) Bell; a son, Robby M. Bell of Quincy; two brothers, Alfred "Buddy" Bell of New Hampshire, and Norman Bell and Ronald Bell, both of Brookline; a sister, Jean Bean of Brookline; and a dear friend, Joanne Condon-Walsh.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Wollaston Chapel of the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to M.G.H. Melanoma Research, care of Development Office, 100 Charles River Plaza, Suite 600, Boston, MA 02114, attention: Dr. Frank Haluska.

A Thought For The Week

We all know that life is not an everlasting picnic in perfect weather. On the contrary, it is a matter of struggle, a mixture of triumph and failure, joy and sorrow. In our daily lives, we continuously face difficult decisions, trying circumstances and situations.

It may be hard for us at times to face these issues and realize that even the most strong and most favored persons in life have their share of burdens, too.

It takes courage to keep on going when circumstances conspire to thwart our hope and aspirations. Yet burdens born in the right spirit have a way of building character and making us strong and sufficient as we face the problems in life. Burdens can and often do teach us great lessons.

Nathaniel Hawthorne, who traveled a difficult road before he found the key to triumph, once said, "He must keep his faith in himself while the incredulous world assails him with its utter disbelief." ... That, we suspect, is where all of us have to begin when our hopes are thwarted. Faith in ourselves is one thing we never can afford to surrender. It is the key to courage to keep on going when we feel drained. When we cease to believe in ourselves and our God-given powers and possibilities, we are finished. It is the man who can go on believing in himself while the incredulous world assails him with its utter disbelief who comes thru undefeated.

John R. Herbert, 90

Retired Editor, Banker

John R. Herbert, 90, a retired Quincy banker and former editor of the Boston Herald and the Patriot Ledger, died Monday at his Spring Hill, Fla., home after a long illness.

Born in Boston, Mr. Herbert graduated from Boston University in 1931 and later received an honorary doctorates from his alma mater and from Suffolk University.

He began his journalism career at the Patriot Ledger and became managing editor at the Ledger in 1936 and was elevated to executive editor in 1952.

In 1967 he became editor of the Boston Herald, a post he held for seven years, during which time he served as executive editor of the Boston Herald Traveler from 1970 to 1972.

He was executive director of the Massachusetts Newspaper Publishers Association from 1973 to 1975, and in 1975 he was named chairman of the board and president of the Quincy Cooperative Bank and served in that capacity until he retired in 1983.

During his journalism career Mr. Herbert received numerous awards, including the Inter-American Press Association-Tom Wallace Individual Award in 1961 for "untiring efforts to promote greater assistance to Latin American publications...and establish a closer cooperation among newsmen in general from the United States, Canada and Latin America."

He served as a juror for the Pulitzer Prize Committee and had been president of the New England chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

During the 1960s he also worked closely with UNESCO in a program to explore the possibilities of developing mass media communications in Southeast Asia and Africa.

A longtime Squantum resident, Mr. Herbert had lived in Boston before moving to Spring Hill about 13 years ago and wrote occasionally for the local newspaper. He also wrote for the American Neptune magazine, published by the Peabody Essex Museum in Salem. Earlier he had served on the magazine's board of advisors.

Locally, he was a former member of the Boston Rotary Club and had served as president of the Quincy Rotary Club of which he was an honorary member. He had served as a director of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Quincy Historical Society and Pli-mouth Plantation and was a founding director of Quincy Junior College.

Mr. Herbert also had served as a trustee of Thayer Academy in Braintree from 1959 to 1973 and had belonged to the Neighborhood Club of Quincy and the Union Club of Boston.

He is survived by his wife, Margot (Uppling) Robinson Herbert; two sons, John A. Herbert of Spring Hill and Robert M. Herbert of New Hampshire, and three grandchildren, Timothy Herbert and Martha May Herbert, both of New Hampshire, and Kristina Liljeborg of Sweden, and five great-grandchildren.

He also is survived by a stepson, Andrew Robinson of Canton, and two stepdaughters, Kristina Hutchinson of Florida and Lydia Price of California.

His first wife, Elsa O. (Johnson) Herbert, whom he married in 1934, predeceased him in 1980. His brother, Charles R. Herbert, a former public works commissioner in Quincy, died in 1997.

Funeral services were to be conducted today (Thursday) at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Spring Hill. Burial will be in Florida Hills Memorial Gardens in Spring Hill.

CRITIC'S CORNER

COOKIE'S FORTUNE: A small town in Mississippi is the setting for his romp of a film. Patricia Neal plays Cookie, a grande dame of battle-axe proportions. When Cookie commits suicide, all hell breaks loose. Glenn Close portrays Cookie's niece. She's an anti-retentive, church-social harridan who is appalled by Cookie's death. She states firmly, "Nobody in this family commits suicide. Suicide is a disgrace." Toward that end, the niece sets about making the suicide look like a murder, which is an unfortunate turn of events for Cookie's best friend, ably played by Charles Dutton ("Roc").

As we learn, Cookie was quite the character. She could cut through hypocrisy with one swipe of the tongue. Humorous and impish, she comes across with a great deal of grace. In short, thanks to the great script and Neal's brilliant performance, Cookie is an endearing character.

Dutton shines as well. In one particularly poignant scene, he learns of the death of his best friend. In his arms is a bag of groceries filled with the makings of the supper he was to share with Cookie. Touchingly, he hugs those groceries close to his chest as if they were Cookie herself.

The flick is rife with eccentric characters, homely witticisms, and situations which strain credulity. Yet it all works. Robert Altman, who directed, proves he's still a force to be reckoned with in Hollywood.

Even the few flaws in the flick, such as unrestrained performances from some of the actors, do nothing much to mar its overall presentation. And, while this isn't a "big" movie, it's a sheer delight and a study in human nature. Don't miss it!

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You may become frustrated with people's inability to understand you. Don't blame them until you've analyzed your own methods of communication.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You are in a mood to deal with people directly. Although you often like to be at a distance from your peers, you are ready to get in the center of things at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Although you have ten thousand things to get done, you can't seem to focus on any of them. Give yourself some slack; let your duties wait until you're mentally prepared.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Expect a certain level of confusion in your interactions with others. It is not that you or they are not making sense; it's just that lines of communication sometimes cross.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Prepare to assimilate to new and strange circumstances. There is no way to avoid them, but you can find a comfortable spot in the new order.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It is extremely difficult to face up to problems in your personal life, but you have to do it sometime. Be brave now; you'll feel better for it later.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) If someone claims to "need to talk," he/she probably just needs a good listener who gives a small portion of advice. You are perfect for the role should you choose to assume it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) If you go exploring or investigating in unfamiliar areas, there is no telling what you might find. A romantic encounter is highly likely.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your mood is on the upswing as the week begins. Thus, you accomplish much. This weekend, avoid overindulgence in food or drink.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Absolutely nothing is impossible right now. If you cannot accomplish everything yourself, you can certainly find the right person for every job.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You understand that there is no point in having money if you can't spend it. Still, keep track of the directions in which your cash flows.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You find yourself ready to articulate and implement a strategy for success. Share your ideas with the world, but don't spend all your time talking.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK ... On a good day, your charismatic glow draws people from miles around. On a bad day, no one wants to get within 50 miles of you. This is all caused by the intense, dynamic energy that emanates from within you. You will be happier if you learn to tone down this energy for casual situations.

Sheets Optimistic On Hospital

Andrew Natsios and I speak regularly with our own delegation. I'll be making additional visits in Boston this week," said Sheets.

Councillor-at-large Francis McCauley, who has been a year-long member of the mayor's hospital task force, said Monday he is firmly committed to keeping the hospital open but wants to be sure city taxpayers have accurate information about the financial impact of the hospital affiliation on the city's tax rate.

"Not only were my wife and I born at the hospital, but our children and three of our grandchildren were born there," said McCauley. During McCauley's mayoral administration, the hospital built a large addition, which is named in his honor, and renovated other sections.

"We are extremely proud that the addition was named 'the McCauley Building,'" he added.

However, he said he was concerned about conflicting reports on the hospital's financial impact on the city tax rate.

Sheets said he will detail the proposed finances as soon as possible.

He said in fiscal year 2000, the city must provide about $4.435 million, give or take $50,000, to offset the hospital debt. He proposes that about half, or $2.256 million, will be raised through an increase in the tax rate, with the balance, or about $2.104 million, coming from various state revenues, such as the lottery.

Sheets said this means a $38 per thousand increase for residential taxpayers, which factors out to about $56 per year for a home assessed at $155,000. Sheets said he would not use the tax levy to fund the entire cost of the hospital debt, much of which can be spread over several years.

McCauley said all the hospital costs in next year's budget should be scrutinized carefully when the council meets in finance session to review the mayor's budget requests, adding that he does not mean that the mayor's plans should be approved.

"It is extremely important that we have accurate information upon which we can base our decisions," said McCauley, who is a retired banker.

men as one of their own," said Gorman, as the rescue workers uncovered the debris that had toppled onto the men.

Gorman said Shane cried out to off-duty firefighter Paul Arsenaault, giving even greater urgency to free them.

Gallagher said both families plan to come to Quincy in early fall to thank the fire department personally. The McGettigan family is from County Leitrim, while the Stewart family is from County Louth.

Joseph Hackett, the Irish vice consul in Boston, said he had been in the United States for only two weeks when the fatal accident occurred. "It was one of the most tragic events of the Irish community in this area," he said.

At their funeral Mass, "there was an enormous outpouring of affection and warmth expressed to the families. When I went home [and met their families], they were full of praise for the fire department."

"Through this darkest event, they have found hope in these circumstances," Hackett said, "and I extend thanks on behalf of the Irish community."

McGettigan and Stewart had arrived in Boston only three weeks before the accident. Like many young Irish people, they had come to the States to earn extra money for their education, said Gorman.

Councillor-at-large Paul Harold, who has been teaching American Studies at the University College of Cork for the past eight years, said he appreciated the individuals Tuesday who came to Quincy Tuesday to remember Shane McGettigan and Ronan Stewart and present the special memorial gift for the SAFE program, which will impact a lot of young people in the city.

Also attending the brief ceremony in the mayor's office were Deputy Chief Paul Cuddy and Lt. Robert Servaes of the Quincy Fire Department and State Fire Marshal Stephen Coan.

Arthur Connelly Co-Chairman Of Irish Immigrant Awards Ceremony

Arthur Connelly, president of the South Shore Savings Bank, will co-chair the Irish Immigration Center's 10th annual Awards Dinner Wednesday, May 19 at the Marriott Hotel, Copley Place.

The Center will honor three recipients: Neal F. Finnegan, CEO of US Trust; Eleanor Dunfey Freiburger and family of the Global Citizen's Circle; and John T. O'Connor of Greenworks Inc. The individuals are being recognized for contributing significantly to society.

Connelly is a member of the Board of Corporation,

Board of Trustees and Board of Investment. He is a director of South Shore Health and Educational Corp., Massachusetts Taxpayers Foundation.

The New England Banking Institute honored Connelly with the Thomas F. McLaughlin award. He is a past director of the Massachusetts Bankers Association and former Board Chairman of Quincy College.

Connelly has been recognized for his contributions to the community by many organizations. He is a recipient of the Patriot's Award from Old Colony Boys Scouts of America; a community service award from South Shore Mental Health Association, a Friend of Education award from Weymouth Teachers Association, and the Forrest I. Neal Award for volunteerism from the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Also serving as a co-chairman is Joseph Corcoran, chairman of the Corcoran Jenkinson Company.

WJDA Wins Two Mass. Broadcasting Awards

WJDA took home two awards in the annual Massachusetts Broadcasters Star (Star Television and Radio), Awards banquet held recently at the Boston Museum of Science.

The MBA Star Awards recognizes excellence in television and radio broadcasting. More than 50 stations entered categories ranging from newscast to air personality. The members of the Wyoming Broadcasters Association judged over 200 entries and narrowed down both first place and merit recipients. The awards ceremony was hosted by humorist Dick Flavin of Quincy, winner of seven Emmy Awards for television commentary.

The WJDA team of Debbie Logan and Dennis Knudsen received top honors in the "Retail Commercial Campaign" category, a series of commercials produced by the station for a single retail advertiser Konditor Meister of Braintree. The station also received a Merit Award for the annual WJDA Giving Tree program in the first ever "Public Service Campaign of the Year" category.

Among the winning Konditor Meister commercials aired on WJDA were "Titanic," a parody of the blockbuster movie, "The Oscars," "Ballgame" featuring the voices of the Pawtucket Red Sox, Don Orsillo and Mike Logan; and "Your Tastebuds will Sing."

"We always have fun with Konditor Meister commercials," Logan said. "It's always a challenge to try to come up with an idea that's better than the last."

Logan writes the commercial copy and turns it over to Knudsen to bring it to life. A job that has gotten easier since station owner Jay Asher invested in state-of-the-art digital editing equipment.

"When I first got here, Ray Lind and Debbie taught me how to edit using a razor blade and tape," Knudsen said. "We wouldn't have been able to produce those commercials a few years ago. Today we can edit the smallest little breath with the click of the mouse. The quality of our commercials has increased 500% since we got the new equipment."

The WJDA Giving Tree is the station's annual campaign to help children in the Headstart program enjoy the holidays.

"It was nice that the program was recognized because it involves so many people in the community," Logan, organizer of the effort stated, "Literally hundreds of people, from the businesses who allow up to put up trees and their employees to everybody who participates by purchasing a gift, have made this program a success."

New this year, the Public Service Campaign of the Year Award was created to recognize the successful and creative public service campaign. Entries were judged by creativity, listener/viewer participation and general public response.

Logan developed the WJDA Giving Tree program three years ago after realizing how successful the effort was at her church and wanting to do it on a bigger scale.

"I thought to myself, if one church can do this much, what could a radio station that can reach several communities accomplish," she said.

About 20 local businesses put up Giving Trees with ornaments containing a child's wish...from socks to the latest games. People are encouraged to go in, select an ornament, purchase the gift noted and wrap it up for the child. Then bring it back to the Giving Tree location. Several hundred gifts are collected each year.

"Pick-up day, when all the gifts are collected and brought to Headstart headquarters, is the most rewarding day on the job," Logan said, "I feel like WJDA really makes a difference for these kids and their families during the holidays."

Logan was happy to take home and honors on behalf of the station. "It's really exciting. We entered three categories and took home two awards," she said. "Not bad for our first time. And it's great for the station because it helps people realize the product we're putting on the air is really high quality."

"We're already plotting out what to enter next year!" Knudsen added.

Abandoned Shopping Carts Council Issue

on Newport Avenue, said he has hired an individual who drives around the market neighborhood every other day to retrieve the carts. He said the carts often are recovered at the Wollaston train station, at Sagamore Towers and at the bottle redemption center on North Central Avenue.

"My intention," McDermott explained, "is not to penalize individuals. A shopping cart ordinance would prevent taking away the carts from the store's premises." Imposing a fine on an individual or a store adopting a self-policing policy "hits the problem on the head," he said.

McDermott added he did not know how much it would cost for the public works department to pick up the carts and take them to the DPW yard.

He said perhaps enclosing flyers in shopping bags could address the communication problem among non-speaking English shoppers.

Other store managers from the city also attended the hearing, including Steve Fernandez of Stop and Shop on Southern Artery, Lisa Coash of Shaw's on Hancock Street, Matt Silverstein of Shaw's on Quincy Avenue and Mark Langelier of Star Market on Granite Street, but were given no time to speak.

Councillor-at-large Francis McCauley urged caution in addressing the issue, noting that any policy would affect a number of the elderly. "We don't want to get into a Big Brother situation," McCauley told the store managers. "As a business person, it behooves you" to help find solutions to the problem.

The shopping carts cost about $100 apiece and last about two-and-a-half years, according to McEachern.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said the city cannot afford dedicating resources to pick up the carts and suggested that the shopping baskets could be registered so that the store would know where it is going.

He noted that the Trans-Van for a quarterly fee transports seniors to and from the markets which alleviates some of the potential problem.

"It would be in the economic interest of Stop and Shop and the other markets to come up with a reasonable solution," said Council President Peter Kolson.

Kolson suggested that the stores explore the feasibility of providing one-way transportation from the market to the elderly. "It would be easier on us [councillors] than trying to assess penalties and to enforce any ordinance," he said.

Raymond said he does not support any effort by government or by retailers to restrict the seniors or individuals with disabilities or minorities by forbidding them to remove the carts from the property of the markets.

"If you physically stopped someone who is a minority or who has a disability at your parking lot, there would be outrage throughout the city," he declared, "and the disabilities commission would respond."

"The fact that we are discussing this, shame on us. We need to work together," Raymond said.

"I won't sit here and allow 'push button politics.' This has come to my attention and I am addressing it... We need to address this issue and do it now, through an ordinance, a partnership with the stores, with the city," said McDermott.

Afterward, McDermott explained "push button politics" as hot issues that spark attention to sensitive issues, such as the elderly and minorities. "They want a quick headline," McDermott said of the other councillors.

He said he had hoped the hearing would generate a productive discussion and solution to the problem. The hearing was continued because Public Works Commissioner David Colton was not available to give his remarks on the issue.

Michael Ameen Receives Navy Commendation

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Michael J. Ameen, son of Nayfe Ameen of 18 Roselyn Ave., Quincy, recently received a Letter of Commendation while assigned at Naval Submarine Support Facility, New London, Groton, Conn. Ameen was recognized for his "superior performance of duty, in an exemplary and highly professional manner."

A 1991 graduate of Weymouth High School, he joined the Navy in September that same year.

INGROWN TOENAILS

Myth or Fact: Cutting a V in the nail to become ingrown the end of an ingrown toenail will again.

Unfortunately, many people who have never had an ingrown toenail may suddenly develop one, which may become a chronic problem. Usually this is caused by the shape of the nail, or the way the nail grows. Cutting a V in the end of the nail does not cause the nail to change shape.

An ingrown toenail can also become infected if it breaks through the skin. This usually requires removing the section of offending nail from the corner, and often, antibiotics. The nail very often grows back causing

If you are suffering from ingrown toenails, see a Podiatrist for treatment.

If you are experiencing any of these symptoms or other foot problems, call to make an appointment at our office at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Mayor James Sheets has proposed a $165.58 million budget for fiscal year 2000, about $7.3 million or 4.6 percent higher than the $158.2 million budget City Council approved last June.

Sheets expects to submit a supplemental budget within the next few months addressing hospital costs and the proposed affiliation of Quincy Hospital with Boston Medical Center.

His budget includes a $2.6 million request for the school department to bring it up to slightly more than $53.2 million and a $2.5 million increase in the police department's budget to bring that to $17 million.

The $12.5 million request for the fire department does not reflect any salary adjustments except for the fire chief.

"I didn't want to ask the City Council to evaluate that appropriation for the hospital without having all the rest of the information relative to what the state government and the federal government are doing," Sheets explained.

"It seemed to make sense to wait until we have all of the information and then send everything down to the City Council as a package. It would be much easier to evaluate."

However, he added he had hoped that the information could have been available when he was submitting the budget.

Earlier, Sheets said the city would have to provide about $4.435 million, give or take $50,000, to offset the hospital debt and would propose that about half, or $2.256 million, be raised through an increase in the tax rate. The balance, or about $2.104 million, would come from various state revenues, such as the lottery.

Should the hospital close, there would be a drastic financial impact because the city would have to finance the hospital deficit immediately, rather than absorb the losses over a period of the next six years.

Sheets said he met with Sen. Edward Kennedy's chief of staff, Gerry Cavanagh, last week in Washington and may be meeting with him again this

$24 Million Office, Retail Building For Downtown

By MARILYN JACKSON

The owner of Presidents Place wants to develop the vacant lot on Coddington Street, next to Coddington Hall at Quincy College, and construct a $24 million, five-story office building.

In addition, conceptual plans call for linking the complex to the existing garage and adding one-and-a-half levels. Parking also would be provided beneath the new office structure, according to John D. Miller, senior vice president of commercial real estate for Lincoln Property Company.

Altogether, the site would add another 300 parking spaces.

"We're excited about this proposal," said Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000. "It would add another 700 to 900 employees to the downtown area and would complete the development project at Presidents Place."

Board Has Marijuana Concerns Over Cigarette Paper Availability

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board will send letters to all local pouring establishments telling them to notify them of any promotionals available at the bars following a report from Det. Lt. Robert M. Perchard, liquor inspector.

At Tuesday's License Board meeting, Chairman Joseph Shea said Perchard, had noticed that EZ Wider paper was available at some local pouring establishments.

Shea said the paper is Perchard said "no kid that I know of rolls their own cigarettes".

Fearing that the paper will be used to roll marijuana, Shea said he plans to send a letter to all bars regarding the promotion, which includes giving out hats and t-shirts to those who purchase the paper.

Shea used to "roll your own cigarettes". However,

Shea who said he was "amazed" that the paper is available in bars, and aid the owners of the bar would now have to appear before the license board to explain their promotions.

Shea said he has taken a "dim view" of the paper and said the board is not against any "normal type of promotion". He said he will ask Perchard to revisit the local bars to warn them to notify the license board as to what "give aways" are being promoted.

After the meeting, Perchard said he would asked City Solicitor Steve McGrath to set up "promotional guidelines" to issue at local pouring establishments.

Shea returned to chair his first License Board meeting since his recent surgery, and was greeted warmly by all his friends at City Hall.

Seeks Special Permit Credit Union Plans Headquarters And New Look At Shaw's

The Quincy Municipal Credit Union has applied for a special permit to reuse the former Shaw's Market at 100 Quincy Ave. for its new headquarters. In addition, the credit plans to lease a portion of the 38,000-square-foot building to a commercial or retail entity.

According to the proposal, the one-story concrete building will be extensively rehabilitated to look more like a traditional building, according to credit union president Stewart Steele. A small bump-out will be added on the Scannell Street side of the building to provide three drive-through windows — one for a remote ATM and two for remote tellers.

In addition, the present entrance to the supermarket will be transformed into a walk-up ATM vestibule at the corner of Quincy Avenue and Scannell Street, he said.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi will hold a neighborhood meeting about the credit union's proposal at 7 p.m. Monday, May 24, in the community room on the second floor of the Roche Bros. Supermarket, 101 Falls Boulevard. Steele and other credit union officials, as well as their attorney, Robert Fleming, will meet with the neighbors at this meeting to answer questions.

"We hope to open sometime in the third quarter of the year 2000, perhaps a little earlier than September 2000, after extensive renovations," said Steele.

He estimated it would take about eight months to complete the work once all the necessary permits have been secured. Under a purchase-and-sale agreement, Steele said he hopes the sale can be completed by Aug. 30.

The formal public P.U.D. hearing, to be conducted by the City Council, as the special permit granting authority, will be held at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday, June 9, at City Hall.

The credit union, which has 14,000 members and $148 million in assets, was chartered Aug. 4, 1937, Steele said.

Shaw's Market spokesman Bernie Rogan said the market will continue in business until sometime in mid-summer, contrary to a previously announced tentative closing of May 30.

He said Shaw's had hoped to secure approval from the Federal Trade Commission by now for the proposed acquisition of the Star Market chain. He said he is optimistic that the FTC will give the go-ahead within the next 30 days.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Over the years, crash test dummies have provided researchers with invaluable information that has led to the manufacture of safer vehicles. However, recent focus on smaller women's greater vulnerability to air-bag related injuries has led to the realization that not all dummies are created equal. Women of smaller stature tend to move their seats forward and upward, which increases their chances of being injured by deploying air bags. To study this effect and others, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has developed a 4'11, 108-pound female crash test dummy named Hybrid III Female.

She will undoubtedly lead to the development of future air bags that deploy with greater regard for smaller women's safety.

Birmingham Talks Up Seniors Tax Credit

By MARILYN JACKSON
Soaring real estate prices in Greater Boston are pushing the demand for housing out of the core city into Quincy and beyond.

And as a result, many seniors are finding themselves living in homes that have greatly appreciated in value and are paying an unreasonably high percentage of their income on property taxes.

Other seniors who rent are finding their housing costs skyrocketing as well.

This week, Senate President Thomas Birmingham came to Quincy to discuss a bill ($1495) he has introduced which would help an estimated 130,000 elderly statewide.

Quincy's elderly represent about 30 percent of the city's population, many who are "house rich but cash poor," Councillor Daniel Raymondi said.

Under Birmingham's measure, called a "circuit breaker," a tax credit of up to $750 would be made all qualified seniors, whether they own their home or rent.

"Even those with no tax liability, if they were eligible would get a check back," said Birmingham who noted that many seniors, in order to meet their tax obligations, are making compromises, forgoing purchasing medicine, food or clothes.

Many times they have to sell their homes, pulling up their deep roots in the community, Birmingham said. That not only has a devastating affect on the individual but on the community as well.

Birmingham estimated that the tax credit, which would be permanent, not a one-time deal while the state has a surplus, would cost an estimated $48.5 million.

He said he would not recommend increasing the dollar amounts of existing abatements because the cost to the state would nearly triple. State Auditor Joseph DeNucci last fall issued a report stating that abatements had not increased since 1986.

Under the Birmingham bill, for homeowners over 65 years of age, in order to qualify for the tax credit, they would have to have incomes of $40,000 or less as single filers or $60,000 as joint filers and reside in a home assessed at $400,000 or less.

For renters, they would be eligible if 25 percent of their rent exceeds 10 percent of their income.

While those who qualify would still have to pay their property taxes — and would still be eligible for available abatements — they would receive a portion of this tax back in the form of an income tax credit when filing their state income taxes.

Birmingham said the tax credit would help seniors in another regard as well. "Whenever there is a Proposition 2 1/2 override requested for the schools, the seniors vote against it, not because they are cheap or against the schools, but they are overburdened by their tax obligation."

Birmingham said that since 1991 when he was elected a state senator, there have been more than 20 tax cuts, many of which have favored big business and the well-to-do. "It's high time that this group get their tax cut. It's better late than never."

After he spoke, the councillors unanimously voted to support the Senate bill.

In addition, the councillors agreed to forward its own home rule petition to the legislature. Last December, Raymondi proposed the home rule petition to provide property tax relief to residents and renters who earn less than $20,000 a year. He said he modeled the proposal after a similar one adopted in Boston.

Meanwhile, elderly residents who are living in subsidized housing are at risk of having their rents jump dramatically, especially in developments which were built with low-interest loans from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development or from the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency.

Under the loan agreements building owners are allowed to pay off their subsidized mortgages after a period of 20 years, and in many cases, they are doing so.

Properties designated as Section 8 site specific housing can be slowly converted to market-rate housing, provided that the residents are given a Section 8 voucher. Just as soon as that resident moves, the rental cost of the unit rises.

As a result, low income and affordable units can be protected for rent increases for a while, but market-rate units can quickly double.

Virginia Kelly of the Mass Alliance of HUD Tenants told about 50 seniors attending the city council meeting that it is important to organize and form a tenants' association in order to protect their interests.

Many of the residents live at Wollaston Manor at 91 Clay St., which has 164 units of housing, 41 of which are Section 8 which allows residents to pay only 30 percent of their income for rent.

Although residents who are living in Section 8 units have locked-in rates, others could be faced with rental hikes. The owner of Wollaston Manor has been eligible to prepay his mortgage since 1995.

Other elderly housing complexes are affected as well. At Granite Place on Granite Street, all 270 apartments are Section 8 units. The owner has an option to opt out of the mortgage and convert the units to market rate or continue with HUD, according

Mock Accident Drill
On Red Line Sunday

The Quincy Fire Department, along with personnel from Quincy Hospital, the Quincy police, the MBTA police and members of its safety division, will stage a mock accident on the Red Line, beginning at 8:45 a.m. Sunday, May 23.

The Red Line between the Braintree station and the Quincy Center stations will be shut down at 7 a.m., but the commuter rail to Middleborough and Kingston, which is separated by a fence, will continue to run during the drill, said Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

The MBTA will provide shuttle buses between Braintree and Quincy Center during the drill, and signs will be posted at the station to notify travelers of the drill.

A Med Flight helicopter from Boston will land on the Water Street overpass to evacuate a seriously injured person and transport him to a Boston hospital, weather permitting, said Gorman.

Other injured parties will be treated at the scene or transported to the Quincy Hospital emergency room by Fallon Ambulance, he said.

"This drill will give the fire department the experience they need in extricating victims from a train accident," said Gorman. "Hopefully, there never will be one."

"This also will test other agencies that would be involved in such an incident."

"If people hear sirens or see emergency equipment, they should be assured that this is only a mock drill," said the fire chief, who estimated the drill should be concluded by 10:30 a.m.

He said fire personnel, including members of the hazardous material response team, have participated in other rail accident exercises in other cities and towns, but Sunday's mock accident is the first time one is staged in Quincy.

"This will test everybody's skills, to see what we have to improve on," said Gorman.

Those Harold Tickets

Sometimes what isn't there is more interesting and intriguing than what is.

Especially in the world of local politics where it doesn't take much to get the speculation juices jumping.

Case in point: the tickets for Paul Harold's opening election year fundraiser set for this Sunday (11 a.m. to 1 p.m.) at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

The tickets say the event is a "Campaign Kick-Off Brunch." But they don't say, it has been noticed, what campaign is being kicked off.

Specifically, they don't say "For Re-election to the City Council."

And, the fact they don't say "Re-election to the City Council" has touched off speculation Harold might be considering a mayoral run. This year.

He is, also, already being urged to run by some. A Jim Sheets-Paul Harold match would be a political blockbuster, one that hasn't been seen in recent years.

Sheets is a powerhouse who has gone unchallenged three times and now, in his fifth term, holds the mayoral longevity record under the Plan A charter.

But Harold can run up a vote, too. In fact his 1977 vote of 21,243 still stands as the all time record for a Quincy city council candidate.

He wrested the state senator's seat away from incumbent Arthur Tobin, another powerful vote-getter in 1978.

And, in 1992 after giving up that seat to run for Congress, Harold carried Quincy by a wide margin--12,951 to 5,256--over incumbent Gerry Studds in the primary election.

He decided to go back to the City Council in 1995 and came back with a roar, topping the at-large field that year and repeating the performance in 1997.

Well, would Harold, who has does have mayor aspirations, actually run this year for mayor instead of waiting for Sheets to hang the vacancy sign on the door to the big third floor office at City Hall?

Ask him and he says:

"My intention right now is to run for re-election as councillor at-large."

And, no doubt, there will be some more speculation as to whether those two little words--right now--might mean things and plans could change a little later.

Never a dull moment in politics.

WHEN IT COMES to walking, there aren't many around who can keep pace with Councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley.

McCauley has even walked the Boston Marathon route at a brisk clip several times to raise funds for worthy causes.

Last week, however, he finished last in the Senior Olympics three-mile walk at the Beechwood Center and Marina Bay.

McCauley didn't mind, though. A member of the Quincy Lions Club which raises funds for eye research, he was escorting a blind woman participating in the walk.

Uncle Sam made a hit at the Montclair School the other day. While talking to the students, his cell phone rang.

"Oh, hello Mr. President," he answered. "I'm busy right now. Can I call you back? I'm at the Montclair School, the best school in the whole country."

A card would mean a lot.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1934 POSTCARD showing the old granite railroad bridge over Furnace Brook Parkway in West Quincy. This bridge was torn down to build the South-east expressway on the right-of-way of what was the Granite Branch of the Old Colony Railroad. The branch line ran from the Atlantic Bridge on Hancock Street in North Quincy serving stations in Montclair, East Milton and West Quincy. It rejoined the main line just south of today's Quincy Adams station. The Granite line was built on part of America's first railroad right-of-way, which is where it got its name. It ran for almost 70 years from 1871 to 1940. The Montclair Station was near Vershire Street in the Hill-side section; the West Quincy station was across from Curry's Hardware store.

Sale Set For Squantum Naval Air Base

By PAUL HAROLD

The federal made it official this week, announcing that the 648-acre Squantum Naval Air Station was for sale to the highest bidder.

The announcement came in the middle of an attempt to acquire the site for a "Boys' Town" type housing project.

43 Years Ago

While the Boys' Town plan had support in the legislature, both the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and the City Council by unanimous votes urged the land be used for industrial development. While the Boys' Town plan was termed "laudable," the chamber noted that the site was one of the finest industrial locations in New England and could help the city in its need for an expanded tax base.

The announced sale by the GSA (General Services Administration) could still be held up if the Department of Health, Education and Welfare sought the site for educational purposes.

150 ADULT LEADERS NEEDED FOR SOX GAME

One hundred and fifty adult leaders were needed for the annual Mayor and Council Appreciation Day at Fenway Park when 1,600 city youths would be treated to free admission for the game between the Red Sox and Senators.

The appreciation day was arranged between the city and the Red Sox management.

William Spencer, the schools' attendance officer, called for adult leaders to show up at the car barns of the Eastern Mass. Railway on Hancock St. for bus assignments. Twenty-six buses would be needed to shuttle the city's young people to the game.

CURTIN SOUNDS THE ALARM

Laurence Curtin, chairman of the Plan A Committee (mayor-city council government), warned that the Plan E forces were preparing for a comeback.

"We must fight to make Plan A work and to preserve it," he told committee members gathered at the Morrisette Post. This was their first meeting since their victory banquet.

QUINCY-ISMS

Rocky Marciano, the undefeated retired world heavyweight champion and former employee of the Fore River shipyard, visited officials at the Quincy office of the Union of Marine and Ship Workers of America AFL-CIO. Quincy's Ida Lyons was defeated by two votes in her attempt to retain her position as secretary of the Democratic State Committee. As a loyalist for Congressman John McCormack she was swept aside by forces of Sen. John F. Kennedy. In a bitter three-hour meeting of the state committee, requiring police in attendance, William "Onions" Burke was replaced by Somerville Mayor John Lynch as chairman. Following his defeat Burke said that Kennedy bought the election and called the state's junior senator "the biggest hypocrite in either party." ... Nissie Grossman was chapter president for the Red Cross. ... Donald Sargent was treasurer of the Snug Harbor School PTA. ... The head and torso of Quincy High School's school symbol, the "Appeal to the Great Spirit," was stolen by vandals. The statuette was in the school's lobby since 1924. ... Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa told the meeting of the Montclair Men's Club of his intention to seek re-election. ... Nick Malvesti announced that the first practice of the Morrisette Junior Legion baseball team would be at Kincaide Park. The date of the first workout was help up to conform with a ruling of Quincy High and North Quincy High schools. ... Charles Osgood was cubmaster at Pack 12 at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church. ... Mrs. Theodore Kowick was elected president of the Squantum School PTA. Richard Hendry was vice president and Mrs. Norman Ayers corresponding secretary. ... Arch Bear defeated Union Gear 14-9 in the Quincy Softball League competition. ... A Quincy man was indicted in the Brink's robbery case. ... The Mother's Club of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church met at the Rock Island Rd. home of Mr. Samuel Tuttle. ... The Lady Scott Lodge sponsored a "Cootie Night." ... H. Hobart Holly was elected president of the Quincy Historical Society. ... Taleb Grotto initiated 41 candidates at its annual Spring full-form ceremonies at the Masonic Temple. ... The statue of Lt. Gen. Edward Logan was dedicated at Logan Airport. Quincy resident Joseph Coletti was the sculptor. ... David Freeman was outgoing commander for the Jewish War Veterans.

The Kids Need A SkatePark Now

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The nice weather is here and the kids are outside. They're playing baseball on the baseball fields. They're playing soccer on the soccer fields. There are basketball and tennis courts. The little kids have playgrounds to go to. But where do the kids who want to skateboard and rollerblade go?

They go to the T stations and Quincy Center and the streets and sidewalks. They go anywhere there's a curb or railing or bench that they can find that's good for skating on or jumping off of because the city of Quincy hasn't built a SkatePark.

The Park Department picked a site for a SkatePark with an estimate of what it would cost not only to build the park, but also clean up the basketball and tennis courts that are there. Of course, that estimate is rather high. Now I am told the mayor has asked the Park Department for another estimate of what it would cost to build the SkatePark.

This is encouraging news for those of us who want a SkatePark. But, of course, these things take time and school will be out very soon. So, if you have kids, grandkids, nieces, nephews or neighborhood kids who skate, or if you just want these skating kids out of your way, make a call or write a letter. Let the mayor and your city councillor know that we want a SkatePark before the summer vacation.

My kids and your kids deserve a safe place to skate where they won't be in danger from cars or from getting in trouble with the police. So make some noise and maybe we can get the city officials to build a SkatePark!

More Important Things Than Shopping Carts

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

With the all important issues needing to be debated and resolve in the city of Quincy, missing shopping carts hardly registered a blip on my radar screen.

People have been stealing or "borrowing" them forever. This isn't new news, it's old stuff. Supermarkets have had to live with this expensive problem. Every week, Quincy's supermarkets hire people to drive around picking up these shopping carts.

I think both Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott and Ward 2 Councillor Dan

Raymondi are burning far too many calories debating this non-issue. The city shouldn't be using city workers to find carts and the city is wasting its time if it thinks fines will do the trick, too. Abandoned shopping carts may be a "disgrace" as McDermott says but the answer is to inform the supermarkets of the whereabouts of their carts. As for Raymondi, worrying about the MCAD over this issue, no one, not the homeless, not the elderly and not the Asian population has a right to take private property.

The real answer to this is working with supermarkets to remove the carts quickly from our streets. We can't prevent people from stealing them unless we want to create the Shopping Cart Police.

The other day as I drove through Quincy, I passed by a homeless guy near Father Bill's Place pushing a cart filled with junk. A few minutes later I was an elderly Asian woman pushing her cart loaded with a zillion tonic bottles and cans. How do you stop either? It has become a part of urban life.

Perhaps, supermarkets could offer free of charge old carts to those who want them. Shopping carts are a hot commodity. As long as the wheels work, an old one is just as good as a new one, eh?

Meanwhile, if you see an abandoned cart, call the supermarket it belongs to and they'll come for it. Word to supermarkets, take a ride down to the Kettle Hole in my neighborhood, it looks like a shopping cart cemetery many times.

Atlantic St.

Disappointed In Reaction To Abandoned Shopping Carts

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was disappointed by the reactions of several council members to Councillor McDermott's raising of the issue of stolen shopping carts being abandoned throughout the city (May 13 issue).

These carts are unsightly when left on sidewalks and lawns, dangerous when left on roads, and frequently end up as water pollution (see the article on Page 15 of the same issue). In addition, we all wind up paying to retrieve or replace carts through higher prices or taxes.

The council would be doing a service to the community if it acted to both require stores to take steps to prevent carts from being removed from store property and to penalize those who insist on taking things that do not belong to them.

Cheese Puff For Two

Once a week at our house, we treat ourselves to a big breakfast. If it isn't at home, then it's out to a restaurant. And we don't watch the cholesterol.

Recently, I found a recipe for a cheese puff that was different, and served with bacon, ham or sausage, it tasted too good to be so easy.

Cheese Puff for Two

- 3 slices of white or whole wheat bread (buttered)
- 1/2 cup shredded cheddar cheese
- 2 eggs

1 cup milk

salt and pepper to taste

Cut bread into strips and place them with buttered side down along the sides and bottom of two custard cups (or other).

Beat the eggs, add the milk, cheese, salt and pepper and pour into the cups. Place on a baking sheet and bake at a 350 degree oven for 35-40 minutes or until puffy and golden brown. Serve immediately.

For a spicy taste, a smidgen of tabasco or other hotauce can be added.

End Of Nature Topic At Adams Shore Library

"The Ends of Civilization; Taking Stock on the Eve of the Millennium" will hold its third session Wednesday, May 26, at 7 p.m. at the Adams Shore Branch Library, 519 Sea St.

The program is open to the public, free of charge. Registration is required.

Public Library is one of 27 libraries participating in this program.

The focus of the May 26 session is Bill McKibben's book, "The End of Nature," which is in the tradition of Rachel Carson's "Silent Spring." Referencing a harrowing array of ecological ills, McKibben explains the frightening implications of the destruction man has wrought on our planet. The discussion will address McKibben's question of what does the end of nature as we have known it mean to our thinking about a Creator and our understanding of mankind.

Professor John Hill of Curry College will facilitate the program. Subsequent programs explore science on June 9 and history on June 23.

A copy of the book for each session is loaned by the MFH to each registered participant. For more information to register contact Jane Granstrom at the Crane Public Library (617) 376-1331.

'THE ODD COUPLE - FEMALE!' opens tonight at 7 p.m. at the Cove Fine Arts Center at Eastern Nazarene College and continues Friday and Saturday evenings. Maureen Wall (standing left) plays "Florence" Unger, the compulsively-neat roommate and Kate Ellis, far, the domestically challenged "Olive" Madison. Tickets are $7. Montclair Student Wins City-Wide Essay Contest

What do you like about your school? What makes it special?

Fifth graders in the Quincy Public Schools responded to those questions as participants in the first essay contest sponsored by Central Middle School's Future Educator Club. Designed to encourage writing and to support the MCAS initiative, the contest attracted more than 200 entries from seven schools.

This year's first place winner was Lisa Luo, fifth grader at the Montclair Elementary School. Lisa's entry stressed the uniqueness of each individual in her school and the schools' effort to develop the special talents of each student. She will receive a $50 savings bond and $50 in Stop & Shop gift certificates.

Four students received $50 in Stop & Shop certificates as runnersup. They are: Irene Bell of the Squantum School, Sara Chung of the Merrymount School, Virginia Hsai of the Beechwood Knoll School and Erin Thomas of Merrymount.

Honorable mention

prizes provided by McDonald's went to:

Johnny Allen, Beechwood Knoll; Jennifer Berfield, Merrymount; Sean Dennehy, Merrymount; Paul Doolan, Beechwood Knoll; Kevin Donovan, Merrymount; Victoria Golden, Wollaston; Alsha Hakimjeem Marshall; Teresa Moconachie, Lincoln-Hancock; Maura Whalen, Montclair; and Laura Ashley Wright, Montclair.

Members of Central's Future Educator Club judged the contest based on style, originality and writing mechanics. The club, sponsored by a state grant from the Massachusetts Department of Education, encourages students to consider teaching careers. Stop and Shop and McDonald's joined with the Future Educators in sponsoring the contest.

Service Clubs Memorial Service Aboard USS Salem May 27

The city's service organizations will hold a joint Memorial Day Service aboard the USS Salem on Thursday, May 27 at noon.

Members from the Quincy Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and Altrusa International will participate.

Ceremonies will take place on the deck of the USS Salem. A tent will be provided in the event of inclement weather.

Guest speaker will be Tim Sullivan, a retired U.S. Navy Commander currently residing in Cohasset and employed by Veterans Services. Sullivan was a Navy Flight Officer flying an F-4 Phantom during the Vietnam War. He was shot down in the mid 1960's and was a Prisoner of War for approximately five years.

Sullivan served as a naval reservist after the war and then on active duty. At the conclusion of his service career, he served as the Officer in Charge of the S.E.R.E. (Survival, Evasive, Resistance, Escape) Training Survival School in Brunswick, Maine. All flight personnel are required to take this course in the event of flight crash over enemy lines in time of war.

Cain Opposes Fines On Shopping Cart Issue

Ward 3 city council candidate John Cain says the issue of shopping carts should be resolved by community involvement, not new city council fines or enforcement.

Cain proposes a "community task force" made up of members of the Council on Aging, the Asian community, community policing, supermarket representatives, specific community associations and departments of the mayor's office.

Cain said his preliminary discussions with community affairs executives of stores such as Stop & Shop, Shaw's and Roche Brothers, indicate a willingness to proceed to the next step of receiving as proposal from the "task force." Cain spoke with them of a possible donation or funding level to assist senior citizens with transportation and the distribution of free portable shopping carriages as a incentive to discourage removal of store carriages.

Cain also spoke with John Noonan, chairman of the Council on Aging, who offered to assist in developing a plan that will help local senior citizens.

Cain also suggests utilizing the services of Betty Yau of Yau Marketing Services to help develop material to communicate more directly with the Asian community.

Cain said he agrees with Councillor Daniel Raymond that fines are not the answer and that effective methods of restoring and retaining the aesthetic image of the community should be developed.

eral proposals for this site for a couple of years, including a concept for a small, downtown hotel.

Mannarino said neither he nor the mayor has given up on the idea for a business hotel and would continue to explore other opportunities, adding that the construction of the Quincy Center Concourse could bring about renewed interest in hotel construction in downtown Quincy.

The developer has applied for two variances and will appear before the zoning board of appeals June 8.

"Technically, the garage will be seven stories high, but the height of the garage will be shorter than the office building," Mannarino said. "It conforms to the spirit of the zoning bylaws."

The other variance is a request for a waiver for constructing additional loading docks, he said. Already, there are loading docks on Saville Avenue, he said.

The conceptual design also calls for eliminating some curb cuts along Codding Street, improving the traffic flow of the garage and expanding green space around Codding Hall, to complement the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library and Bethany Congregational Church across the street, Mannarino added.

The reduction in curb cuts not only would improve pedestrian safety, especially when the Central Middle School is relocated into the present Quincy High School, but would create a campus look, he said.

Miller said a portion of the 157,144-square-foot building would be used for retail space. Architect for the project is John Sheskey who designed Presidents Place in the mid-1980s. The new building would have a similar brick facade. Lincoln Property Company acquired Presidents Place in 1995.

"There clearly is a need for office space," said Miller, "and this really ties together the two-building complex that has had a vacant lot for 14 years. The two towers, north and south, will tie into that grand lobby."

"It has always been contemplated that there would be three buildings," said Miller.

Lincoln Property Company just completed construction of a three-story, 45,000-square-foot office building at Crown Colony. Miller said he has been talking with several prospective tenants, including one that would like to lease the entire building.

He said he hopes to complete leasing negotiations within the next couple of weeks.

SWOLLEN LEGS

The arterial blood supply brings oxygenated blood to the extremities. The venous blood supply brings oxygen-depleted blood back toward the lungs and heart to get fresh oxygen before being pumped out again. Because blood is subject to the force of gravity, nature designed our veins with little valves to keep blood moving. Without the valves in our veins, our blood would pool in our lowest extremities. The blood is pumped through the veins by our muscle contractions every time we move. When we stand still, however, pumping ceases and the capillary pressure increases. This forces fluid to leak into the tissues, causing swollen legs. Movement, even shifting weight from leg to leg, can keep the blood moving.

The components of the foot and leg are designed to work together, sharing the tremendous pressures of day-to-day living. When they don't work properly, though, it can cause trouble for the rest of the body and it's time to get help. The specialized care and treatment a podiatrist provides can make an important contribution to an individual's total health. If foot, ankle or leg pain are slowing you down, please call us at 617-472-3466. We're located at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy.

PS: To avoid pressure in dependent extremities from swelling or causing bulging varicose veins, elevate the legs whenever possible.

Squantum 4th Grader $1,000 Bond Winner In QCBPA Contest

Sarah Ellis, a fourth grader at the Squantum Elementary School, is the winner of the $1,000 savings bond in the Quincy center historic site contest promotion.

The contest was sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and co-sponsored by The Quincy Sun.

Sarah's name was drawn by QCBPA President Deanna Gazarian of Phase II Jewelry from among the names of 41 participants who submitted correct entries in the contest. The drawing was held at The Quincy Sun.

Sarah, the daughter of Lorry and Peter Ellis of Trevor St., will put the bond to good use.

"It is going into my college fund," she said.

She hopes to be a doctor.

Her parents set up a fund for Sarah and her sister, Kimberly.

Each receives a weekly allowance equivalent to their ages, half of which goes into their college's own fund.

Sarah is 9 1/2 and Kimberly is 5. So each week, Sarah receives $9.50 and Kimberly $5 of which $4.75 goes into Sarah's college fund and $2.50 into Kimberly's.

Sarah, in addition to wanting to be a doctor, is also a musician. She plays clarinet in the Squantum school and the City All-Star bands.

The contest was open to youngsters in Quincy public and parochial schools in grades K through 8.

Photographs of 10 well known Quincy sites were placed in the Quincy Center area and appeared in The Quincy Sun.

The photographs also appeared in contest entry forms donated by Stop & Shop and distributed to the Quincy schools.

THE WINNER -- Sarah Ellis, fourth grade student at the Squantum elementary school, receives a $1,000 savings bond from Deanna Gazarian, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association as the winner of the historic site promotion contest. At right is Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth. The contest was sponsored by the QCBPA and co-sponsored by The Sun.

The entry forms also contained short verses describing the subject of each photo. Hidden in the verse was a clue as to where each of the photos were displayed.

HAMMERTOES

Have you noticed that your toes are slightly curled or contracted? A hammertoe is a contraction of the toe due to a muscular imbalance. The toes can eventually become stuck in that position and develop irritation or gery.

Contrary to popular belief, they are not caused by poor fitting shoes, although they are irritated by certain shoes. As mentioned, they are caused by an imbalance of the pull of the tendons. After the toe has been contracted for a period of time, the joint cartilage adapts to this position and this is why the toe is "Stuck" in that position.

If you have hammertoes that do surgery, there are conservative forms of treatment such as padding and debriding the corn to make the person comfortable and eliminate the need for surposition and develop irritation or gery. If you are experiencing any of these symptoms or other foot problems, call to make an appointment at our office at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Cleanup Saturday At Richard Reilly Overlook Park

Family and friends are seeking volunteers to help them clean up the Richard

M. Reilly Overlook Park Saturday between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The park is located at Bromfield St. and Quincy Shore Drive. This will be the third annual Spring spruceup.

Fleet Bank is sponsoring this year's event and furnishing T-shirts for those participating.

Residents and businesses unable to take part in the actual cleanup can help through donations of plants, mulch and grass seed which can be dropped off at the park Saturday.

For more information, contact Nanci Reilly-Buckley at 471-6208 or Cary Kennedy at 376-9371.

to Steve Meacham, lead organizer for Mass Alliance for HUD Tenants.

Other HUD developments include Hancock Court on School Street, Town Brook House on Brackett Street, Fenno House at 540 Hancock St., Quincy Point Homes at 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy House on Revere Road and the 75 units at 310 Water St., which is managed by the Wollaston Evangelical Lutheran Church.

"Because the real estate market is so strong, owners are prepaying their mortgages," said Meacham. Even if the owners give up their low-interest rate mortgages, they can earn a lot more money on the open market in Quincy, he said.

HUD sets the maximum amount of rents that can be charged in Section 8 housing and just recently increased the levels to keep pace with the market. However, the rents are still below what owners can collect.

In Quincy the fair market rate for a studio with utilities is $643, while a single bedroom unit is $723 and a two-bedroom unit is $906, according to Barbara Niles of the Quincy Housing Authority.

At St. Ann's Church May 8, residents from Wollaston Manor and other housing developments attended a meeting organized by the pastor, the Rev. Thomas Keane, and the alliance to make them aware of the seriousness of the rising costs of housing. The next meeting will be held May 27 at Wollaston Manor, according to Kelly, who attended that first meeting.

John Noonan, chairman of the Council on Aging, noted that the demand for housing for the elderly is ever increasing. There are 14 facilities under the control of the Quincy Housing Authority, and there are eight privately subsidized, he said. In addition, there are three assisted living facilities, and another is being built, Noonan said.

In an effort to protect the senior citizen tenants in Quincy, the councillors agreed to form a committee to establish a dialogue between regulated rental property owners and the city.

Members of the Council on Aging and two councillors appointed by Council President Peter Kolson would serve on the committee. In addition, housing authority director Jack Mather was asked to look into the senior housing issue as well.

CUB SCOUTS William Proulx, 7, and Scott Klotzbecher, 8, of St. John's Church were on hand at the mayor's office to help promote the Mayor's Annual Boy Scout Breakfast to be held June 23 at 7:30 aboard the USS Salem. With them are John Keenan, executive secretary; Mayor James Sheets, Councillor Paul Harold and Harold Pinkham, district director of Boy Scouts of America.

Yard Care Conference Saturday

The Park Department will conduct its second annual "Yard Care Conference: Saturday, May 22 at the Richard J. Koch Family Park & Recreation Complex at 1 Merrymount Parkway from 9 to 11 a.m. The conference will feature experts in the fields of turf care, gardening, tree care, composting, and other yard care topics. Each speaker will give a presentation on a featured topic and then be available for a question and answer session.

Among the list of speakers are David Gasper of Prescription Turf Services and Michael Nelson of the Norfolk County Agricultural School, both of whom gave presentations at last year's events.

"The conference allows the average resident access to the experts who might have the solution to that nagging lawn problem or who might offer some helpful hints for around the garden. Last year's conference was a great success and we are proud to be able to conduct our second Yard Care Conference," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments.

The conference is held outdoors on the lawn at 1 Merrymount Parkway. Last year more than 40 people won prize giveaways that included flowers, shrubs, plants, and other lawn and garden materials.

"Along with good advice, people might go home with something tangible for their yard and garden. I encourage those who might have missed last year's event to come down and join us. We have great prizes, excellent speakers, a beautiful setting, and free admission. I can't think of many better ways to spend a spring morning," added Koch.

The Park Department will also be announcing information for this year's "Neat Neighbors" contest at the Yard Care Conference. For more information, call Dave Murphy of the park department at 376-1254.

Check AC Before It Gets Hot

(NAPS)—There are many ways to help you keep your cool when the weather gets warm.

For many of us, the difference between a carefree summer and an unbearable one can be an effective air conditioner. An air conditioner malfunction can leave you soaked—not only in sweat, but also in repair or replacement costs.

• Be proactive—Don't wait for a breakdown. Preventive maintenance such as professional cleaning and tune ups can cost far less than repair or replacement.

• Use your senses—Note the sounds your air conditioner makes when it's working and cooling properly. Machines often "tell" you before they're going to quit.

• Watch your utility bills—Air conditioners can be energy gobblers in the summer. If your bills are unusually high, your system may be struggling. Having a qualified technician inspect it can save you money.

• Check references—When you call a technician or service, insist on at least three names and phone numbers of recent customers with similar equipment. Call these customers and ask questions, including if they would use the technician or service again.

REAL ESTATE

Average Selling Prices Up

Single Homes, Condo Sales Record Hot

Real estate sales of single-family detached homes and condominiums continue to set records throughout the state after three record-breaking years.

Even on the South Shore where the number of single-family homes dipped from 812 last year to 798 for the first quarter this year, demand is still strong, said Richard Lannon, president of the South Shore Association of Realtors and president of Success Real Estate.

Condominium sales for the first quarter on the South Shore increased significantly, up from 105 last year to 178 condominiums for the first quarter this year, a whopping 64.3 percent improvement.

According to statistics compiled by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors, the average selling price for a single-family home during the first quarter of 1999 was $214,141, compared to $192,386 during the same period last year, which represents an 11.3 percent hike.

The average selling price for a condominium on the South Shore increased only slightly during the first quarter, rising 1.2 percent from $118,426 to $119,847.

Statewide, according to MAR, real estate sales were booming during the first quarter. A total of 9,268 home sales were consummated during the first quarter, a jump of 9.7 percent from the first quarter of 1998 when 8,447 homes were sold. The average home sale statewide was 7.8 percent higher too, rising from $208,888 to $225,187.

As for condominium sales, 2,420 condos were sold during the first quarter of 1999, an increase of 37.7 percent. The average selling price statewide rose from $123,928 to $239,104 during the first quarter, a jump of 12.2 percent.

Lannon said the first quarter is usually the slowest quarter of the year, when offers of purchase are being made in November, December and January, a time when homebuyers are busy with holiday celebrations and then are preoccupied with the depth of winter.

He said market indications another strong spring, just like the past two spring seasons.

A slow, steady appreciation of real estate values, a strong demand from the buyer, a healthy stock market and low interest rate mortgages are the key factors contributing to the robust market, he said.

"The seasonal slowdown that takes place during most winters simply didn't occur this year," said MAR President James Dougherty, commenting on the statewide sales figures.

"Foot traffic from buyers has been heavy nearly every weekend since last fall, and for much of the time, homes have been selling at a rate that more closely resembles the typical spring market."

Two other ingredients fueling the market are consumer confidence and higher wages.

"The current period of economic prosperity that we're enjoying has not only created a sense of hope and optimism, it has provided the financial means for many young families to enter the housing market," Dougherty said.

With low vacancy rates in the rental market driving up rents, many first-time buyers are discovering they can own a home for about the same amount of what it costs to rent on a monthly basis, Dougherty said. This explains in part why condo sales are high, he said.

QCAP Holding First-Time Homebuyers Workshop

The Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., a MFHA and HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold another First Time Homebuyer's Workshop Saturday, June 12 and June 19.

The workshop will be held at the Roche Brothers supermarket, 101 Falls Blvd., Quincy, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.. Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to qualify for the many different mortgage options available through the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs and other financing options.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within your budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program for your needs. Advanced registration is required and space is limited. The fee for the workshop is $36.

For more information and registration forms, call Deborah Mullan at (617) 479-8181, ext. 172.

This workshop is sponsored by the Department of Housing and Community Development.

Will You Get Your Next Mortgage Online?

(DM)—We soon might be able to say good-bye to the time consuming, paper-laden experience that many of us face when buying a home. America's seemingly insatiable love affair with the Internet seems set to simplify how we get our mortgage financing.

Many real estate industry analysts think the process of buying a home, and paying for it, increasingly will take place online. Scores of real estate agencies have posted sites on the World Wide Web to promote listed homes for sale. Now, a handful but growing number of lenders are accepting applications sent across the Web or submitted by e-mail. Already, some will preapprove prospective borrowers based on those electronic applications.

But as the Internet and the World Wide Web continue their remarkable growth — industry forecasts predict that 100 million Americans will have online access by the end of this year — will we ever see the day in which the entire mortgage process takes place in cyberspace?

"The trend is inevitable. Not only the initial mortgage applications but also loan closings will take place electronically," says Joseph J. Murin, president of Pittsburgh, Pa. based Lender's Service, Inc. (LSI), the nation's leading provider of appraisal, title and closing management products and services. "The cost savings, the convenience and the ease of use are the compelling factors that will pull the mortgage industry online. Consumers will demand it."

LSI recently pushed the trend along with the unveiling of

"@PV=", the company's automated property valuation product.

For a bank or other mortgage lender, a critical stage in the mortgage process is affixing a value on the property being considered for financing. Traditionally, property valuations are handled by independent appraisers, who both visit the property and factor in such statistics as recent neighborhood transactions and property replacement costs.

LSI's @PV replaces those time-consuming tasks with an automated system that electronically gathers data — such as information from a county tax assessor's office — and then automatically analyzes it. The result is a property valuation that is made available electronically to a mortgage lender in minutes, as opposed to days.

"Online technology is changing how we live our lives," says Murin. "And because buying and financing a home are among the most common of life events, this revolution will impact a lot of people."

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Working For Safer Schools

When crime, drugs, and violence spill over from the streets into the schools, providing a safe involvement becomes increasingly difficult. More students carry weapons for protection. Violence becomes an acceptable way to settle conflicts.

When this happens, children cannot learn and teachers cannot teach.

Creating a safe place where children can learn and grow depends on a partnership among students, parents, teachers, and other community institutions to prevent school violence.

- Find out how crime threatens school in your community
- Take action to protect children
- Promote non-violent ways to manage conflict

How do these ideas translate into action? Here are some practical suggestions for young people, parents, school staff, and others in the community.

STUDENTS

- Settle arguments with words, not fists or weapons. Learn how if you don't know how
- Don't carry any type of weapons to school
- Report crimes or suspicious activities to police, school authorities, or parents.
- Tell a school official immediately if you see another student with a weapon.
- Tell a teacher, parent, or trusted adult if you're worried about a bully or threats of violence by another student.
- Learn safe routes for traveling to and from school and stick to them. Know good places to seek help.
- Don't use alcohol or other drugs, and stay away from places and people associated with them.
- Get involved in your school's anti-violence activities - have a poster contest against violence, hold anti-drug rallies, volunteer to counsel peers. If there's no program at your school, help start one.

Proposed Budget $165.5 Million

week to help secure federal assistance in financing the hospital affiliation. He said he may also meet with Rep. William Delahunt.

"We're continuing to work with different people at the state level too. We're getting closer all the time," Sheets said, adding that he hopes to have a deal with the federal and state agencies within the next four weeks.

He said the supplemental budget probably will be presented to the City Council after July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year, but well before the tax rate is set, which occurs sometime in November.

Earlier, Sheets said the city would have to provide about $4.435 million, give or take $50,000, to offset the hospital debt and would propose that about half, or $2.256 million, be raised through an increase in the tax rate. The balance, or about $2.104 million, would come from various state revenues, such as the lottery.

Should the hospital close, there would be a drastic financial impact because the city would have to finance the hospital deficit immediately, rather than absorb the losses over a period of the next six years.

Councillor-at-large Timothy Cahill said he had no problem with the mayor submitting a supplemental budget to address the financial needs of Quincy Hospital in a separate appropriation request. "The numbers are there; we know the numbers," he said.

Those numbers include funds for malpractice insurance, legal fees to accomplish the affiliation with Boston Medical Center and a payment to Citizens Bank which issued the hospital a $7 million line of credit to keep the hospital in operation.

Cahill, who is chairman of the finance committee, scheduled budget hearings June 1, 2 and 3, with a June 28 date targeted for a final vote on the budget.

Sheets said 90 percent of the budget reflects increases in fixed costs, such as water and sewer assessments, retirement funding and employee benefits. He said the budget also includes the recently bargained contractual obligations to the city's employees, adding that an appropriation of $620,000 has been requested as a reserve for those unions that have yet to settle their contracts.

The Quincy Education Association and the Quincy firefighters are still negotiating with the city for new contracts. Members of the Quincy Education Association recently rejected the city's offer, but negotiations are expected to resume when attorneys from both sides can find a mutually agreeable date.

Quincy Hospital's Stereotactic Biopsy Equipment Helps Patients

The Quincy Hospital Simon C. Fireman Imaging Center for Women has enhanced its state-of-the-art mammography machine with new stereotactic equipment which allows the radiologist to perform needle biopsies of the breast if there is a suspicious lump detected during a mammogram.

The breast biopsy is performed in the mammography suite and many patients can avoid a surgical biopsy.

Delphine Lui, MD, who performs the breast biopsies, specializes in all aspects of breast imaging, including mammography, ultrasound, and MRI. Dr. Lui reads the mammograms immediately and provides information directly to patients. If a follow-up ultrasound or other mammography views are needed, the doctor can perform them right away.

All of the Center's radiologists are certified by the American Board of Radiology and the staff is comprised of female technologists certified by the American Registry of Radiological Technologists. The breast care team includes physicians, oncologists, surgeons, radiation oncologists, pathologists, nursing staff, radiological technologists, mammography and sonography technologists.

Local philanthropist Simon C. Fireman donated $500,000 in 1996 to create the Center, which includes both mammography and ultrasound services, and is designed to enhance the privacy and comfort patients.

Sound Advice For Keeping Voice Healthy

Whether it's from overuse, a nasty cold or screaming at a rock concert, at one time or another everyone has "lost" his or her voice.

Ann Kearney, MS, director of New England Medical Center's New England Voice Center, offers the following tips to keep your voice clear and strong:

- Drink plenty of water to hydrate the vocal folds, at least eight glasses a day. Moisture and steam are also excellent for the voice.
- Avoid irritants that dry vocal folds such as smoke, heavy alcohol use, chemicals and excessive air conditioning.
- Avoid medications that have drying effects, such as antihistamines, inhalants, aspirin, diuretics and mentholated cough drops.

- Avoid screaming, shouting or speaking in extreme pitches.

- Limit harsh, spicy foods, citrus fruits, salt and dairy products. Avoid eating less than two hours before bedtime.

- Avoid throat clearing and coughing. If you need to clear your throat, swallow hard or drink water.

- Avoid taking in noisy places, around machinery or when listening to loud music.

- Avoid talking when you have an upper respiratory infection, such as a cold.

- If possible have proper humidity in your home, especially in the winter.

Smoking Cessation Program Begins May 25 At Quincy Hospital

Bay State Community Services will conduct a free six-week smoking cessation program from 6 to 7 p.m. at Quincy Hospital, 114 Whitwell St., on Tuesday evenings beginning May 25.

175 Compete In 'Best Ever' Senior Olympics

The 17th annual Quincy Senior Olympics concluded this week with the final competition—Senior "All Stars" versus Mayor's "Celebrity" Team—on Monday and the Awards Ceremony on Tuesday.

Organizers called this year's Games a tremendous success.

"City-wide participation, enthusiastic senior competitions, generous and encouraging site hosts, fair weather, reconnected friendships, and an extraordinary corps of volunteers produced a better than ever Senior Olympics Week," said Sharron Beals, executive director of Beechwood Community Life Center and a member of the Senior Olympics Planning Team. "Even the weather was perfect!"

One hundred and seventy-five seniors from Quincy and the South Shore area competed this year. Over 250 medals were awarded a host of athletic competitions.

The oldest competitor was George Conway, age 96, of Milton. Lillian McLaughlin, 93, of Cohasset, was the most senior woman.

Primary Olympic sponsors, Quincy Hospital and Bay State Community Services, were identified on the bright blue Olympic shirts worn by senior competitors throughout the week-long event. Other supporters included Quincy Rotary, River Bay Club and Marina Place.

"The generosity, hospitality and encouragement of special site hosts means so much to the Senior Olympians," said Mary Gougian, director of Beechwood's Senior Services and chairwoman of Senior Olympics Planning Committee.

"President's Golf Course, Olindy's, Shooter's and Torre Dei Passeri hosted wonderful events. The city sites (Veterans' Memorial Stadium, McCoy Field, Lincoln Hancock Pool) were readied to perfection. Spectators and volunteers cheered at all 19 competitions," she said.

Seniors competed in golf, one-mile walks, bowling, billiards, darts, swimming, bocce, three-mile walk, horseshoe pitching, basketball free throw, one-mile run, half-mile walk, softball throw, running long jump, standing long jump, javelin throw, shot put and softball and volleyball team competitions.

"Youthful fans and volunteers contributed so much this year," Beals said. More than 50 young people assisted including Emergency Management volunteer workers with Tony Siciliano, Eastern Nazarene College students of Professor Janet Lanham and Ned Vankevich, NQHS Color Guard, B.C. High School student aids and Quincy Recreation Department student staff.

Beechwood preschoolers, toddlers and even infants in wheeled buggies cheered

Chiropractic's Dave Jaehnig Hurls No-Hitter In Debut

Dave Jaehnig made his first start on the mound this year a memorable one as he fired a no-hitter against previously undefeated Beacon Sports in Junior League play.

He retired the first 17 batters he faced, striking out 12, and only a last inning, two-out walk to Matt Rhode spoiled his bid for a perfect game.

Chris Marinelli supplied most of the offense for Jaehnig Chiropractics 2-0 victory as he blasted his fourth home run of the season to go along with an RBI single.

Jaehnig helped his own cause with a single, a stolen base and a run scored while Kevin Donovan, Jonathan O'Connor and Nick Al-Khatib all hit safely.

John Fitzgerald, Matt Jaehnig and Marinelli made nice defensive plays to preserve the no-hitter.

Don Sandomato was the hard/luck losing pitcher as he struck out six for Beacon Sports. Evan Harrington was solid behind the plate and David Guerriero and Paul Lennon played well.

In other games:
Burgin Platner - 8
Jaehnig Club - 5

For Bugin-Platner-Hurley, Mike Powers led the way with three hits, including two doubles and 5 RBI. Also hitting well were Tony Peppjonovich (3 for 3, 3 RBI); Bobby Newcomb (2 hits, solid behind the plate).

Justin Thorley had a great outing, striking out nine in six innings and contributing a double and single at the plate. Also playing well was Pat Malone in the field along with Jimmy Fitzpatrick and Kevin Adams.

Burgin Platner defeated the Jaehnig club, 8-5, to knock them from the unbeaten ranks. Michael Powers was three-for-three with five RBI to pace the offense while Justin Thorley struck out nine and scattered seven hits to pick up the complete game victory. Tony Peppjonovich (two hits, two RBI) and Bob Newcomb (single) had strong games offensively and defensively.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Big Mo Al-Khatib cracked two doubles while his brother, Nicholas, had a double and a single to fuel a late Jaehnig rally. David Jaehnig (double), Chris Marinelli (single) and Kevin Donovan (single) cracked out base hits while Mike O'Mahoney laid down a beautiful sacrifice bunt.

Matt Tobin and Kevin Donovan pitched super in relief roles to keep the game close. Jim Gorrigan, Robbie Dolbec and Jonathan Allen continued their flawless defensive play.

Kiwanis - 5
Burke Club - 2
In a 5-2 win over the Burke Club, Quincy Kiwanis pitcher Billy Dwyer earned his first victory throwing a 3-hitter while fanning 13. Zack Eaton took the loss, allowing seven hits while whiffing 15.

Mike McPherson was the offensive star for Kiwanis with a bunt single and a triple. Andy Patton collected a single and a triple. Mike O'Mahoney belted a tremendous homerun to centerfield. Jared Tucker made an outstanding catch on a hard line drive to end the game.

For Burke Club, Frank McKenna tripled and Wendall Cosgrove was solid in the field.

Kiwanis - 17
Police - 9
Kiwanis scored in every inning but the fourth. Dennis Layden was the winning pitcher and struck out six batters.

Mike O'Mahoney led the hit parade with 4 hits. Andy Patton, Dennis Layden and Nick Falbo had 3 hits each while Dewey Donovan and Mike MacPherson each had 2 hits.

Andy Patton led off the first inning with a homerun. Nick Puopolo also had a 2-run homer in the first inning. Mike O'Mahoney had a double and triple among his four hits.

Contributing great defensive plays were Teddy Finnegan, Mike MacPherson and Anny Patton.

For Police, Corey Winn, Dennis Migaldi and Kevin Richardson each had 2 hits. Kevin Richardson blasted a three-run homer in the first inning and also connected for a triple.

Turning in terrific plays in the field were Kevin Bossart, Mike Crifo, Brendan Mulcahy, John Kurpeski and Eric Kenny.

Rotary - 4

Beacon Sporting Goods remains undefeated (4-0-1) with a 10-4 win over Rotary behind good pitching from Robert Baker (3 strikeouts) and Paul Lennon (5 strikeouts). Ten-year-old Joe Morris hit well. Joey Cafano, Evan Harrington, Dean Sandomato, and Matt Rhode had multiple hits for Beacon.

For Rotary, James Spellman played well and Moses Lynn hit a homerun. S.S. Buick - 7

Burgin/Platner - 2
Two-time defending city champions South Shore Buick upped its round to 5-2 with two victories.

Pitcher John Folino paced Buick to victory while improving his season's statistics: 4 complete games, 39 strikeouts, 2 walks, 1.00 earned run average. Buick is also lead by three other 12-year-olds: Matt Haskins, Paul Graham and Mike Arafat who have all contributed offensively and defensively.

New coach John Ridge said the team has adjusted to his coaching style and they are now playing some of their best baseball.

Other key members include 11-year-old Shawa Lynch and John Ridge, Jr. Even the new 10-year-olds have come up big in certain situations.

Jason Purves Pitches No-Hitter For Quincy P.A.L.

Jason Purves pitched a no-hitter as Quincy P.A.L. blanked Flavin & Flavin 13-0 in recent Triple A Youth Baseball League action.

Fireballer Purves retired 18 of 19 batters he faced, including 14 strikeouts. The only runner for Flavin & Flavin came via a walk in the fourth inning, and only got as far as second base.

It was a team effort as the defense was flawless in the field with no errors to help Jason earn the shutout with a nice play from shortstop Domenic Poli and 4 putouts by first baseman John Grillo who also added 2 hits and 2 runs scored.

Alex Hardy, just off the disabled list, reached base 4 times to help the offense. Peter Grillo scored a run, and Steve Yovino caught the no-hitter, and added a double and a triple.

For Flavin & Flavin, James Sheehan and Sean Morrissey pitched well, and Dan Murphy hit the ball hard and played well.

In other games:

Local 2222 - 4

Yellow Cab's Brian Donelin and Brendan Clifford combined on a 6-hitter to cruise past Local 2222. Justin Boyd, Mark Peppjonovich and Mike McNulty sparked the offense and Mike Ainsley hit a tremendous homerun for Yellow Cab.

Paul Farina pitched well for Local 2222, striking out 12.

Quincy D.A.R.E. - 10

Yellow Cab came from behind to defeated Quincy D.A.R.E., 13-10. Mark Peppjonovich, Chris O'Brien and Brian Donelin all had 3-hit games while Mark Ainsley and Justin Boyd had 2 hits apiece. Boyd and Brendan Carey kept the game close with some solid defense in the infield. Brendan Clifford pitched the final 3 innings allowing only 1 run for the win.

For D.A.R.E., John Dalquist, Brian O'Dea and Erik Smith all had 2 hits while Smith pitched 4 strong innings.

Locker Room - 16

John Murray, in his pitching debut, picked up the win striking out 6 along the way. He also reached base 3 times and scored 3 runs. John Grillo also had a good day reaching base 3 times and also scoring 3 runs.

TRIPLE A

Jason Purves went 4 for 4 at the plate, driving in 6 runs. David Cordiero received the game ball for a couple of nice plays at third base and hitting the ball hard each time up, picking up a hit and run scored. CNA - 17
Kenny's Lock - 3

CNA snapped a 2-game slump breaking out against Kenny's Lock. Sean Tobin walked 3 times and scored 3 runs. S. O'Neil had 2 hits and scored 3 times, and caught a good game. R. Likas had a triple and single, scoring 2 runs.

Harman Losi had 2 hits and scored 3 times. S. Graham and Jeff Hague walked once and were solid in the field. J. Verrochi singled and scored while Chris Garvey had 2 hits and scored twice.

But the big story for CNA was the pitching performance of Kellan Posi who fanned 18 and had 4 hits.

J. Fulti pitched a good game for Kenny's Lock. S. Salvatore scored and singled while D. Rackauskas had a good game in the field.

CNA got its second solid start Saturday with a tremendous outing from Chris Garvey. Chris had a no-hitter going against D.A.R.E. and struck out 13 in his pitching debut. He also had 2 hits and scored twice.

S. Graham walked 3 times and scored once. S. O'Neil had 2 hits, scored twice and threw out 3 runners in a great outing behind the plate. K. Losi had 2 hits and scored twice. H. Losi had 2 hits and scored twice.

S. Tobin walked and scored. A. Creadon walked and was solid in the field. M. Puleo had 2 hits and scored twice. J. Petkus had a big double. J. Verrochi was DH and hit the ball hard 4 times. J. Hague had a hit and played first base well.

Erik Smith pitched well for D.A.R.E. John Dalquist was strong running the bases. Daniel Mulligan caught a good game for D.A.R.E.

Kenny's Lock - 15
Yellow Cab - 6

Dennis Rackauskas

pitched four innings fanning six and collected three hits for Kenny's Lock. Steve Salvatore had 3 hits and Dan Owens added 2 hits.

For Yellow Cab, Chris O'Brien singled three times; Mike Ainsley drove in a run with a single. Brian Domelin smacked a 2-run homer and John Heurth pitched 2 strong innings.

Kenny's Lock - 17

Johnny Magliozzi came through with a clutch hit in the bottom of the sixth inning with bases loaded and two outs to drive in the winning run. Tom Pasquantonio, John Mulvey, and Mike Brundridge all had a strong game.

Locker Room - 16

The Locker Room stuck together and rallied in the lat inning only to come up short. Patt Dunn, John Mulvey and Tom Pasquantonio played well in a losing effort.

CHA - 10
Flavin & Flavin - 8

Consumer Home Mortgage rallied in the last inning on timely hitting. Kevin Cornell tripled and Brian Sorensen had his second homerun of the game. Jim Carita made it home on a walk with heads up base stealing in one play. The win brings CHA to a 3-3 record.

Playing well for Flavin & Flavin were second baseman Jonathan Eaton and first baseman James Sheehan who turned a double play. Justin Zahreddine played well.

Local 2222 - 16

Ben Kelleher went 4 for 4, pitched three innings and played great at first base making the final out catching a fly ball in foul territory. James Christie made a game-saving catch in left field. Ten-year-old James Vey played 3 solid innings behind the plate. Matt Pryer also caught 3 solid innings in a close up and down game with Pat Pryer shutting down 2222 in the last 3 innings for his third win.

Playing well for Local 2222 were infielder Tom McKenna, Matt Palmer who had 3 hits and a walk; and Robbie Gardner who drove in 2 runs with a double.

Kerri Limousine Opens Title Defense With Victory

Kerri Limousine, defending city champions of the Quincy Youth Softball Dorothy Quincy division, opened its title defense with a decisive 17-10 victory over Quincy D.A.R.E.

With 8 new players on its roster Kerri has a new look but the same old power. Leading the way at the plate was Kristin Grazioso who went 5-for-5 with 2 doubles; Brilene Faberty went 3-for-3 and Beth Goodrich reached base 6 times and scored 5 runs. Caitlyn Miller, Alicia Dwyer and Michele Murray all added to Kerri's hitting attack.

Pitching in her first game in the D.Q. division, Casey

Hannon held the D.A.R.E. team to just 3 runs while fanning 4 batters in 3 innings of work.

For D.A.R.E., Elizabeth Leary, Courtney Hall, Olivia Lynn and Aileen Crook all played well. Briana Nolan and Stephanie Tetreault's pitching held Kerri's attack at bay.

BABE RUTH

Elks Undefeated

The Elks remained undefeated at 5-0 in Babe Ruth Baseball after defeating Quincy Police 7-4 and Golden Print, 11-2.

Brian O'Hanley was the complete game winner against Police, scattering 10 hits while fanning five. Dan Duggan led the Elks offense collecting three hits. Steve Reardon added two hits including a triple while T.K. Kelly had two RBI.

For Police, Joey Fitzpatrick tripled and homered and John Mateau had two hits.

Pat Bregoli notched his third win of the season limiting Golden Print to two hits over seven innings and striking out eight. Justin Hall cracked three hits and added two RBI. Joey Priscella added a double and a triple. O'Hanley and Kelly also had two hits each.

Jeff Narbonne tripled and Matt Germain singled for the only Golden Print hits. Steve Pizzi sparked in the field.

In other games:

Morrisette - 5

The Elks' Chris Ham drove in the winning run in the bottom of the seventh. Ham's third RBI of the game scored Brian O'Hanley, who had led off the inning with a single to center. Steve Reardon and Pat Bregoli combined to limit Morrisette to three hits.

The Elks were led offensively by O'Hanley and Justin Hall, who had 2 hits apiece and Ryan Tobin and Eric McGinnis who also had hits.

Morrisette had hits from James LaFleur, Mike Cafano and Jimmy Johnson.

Golden Print - 3

Houghs Neck picked up its first victory of the young season by defeating Golden Print, 7-3. Greg McGinness was the winning pitcher, surrendering 3 runs in the first inning then throwing shutout ball the rest of the way.

Greg McGinness and Mike Feeham each had a triple and a single. Keith Austin, Tim Watson and Shawn Gibbons had 2 hits apiece.

Chris Dolbeare played a strong defensive game for Houghs Neck. O'Connell and Duff each had a double

Fire - 0

Barry's Ryan Rogers pitched five scoreless innings to notch his first win of the year. Leading the offense were P.J. Valenueva (single, 3 doubles, 3 RBI), Charlie Vidoli (3 hits, 3 runs, 2 RBI), Jordan Virtue (double, triple), Walter Perry (3 runs scored, 3 RBI), and Brain Lee (2 runs scored). Tom Callanan and Nick Leger each played well defensively for the winners.

Jordan Virtue's eighth inning double scored Ryan Rogers to lift Barry's over Golden Print in extra innings. The game was highlighted by strong pitching and defense.

Barry's starting pitcher Phil McGillicuddy hurled seven strong innings, striking out six and allowing three unearned runs. His performance was matched by the pitching of Paul McAteer who pitched six scoreless innings after spotting Barry's three runs in the first inning.

Walter Perry set the side down in order in the eighth to get the victory. Virtue, Rogers and Perry turned a triple play for Barry's in the second inning. Also playing well defensively for Barry's were shortstop Charlie Vidoli and centerfielder Billy Cosgrove.

Golden Print third baseman Pat Duff had two hits and knocked in the tying run in the fifth inning. Matt Germain and Danny DiNardo played excellent defense for Golden Print.

Local - 5

Ryan Rogers went the distance pitching seven strong innings and helped his own cause by getting two hits and scoring two runs. Michael Merlis and Pat O'Brien each scored a run in Barry's seven-run first inning. Barry's defense was lead by outfielders Jimmy Devlin, Mike DeAngelo and Billy Cosgrove.

Brendan McDonald pitched five strong innings of relief, while Ben Bell's double, triple and 2 RBI and Domenic Delgado's double helped Local climb back into the game.

base, scooping two balls out of the dirt with a nice stretch.

Jessica Loud made a perfect throw to third to get a baserunner.

Steve Mansfield CPA ran its win streak to four with a 17-2 victory over Everlasting Engraving. Stephanie Wilson was the winning pitcher. Rachael Sorenson pitched well in defeat.

For Mansfield, Kelli Nogler was 3 for 4, Maury Rogers was 3 for 3 and Cassie Herd was 2 for 3. Courtney Riley has a double. In the field, Danielle Rogers played a strong game as catcher, throwing out a baserunner at second. Megan Sidorowicz had a good catch in the field.

Everlasting's Liz Campbell was 2 for 2 with a double and Courtney Allen was 2 for 4. Courtney Rand was solid at shortstop. Catcher Courtney Allen made a great catch from behind homeplate.

In a 21-9 win over South Shore Buick, Mansfield's Stephanie Whalen got the win fanning three and walking five. Julia McGunigle has two hits, Courtney Riley was 4 for 5 with two triples; and Danielle Rogers was 3 for 5.

Michelle Repucci played well in centerfield and Maury Rogers played well in leftfield. Courtney Riley caught a line drive down the third base line.

For Buick, Shannon Payne has three hits, including a homerun and double. Kelly Powers was also 3 for 3 with a triple and a double. Jess Powers played well at third and Kristen Paluzzi was solid at second base.

Imaginative Big Win

Imaginative Insurance began its defense of the Quincy International Youth Baseball crown with an impressive 29-1 win over Greuber and Davis, 29-1.

Returning coach Jimmy

Abdou said the team has the potential to be the best in the city again.

Shawn Richardson struck out 13 while Brian French and George Camia swung some big bats to power the offense.

Senior Olympian competitors. Beechwood volunteers assisted at all events.

Events concluded earlier this week. In the much anticipated volleyball game, the Senior Olympian "All Stars" won two of three games to defeat Mayor Sheets and his "Celebrity" team and retain the championship trophy.

Tuesday's night's awards ceremony was a festive finale for a "best ever" Senior Olympics Week!

The Olympic Planning Committee expresses congratulations to Senior Olympians and appreciation for city-wide support and help. The Quincy Sun, WJDA and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association promoted and covered the events. Thanks also to John Black of Presidential Camera who photographed the events.

The Planning Committee includes Chairwoman Mary Gougian, Recreation Director Barry Welch, Athletic Director Bill Walker, Council of Aging Director Brian Buckley, and Sharon Beals, Beechwood on the Bay.

Quincy Hospital Golf, Tennis Tournament

Quincy Hospital will hold its 10th annual golf and tennis tournament Monday, May 24 at the Cohasset Golf Club.

A Thought For The Week

Someone once said that the greatest need for a vast number of churchgoers is not more spiritual food but more spiritual exercise. . . . Millions of people attend church every Sunday, listen to the most commendable sentiments expressed from the pulpit, give silent, or audible consent, and then leave the church and do not do anything about the truth they have listened to and approved.

As Jesus sent out his disciples He said to them: "As ye go, preach. . . . Only a comparatively few people are ordained to the preaching ministry, but every Christian believer is supposed to preach. Not necessarily, of course, by gathering a group of people around him and addressing a sermon to them, but rather by his way of life preaching Christian faith, joy and fellowship.

A man's actions and attitude constitute the most effective sermon he can deliver. Yes, the greatest sermon a man ever preaches, whether he be a minister or a layman, consists not of the words he utters, but the life he lives.

Couldn't it be said that if the lives we lead have serious flaws, these flaws are serious also, and they reflect very little credit upon us and do little good to others? . . . Emerson was right when he said that what we are speaks louder than what we say . . .

Federal, state and local officials were among some 125 invited guests at the Naval Reserve Center in Quincy for the first CERT (Community Emergency Response Team) graduation class held recently.

CERT is part of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency, Youth Services and Explorer Post 1 - Boy Scouts of America. The team is comprised of students from the middle and high schools, special needs students, adults and parents. They completed the training course which was given by certified instructors from the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency and the Bridgewater Fire Department.

CERT training program was funded through a grant from the Massachusetts Service Alliance. The CERT class started in January and concluded in April. The students attended class every other Friday from 3 to 6 p.m.

The CERT concept was developed and implemented by the City of Los Angeles Fire Department in 1985. They recognized that citizens would very likely be on their own during the early stages of a catastrophic disaster. Accordingly, LAFD decided that some basic training in disaster survival and rescue skills would improve the ability of citizens to survive until responders or other assistance could arrive.

The Whittier Narrows earthquake in 1987 underscored the area-wide threat of a major disaster in California. Further, it confirmed the need for training civilians to meet immediate emergency needs.

As a result, the LAFD created the Disaster Preparedness Division with the purpose of training citizens in the CERT concept. As of 1993, more than 8,000 people and 225 teams had been trained.

The training program LAFD initiated proved to be so beneficial that the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) felt the concept and the program should be made available to communities nationwide. The Emergency Management Institute (EMI), in cooperation with the LAFD, has expanded the CERT materials to make them applicable to all hazards.

The training goal is preparing people to help people. Seeing the value of CERT, FEMA supports the training of local CERT teams across the nation. These teams can assist with saving lives and protecting property in the event of a major disaster.

CERT training is designed to prepare you to help yourself, your family, and your neighbors in the event of a catastrophic disaster. Training covers basic skills that are important to know in a disaster when emergency services are not available.

Quincy's Deputy Director of Emergency Management, Tony Siciliano, the deputy directors and the junior management thank everyone who helped make the CERT program a success.

Major James Sheets congratulated all the graduates and extended greetings to federal, state and local officials, family, relatives and friends on behalf of the citizens of Quincy.

CRITIC'S CORNER

LIFE: You would think a movie which pairs comedic geniuses Eddie Murphy and Martin Lawrence would be a real yuck-a-minute deal. You'd be wrong. Yes, there are funny moments, but this is NOT a comedy.

Murphy and Lawrence star as Ray Gibson and Claude Banks, two men who meet while out on the town in 1932 in a Harlem nightclub. (Remember, those were the glory days of Harlem.) Gibson and Banks both owe money to the local hood, Spanky Johnson (Rick James). Spanky is in no mood to wait for his cash, so he takes the men down to a pier where he intends to murder them.

Now poor Claude is not your typical lowlife. He's about to start a new job as a bank teller. It's Ray who would be the more likely one to get embroiled in such a mess, and it's Ray who can get both out of it. Talking fast, he convinces Spanky not to kill them by offering to run bootleg whiskey up to New York from Mississippi. Down in Mississippi, they somehow wind up in an alley with a dead man. They didn't kill the guy, but they got framed for the murder anyway. Ultimately, they're sentenced to a life of hard labor.

Their prison adventures revolve around several escape attempts, encounters with a mute convict (Bokeem Woodbine), and the men's affair with the prison superintendent's blonde daughter. As time goes by and history plays out, Ray and Claude are somehow frozen in place. They are unsatisfied by anything happening in the outside world. However, they are not static. They grow and mature as they handle each new experience.

In this well-done flick, Murphy and Lawrence prove they're more than just comedians. It's worth a trip to the theater!

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Immediate happiness depends on your ability to adapt to change. You don't need to understand everything that is happening; you just need to accept it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) People take a special interest in you, and you are ready to reciprocate. It may be worthwhile to take an emotional risk, without fearing the aftermath.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Pay attention to your own needs and ignore outside distractions. There is too much going on in your head for you to have time for anyone else.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Analyze a situation before becoming a part of it. There is a potential for great success or miserable failure, but middle ground is not an option.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Be honest with yourself and ones you love. Stay away from mind games and the people who play them; these games won't make you happy in the long run.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The outcome of an interaction depends on the things which are said rather than the tone in which you say them. Focus on substance not appearance.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You feel oddly detached from emotional cares and concerns. Communication is still a challenge, but it doesn't bother you as much anymore.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A project which has been unfinished for a while needs your attention. Take charge, finish things and then check everyone else's work for mistakes.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) If you feel that more than one thing must be done at a time, do it all! You are able to focus on many things without diluting your energy.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You feel extremely powerful in all ways - physical, emotional and mental. Your power is apparent; everyone who watches you is aware of it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Concentrate on process and don't worry about achieving huge results. Do things right the first time so that you don't have to backtrack.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Don't make any declarations or commitments which might come back to haunt you. Keep your words simple and only make promises that you can keep.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK - Keeping secrets is one of your gifts - and one of your flaws. People value you as a friend and confidant because you will never gossip about them. At the same time, they wonder what's really going on in your mind. Do yourself a favor: Allow a few people to know you inside and out.

410 Affordable Housing Units In New Highpoint Plan

THIS IS THE OFFICIAL logo for Quincy's Millennium celebration. It was created by Tamara Erdley and selected by the Quincy Millennium Committee. This black and white version will be colored.

Tamara Erdley Contest Winner

Here's The Millennium Logo

The official logo for Quincy's millennium celebration has been selected.

It was created by Tamara Erdley of South Walnut St., who is employed in the public relations department at Quincy Hospital.

Her entry was chosen from 64 submitted by residents in the contest sponsored by the Quincy Millennium Committee and The Quincy Sun.

The eye-catching design's message:

QUINCY - The Next Millennium
A Proud Past...
A Strong Future

Erdley will receive a $500 savings bond and a place-along with her winning entry--in Quincy's history.

Gregory Clifford of Cummings Ave., was the second prize winner and will receive a $200 bond.

Third place went to Nick Malvesti of Hynes Ave. who will receive a $100 savings bond.

Twenty-four others

received honorable mention for their entries.

"I think it's great," said Mayor James Sheets when shown the committee's winning selection. "It says it all."

City Council President Peter Kolson, chairman of the Millennium Committee, said, the logo will appear on all millennium celebration literature and be used to officially identify all of the city's celebration events.

Sheets agreed with the committee that Erdley's creation will make a stand-out bumper sticker.

"I think we should have some made right away."

"I am so thrilled,"

Erdley said when informed her entry had

Highpoint developer Dean Stratouly, president of Congress Group Ventures, has filed a new housing plan for his 75-acre Quarry Street site which would dedicate up to 410 apartments for affordable housing.

"The application we are making today to the zoning Board of Appeals will come in at 1,641 units, which is essentially the number that was submitted originally to the City Council," Stratouly said Tuesday.

He said the Federal Home Loan Bank's New England Fund Program gave preliminary approval for the estimated $175 million to $210 million development on the site.

Fleet Bank, which is a lender for the federal program, notified Stratouly it would be pleased to process a loan application for construction financing after he secures the necessary permits and approvals. Fleet provided a $6.5 million mortgage to DDFA Associates, LLC, an affiliation of Congress Group Ventures, to acquire the property.

During the 1800s and early 1900s, the land had been mined for granite; after quarrying operations ceased during the 1930s, the quarries were filled with household refuse and demolition debris.

In 1986 the site had been approved for affordable housing development under a comprehensive permit but the project was not developed, and during the 1970s, the Kavanos Company had obtained permits to build a 2,500-unit development.

The new design calls for constructing 15 eight-story buildings which would contain the mixed-income apartments and preserving more than 50 acres, about two-thirds of the site, as open space, with walking trails, common recreation facilities and a buffer zone of woods to separate Highpoint from the neighboring houses.

The recreation facilities would include a swimming pool, tennis courts, exercise rooms and a meeting space for the residents.

Trade Union Seeks Conflict Complaint Against Cahill

The Building and Construction Trades Council, which had been counting on 2,000 jobs during the construction of Highpoint, has gone to court seeking a criminal complaint against councillor-at-large Timothy Cahill, alleging conflict of interest.

Attorney Jeffrey Allen said he applied for a criminal complaint on behalf of the council, alleging a violation of the state ethics law, in Quincy District Court last Wednesday.

"I'm disappointed and angry, both at the unions and at [Dean] Stratouly," Cahill said, when reached at his Dedham office where he serves as Norfolk County

Naval Reserve Commander Keynote Speaker

Memorial Day Parade, Ceremonies Monday

The annual Quincy Memorial Day Parade and exercises will be held Monday, May 31 beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Keynote speaker at the service following the parade will be Commander Paul Molloy, United States Naval Reserve commanding officer, Naval Reserve Center in Quincy.

Commander Molloy, a 1976 graduate of Louisiana State University, was commissioned an Ensign in August, 1977, following graduation from the Officer Candidate School at Naval Education and Training Center, Newport, R.I.

Assigned to the combat stores ship USS San Jose, homeported in Alameda, Calif., Commander Molloy served as Combat Information Center Officer, Navigator and Administrative Officer. During his tour aboard the San Jose, while deployed twice to the Western Pacific, he was involved in battle group operations in the Indian Ocean during the Iranian Crisis and participated in the rescue of more than 150 Vietnamese "Boat People" off the coast of Malaysia.

Following graduation from Department Head School, Commander Molloy was assigned to the USS Hewitt, homeported in San Diego, Calif., where he served as Operations Officer and was again deployed to the Western Pacific.

Ashore, Commander Molloy was assigned to the Surface Warfare Officer School at the Naval Education and Training Center, where he served as an Instructor of Combat Systems Courses. During his tenure, he was designated at Fleet Training Center, San Diego, Calif., where he qualified for a subspecialty in Training and Education Management.

Commander Molloy's next shore tour was as Commanding Officer, Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Readiness Center, Buffalo, N.Y. He was then assigned to the staff at Naval Reserve Readiness Commander Region ONE in Newport, R.I., where he served as Training Support Officer and then Assistant Chief of Staff for Manpower, Personnel and Training.

Since June 1994, Commander Molloy has been the Commanding Officer of Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Center, St. Paul, Minn., and Naval Reserve Center South Weymouth and Naval Reserve Center Quincy.

Commander Molloy earned a master of marine affairs degree from the University of Rhode Island.

He has been awarded the Navy Commendation Medal, the Meritorious Unit Commendation with two gold stars, the Battle "E" (two awards), the Navy Expeditionary Medal, the National Defense Service Medal, the Humanitarian Service Medal and the Sea Service Ribbon with two stars.

Commander Molloy and his wife, the former Eileen Bristow of West Hartford, Conn., have two children, Erin and Kevin.

The parade will step off at School St. and proceeds on Hancock St. to Codding St. to Sea St. to Mt. Wollaston Cemetery. The parade will rest in Quincy Square where wreaths will be placed on the tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

The parade marshal and honor guests will review the parade at Sea St. across from Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Memorial Day services will be held from the World War II podium, Mt. Wollaston Cemetery. The parade will disband following the services at the cemetery and go to their respective posts.

More than 20 units will march in the parade, including local veterans organizations, color guards and high school bands. Gold Star Mothers, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts as well as national, state, county and local officials will march.

After Molloy's keynote address, the roll of Quincy's deceased comrades will follow.

Parade Marshal will be Lawrence Norton, commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council. He will be assisted by Leif Thorton, Sr., vice commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council and Joseph Brooker, Jr., vice commander of the Quincy Veterans Council.

Parade chairman is Thomas Stansbury, Quincy Veterans' Services Department and past commander Quincy Veterans' Council. Co-chairman is Henry Bradley, past commander Quincy Veterans' Council and past state commander American Legion and director of Quincy Veterans' Services.

Serving as Master of Ceremonies will be Irving Isaacson, past commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council, past commander of the Jewish War Veterans Post 193, and past commander Quincy Cavanaugh Chapter 79 DAV.

Officer of the Day is David Minkofsky assisted by Thomas Eames.

The Quincy Veterans Council, which represents all Quincy veterans' organizations, is sponsoring the parade and ceremonies.

Sheets Lobbies Capitol For Hospital Funds

Mayor James Sheets is racking up frequent flyer miles as he travels nearly every week to Washington to underscore the need for federal assistance to keep Quincy Hospital open.

"I expect to go back this week," said Sheets Tuesday. "We're trying to work everything out. It's important that I meet on a weekly basis."

"They need to be kept apprised of the union negotiations. It's very important to maintain the communication links and keep the process going," said Sheets.

The three major issues regarding the hospital which are demanding much of Sheets' attention are funding, the labor issues with the unions and developing a detailed memorandum of understanding with Boston Medical Center.

"They are all moving forward in a satisfactory manner," he said.

He expects to submit a home rule petition to the city council on June 7 so that it can be approved and sent onto the Legislature.

"We cannot change the status of Quincy Hospital without a home rule petition."

"I believe a public hearing will be held June 14; that's the off-Monday from the [regularly scheduled council meetings] of June 7 and June 21, but I haven't been notified yet by the president of the City Council."

He said he did not think he would have all the financial answers at that time but would have enough answers for the council to act on a home rule petition.

"Basically, the hospital would have the answers, and Kevin Madden, who would be representing me, would have the answers and so would Jeff Doran, Quincy Hospital director, as they relate to the memorandum of understanding. But I don't think we will have all the financial answers at that time, but we will have an idea."

Sheets said in order to keep the hospital open for the next six years, he estimates $73 million will be needed for the hospital to become private and affiliate with BMC and be successful.

Those funds, he said, would be derived from all mainstream sources of revenue from the city, the state and the federal government.

He said the hospital would continue to operate at a deficit until the federal government corrects the Medicare problem.

If the hospital is forced to close, receivables would have to be paid immediately.

"The whole picture becomes complicated," said Sheets, who acknowledged for the first time that the city's development plans could be skewed.

"We would be looking at between $30 million and $35 million in hospital debt."

"That could be a major factor in whether we move forward with the schools because that kind of debt would have to be bonded. There may be ways to try to lessen that debt, but I haven't looked at that completely."

"That's a worse case scenario, and we're looking for a success," said Sheets.

Kolson Asks $500,000 For Streets, Sidewalks

City Council President Peter Kolson has asked Mayor James Sheets to increase the public works budget by $500,000 to repair more streets and sidewalks.

The public works department needs an additional crew to keep up with the demand for repairs, said Kolson.

"Although the city has done a great deal of the repair work in the past, much more work is needed," said Kolson. "The men who have made up the current crew have done a great job but are unable to keep up with the demand."

Sidewalk damage caused by uprooting trees and by work performed by utility companies have created many safety hazards, he continued, noting that there currently are more than 900 requests to repair various streets and sidewalks throughout the city.

"Our population is in peril just by walking in some of these areas," he said, and now is the time "to focus on this very important public safety issue."

MWRA Pipeline Work May Cause Discolored Water

The MWRA announced it will be conducting routine pipeline maintenance in Quincy this week through June 4.

On Monday, the MWRA began work to install a new valve for a water pipe on Beale St. between Milton and Rockwell St. The work is being done after the morning traffic peak at 9 a.m. Traffic on Beale St. will be reduced to one lane during work hours. Work may cause temporary discolored water and low water pressure.

The MWRA said that while this discolored water poses no health hazard and is safe for consumption, residents may wish to store several gallons of water for drinking and cooking purposes. In addition, residents should avoid washing white or light colored clothing in washing machines for this period of time.

For further information call MWRA Community Coordinator Michele Gillen or Ted Cosgrove at (617) 788-1170.

Public Works Awards

In celebration of National Public Works Week, several awards were presented to schools and city employees in a city hall ceremony.

As part of the observance, elementary schools participated in a banner contest and in a community project competition.

First place in the banner contest went to Squantum School, followed by the Atherton Hough School for second place and the Parker

Council Congratulates Braintree, England On 800th Anniversary

When Braintree Selectman James Sullivan and former Selectman James Galvin travel to England next month to celebrate the 800th anniversary of Braintree, County Essex, they will be carrying a city council proclamation.

Last week, Councillors-at-large Paul Harold and Francis McCauley introduced a resolution to congratulate the town of Braintree, they noted that the city of Quincy had shared the name of Braintree for 152 years, from its incorporation as a town in 1640 until 1792 when it became the town of Quincy.

Old Braintree, first settled in 1625, encompassed what is now Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook as well as Quincy.

Through Rotary International, an exchange program between the two Braintrees began in 1990, when Braintree, Massachusetts, celebrated its 350th anniversary, and 22 visitors from Braintree, England, crossed the Atlantic to help celebrate the occasion. In 1950, several Braintree, England, residents came here for Braintree's tercentenary also.

On June 14, 21 men and women from Braintree will travel to Braintree, England, to celebrate not only the 800th anniversary of the granting of a market charter to Braintree, England, in June 1199, but they also will participate in the 800th anniversary of the founding of St. Michael's Church, which the Archbishop of Canterbury will attend. A parade in the village will be held June 16.

Casino Boats And A Torpedo

Councillor Dan Raymondi would like to sink any ideas of running casino boats in and out of Quincy's waterfront.

His torpedo, he hopes, is a referendum question he is proposing for this year's city election Nov. 2.

Voters would be asked if they are in favor of using Quincy's shoreline for the arrival and departure of casino gambling boats.

That may seem like rolling the dice, not knowing what the vote would actually be. But Raymondi thinks most people in Quincy would share his concerns about gambling boats.

"And hopefully," says Raymondi, "the vote would be a resounding no! That would send a strong message that we don't want casinos floating in and out of Quincy."

Raymondi, naturally, is concerned about the Quincy Point area he represents.

The Bay Point Marina and Fore River shipyard areas would be considered ideal locations by casino promoters, he feels.

There are even reports of overtures already being made.

"But it's not just a Quincy Point issue," says Raymondi. "Squantum, Houghs Neck and Wollaston are potential target areas, too."

Casino vessels, he believes, would create social problems in the city.

"They would attract a wrong element," he says. "We want to lower the crime rate -- not raise it."

In addition to the crime issue, Raymondi points to other neighborhood concerns to be considered. Like parking and traffic and nighttime noise in the areas in which the vessels would come and go.

Raymondi introduced the ballot question at last week's city council meeting and it was tabled at the request of Councillor Paul Harold who wants to take a closer look at it.

HAROLD

Raymondi says he will move to have the matter taken off the table at the council's next meeting June 7.

City Clerk Joseph Shea says the question could go on the ballot either by a vote of the council or a voter petition.

"A simple majority vote by the council (five votes) would put it on this year's ballot," he says.

Shea says it would have to be done by July 27 which is the last day for candidates to file nomination papers.

Raymondi is encouraged that voters in Hull last week rejected casino boats operating in that town.

"I would like to see it killed in Quincy, too,"

Raymondi says. "Killed before it gets too far. Let the message go out that we don't want gambling boats here."

Raymondi feels that even if Quincy was offered a slice of the revenue as an incentive to saying "yes" it wouldn't be worth it.

"The only real winners are the casinos," he says. "They get the money and we get the problems."

THE WARD 6 City Council field is getting a little crowded. Frank Hendry, 46, of Huckins Ave., Squantum, became candidate No. 5 this week as he took out nomination papers.

He joins four other already declared contenders: Maryann Mahony, Brain McNamee, Joseph Newton and Jim Stamos.

IF THERE ARE any potential candidates out there hoping for an open School Committee seat to run for, they won't find one this year.

BARRY

STICE

All three incumbents, Sean Barry, Christine Cedrone and Linda Stice who are due up for re-election have taken out their nomination papers.

WARD 3 COUNCILLOR Patrick McDermott will make it official Saturday, June 5: he's running for a third term.

He'll make the announcement at a barbecue that date, 5 to 8 p.m., at the gazebo function facility at the Adams Inn, North Quincy. Suggested donation $15. For more information call 471-3366.

McDERMOTT

BRIAN McNAMEE, running for the Ward 6 seat, has a formal announcement night set for June 8, 7 to 9 p.m. at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus, Hancock St. and Hollis Ave. Suggested donation $10.

IRISH SINGER John McDermott, who has built a large local following, will present a special concert tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the Emerson Majestic Theatre, Tremont St., Boston.

Proceeds will go to the National World War II Memorial and the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans.

McDermott recently appeared on public television as one of the Three Irish Tenors in a real smash performance.

McDermott, one of the area's most popular entertainers, is always ready to help a veterans or other worthy cause as he will be doing tonight.

Takes Issue With Council On Shopping Carts

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I read the article in The Quincy Sun regarding shopping carts being strewn around the city. The city council, in general, agreed that the problem is caused by "members of the Asian community" in Quincy.

How did the council agree to such a general, stereotypical statement? Does the council have a fact report? Did the council watch the majority of the Asian population, which comprises 12-13 percent of Quincy's population? I don't think so.

I can accept that many Asians in a district take the shopping carts or that many Asians are one of the culprits. But I won't accept such a blanket statement.

In the future, I hope and encourage the council to be much more careful in how it makes statements so it won't offend any group.

Time To Get Out Of Hospital Business?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Apparently, the Quincy Hospital bailout plan by City Hall has pushed Quincy's public school system further down on the priority list.

Public comments by School Supt. Eugene Creedon are clearly pointing to a budget crisis. However, the lack of public comment by Mayor Sheets shouts louder that decent pay raises for public school teachers are taking a back seat to saving Quincy Hospital.

There is no greater quality of life issue than public education. A city's children are its future. Good public education needs good teachers and good teachers need a good salary. Cheaping out on teacher salaries is pennywise but pound foolish.

The mayor says closing the hospital will cost more than keeping it open. Sounds good short-term but in the long run pumping more money to keep a medical Titanic afloat will cost far too much.

Personally, I feel too many Quincy pols live their lives looking in the rear view mirror. Maybe it is just time for Quincy to get out of the hospital business. It is draining the city budget and there are far better quality of life issues needing to be properly addressed.

The city of Quincy needs to reorganize its priorities. Should Quincy Hospital stay open merged with the Boston Medical Center or should it fade into Quincy history? That is the real question facing City Hall, isn't it?

We wasted so much time and energy on deadend talks with Carney Hospital. Sometimes it is hard to face reality and the reality may be there is no future for a city-owned or operated hospital under any form.

Quincy Hospital has become a form of quicksand. Pumping money into it disappears as soon as it is dropped in, right?

Quincy has a bottom line. It needs a first class school system. It needs first class teachers and it needs first class politicians willing to make the tough decisions to get it.

We can do without a hospital but can we do without good schools? There is only one correct answer here!

50,000 Line Memorial Day Parade Route

By PAUL HAROLD

An estimated 50,000 persons viewed the city's annual Memorial Day Parade, that included 800 uniform marchers, veterans of all wars, city officials and Gold Star Mothers.

Rev. Lawrence Staples, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church in South Quincy and a recently returned U.S. Army chaplain from Korea, was the main speaker at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

46 Years Ago

He challenged America to win the Cold War "or else lose all that our veterans have died and sacrificed for from the Revolutionary times to the present Korea."

FERRAZZI'S CAR USED TO BLOCK CAR WASH

Police Chief William Ferrazzi used his own car to block the entrance to a Southern Artery car wash that attempted to open on Memorial Day, in violation of the "Blue Laws."

The car wash opened at 9 a.m. and was closed under the orders of Captain Walter Kemp. A half hour later it opened again, this time with its entrance blocked by Chief Ferrazzi himself, accompanied by Detective James Ford, parking his car across the entrance until the employees went home.

The chief noted that Sunday laws applied to both Memorial and Armistice days, no matter on what day they fell, prohibiting openings from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m.

When the operator was brought before Judge Kenneth Nash later in the week, the judge levied a fine of $25 in what most observers thought was a test case of the state's "Blue Laws."

SERPOSS CLINIC OPENED

The dream of Ervant Serpos was realized with the opening of the Elizabeth Serpos out-patient clinic at the Atherton Hough School.

Serpos was an immigrant from Turkey who lived in Houghs Neck and left most of his $175,000 estate to benefit his neighbors. The clinic was named in memory of his wife.

Originally, the funds were left to the Quincy Visiting Nurses' Association, but they found it impractical to operate a clinic. It was then that the city took over to implement the bequest.

Among those on hand for the opening ceremonies were John Mahoney, school principal, and Mrs. George Shelley, president of the citizens' committee.

QUINCY-ISMS

Attorney General George Fingold was the main speaker at the Quincy Republican Club's meeting at the Elks' Home. The city's legislative delegation, Sen. Charles Hedges and Reps. Carter Lee, William Jenness and Clifton Baker, attended. Also attending were Delcavare King and Mrs. Henry Chandler president of the Quincy Eisenhower Club. . . A daughter was born at Quincy City Hospital to Rev. and Mrs. Bedros Baharian of Edison Park. . . Atty. Louis George was chairman for the reunion of the QHS Class of 1918. . . Some 146 youngsters of Most Blessed Sacrament Church received their First Communion from Fr. William O'Connor at a Mass at the Atherton Hough auditorium. . . Five hundred participated in the annual May Procession at St. Ann's. . . Mohigna Market on Chestnut St. featured a "Coronation Layer Cake" for 59 cents, on sale the day of Queen Elizabeth II's coronation. . . An organ recital by pupils in Ed Whittredge was held at Wollaston Congregational Church. . . Sacred Heart Parish celebrated its 50th anniversary. Founded as a mission of St. John's in 1878 it became a parish in 1903. . . Memorial Day ceremonies paid tribute to Commander John Shea, executive officer at the Squantum Naval Air Base in the 1930's who died in 1942 in the sinking of the USS Wasp. . . Neighbors of the Cashman, Blue Hill and Lyons quarries presented petitions to City Manager William Deegan to clean up the area of "swimmers, hunters and immoral parkers." . . A testimonial was held for "Quincy's great sportsman," Pete Zoia. . . Richard Sweeney was recorder for the Quincy K of C. . . William Lipp was secretary for the Bethany Men's Club. . . James Larkin of Merrymount graduated from Holy Cross. . . Four seniors received $300 scholarships from the Adams Temple and School Fund scholarships. The money, given by Robert Charles Billings, grew from $2,500 in a few years to $37,000 under the direction of Charles Francis Adams.

'Christmas Memories Of 20th Century' Winning Theme For Festival Parade

Mary Buckley of Weymouth, who has attended the annual Christmas Parade in Quincy for many years, has a special interest the 47th edition to be held Sunday, Nov. 28.

She entered the parade theme contest for the first time and her entry, "Christmas Memories of the Twentieth Century," won the top prize in competition with a record number of entries.

She will be guest of honor at the parade and will ride along the three-mile parade route. She will also receive an appreciation award from the Quincy Festival Committee, the parade sponsors.

Mrs. Buckley and her husband, retired Quincy Police Sgt. Richard Buckley, who was a policeman for 35 years, have many fond memories of the parade, particularly in the 1950s.

Her family now includes 15 grandchildren.

The parade is traditionally held on the last Sunday in November as the grand finale to three days of Festival activity involving the business community, city and state officials, volunteers and marching units.

The Quincy Emblem Club recently celebrated its 75th anniversary and installed new officers for 1999-2000.

Corinne Christopher, president, and the other officers were installed by Past Supreme President Mary Keller and Julia Devaney as marshal.

The other officers installed:

Junior Past President Margarita Miller, Vice President Elizabeth Rideout, Financial Secretary Marilyn Alcott, Treasurer Charlotte Wilson, Recording Secretary Alice M. Smith, Corresponding Secretary Ann Dekas, Press Secretary Alice Smith, First Trustee Barbara Weir, Second Trustee Elizabeth Alvarado, Third Trustee Sandra Thomas, Marshal Mary Kiernan, First Asst. Marshal Danielle Gunthrie, Second Marshal Maxine Eames, Chaplain Hazel Sheehan, First Guard Lucy Venezia.

The Quincy club presently has Past Supreme President, Pearl Garcia, and three past state presidents, Dorothy Mateik, Susan McGregor, and Geraldine Shepherd. The latter is now serving as Supreme Second Marshal.

Alice Smith is assistant chaplain for District 3 and Charlotte Wilson is recording secretary in the state Association of Emblem Clubs.

Past Supreme President Keller cited the Quincy club's many charitable contributions through its 75 year history during which nearly $500,000 has been donated to worthy causes including scholarships and aiding veterans.

Among those attending and congratulating the Quincy Emblem Club on its achievements the past 75 years were:

State President Edith Danforth, representing the Massachusetts State Association; Quincy Elks Exalted Ruler Ray Minigan, Edward Shine, Esquire for the District Deputy of the Circle

District; and Past Exalted Rulers Thomas Shepherd and Pat Venezia.

Installation co-chairwomen were Alice Smith and Maxine Eames.

Susan Martin Hayes Tribute June 2 At Kennedy Library

A dance team and a choral group of The Woodward School for Girls will be featured at a special event at the Kennedy Library, Wednesday, June 2nd, honoring Susan Martin Hayes, a long-time Woodward teacher and Dean of Students who died last August.

The event is co-sponsored by the Kennedy Library Foundation where Mrs. Hayes was affiliated with its educational and research programs, and brought many students there on field trips as part of their curriculum.

A Woodward senior will be the first recipient of a $1000 award by the newly established Susan M. Hayes Scholarship fund. The presentation will be made by Sarah Hayes during the event along with a special history publication inscribed by the school.

Mrs. Hayes, the daughter of long-time Quincy residents, Edward and Marguerite Martin, was raised in Quincy, attended St. Mary's Parochial School and St. Gregory's High School in Dorchester. After graduation from Boston State College, she began her teaching career in the Boston schools as well as several suburban schools. She also taught in Colorado and Kuwait, places her husband's engineering career took his family.

The June 2 program also will include greetings from Woodward Headmaster, Thomas L. Wesner; student essays by Melinda Palma, Erika Simmons, and Audrey Ferguson; dedication of the Woodward Yearbook by Mary Nguyen, and dedication of the soccer season by Jessica Boothby, Jacqueline O'Meara, Danielle Gatto, SUSAN MARTIN HAYES and Audrey Ferguson.

Terrence Hayes will present greetings from his family preceding a film entitled "Remembering Susan."

Members of the Woodward Choral are Rizzi Blanza; Sarah Crowley; Laura Eastwick; Kelly Heferman; Rachel Jacobs; Sarah Hogan; Ellie Bastani; Amber Minardi; Deborah Perkins; Ashlie Riley; Angela Rugg; Stephanie Whalen and Janine Woodward. Director is Elizabeth Ward, guitarist, Joanne Rugg, and pianist Paul Carroll.

The Woodward Dance Team consists of Emily Rand; Kristina Pan; Jennifer Cuneo; Allissa Zax; Ellie Bastani; Elisabeth Modestino; Michelle Rugg; Ida Koo; Sarah Hogan; Sarah Crowley; Danielle Rugg; Amber Minardi; Stephanie Pierce; Rachel Wallace; Alda Koo; Deborah Perkins. Dance director is Jaime Gallery.

The event will include tours of the Kennedy Library's exhibit, beginning at 6 p.m., a reception, a buffet dinner followed by the entertainment. Seats may be reserved by calling 617-773-5610. Admissions are $25 for students and $50 for adults.

Christine Maus In Students' 'Who's Who'

Christine E. Maus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Maus of Quincy, has been selected to be listed in the 1999 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Maus, a senior majoring in nursing at Saint Anselm

College in Manchester, N.H., was selected for her academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and potential for continued success.

AEROBIC DANCING

Aerobic dance, high impact they are also common injuries to the hands.

There's no question that exercise is good for you, but it can put extra demands on your body. When your feet hurt, it's all too common to accept this as due to a hard day at work or play. Healthy feet aren't supposed to hurt and it's our job to find out why yours do. If being active is a big part of your life, consult your podiatrist about how to prevent as well as treat foot injuries and conditions. We offer complete family podiatry services at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy (617-472-3466).

PS: When starting an aerobic program, don't overdo. Stress fractures are the most common aerobic exercise injury. Proper aerobic shoes are a must.

Mosquito Fogging Starts June 1

The county is planning to apply a pesticide called "Resmethrin" to control adult mosquitoes in areas of Quincy that need it, starting during the week of June 1 and continuing until Sept. 16.

The fogging operations will occur on Thursday mornings between the hours of 3 a.m. and 6:30 a.m. and will take place on Friday mornings if inclement weather intervenes.

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project Resmethrin is used because it is compatible with the environment; it is very low in toxicity to mammals; it has low irritation levels and it does not harm other wildlife.

Quincy 2000 To Host Retirement Workshop For Business Owners

Quincy 2000 will host a workshop on "Retirement Plans for Small Business Owners" Thursday, June 10 from 8 to 9:45 a.m. at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., eighth floor, Quincy Center.

Local accountant Rick Greenwood, CPA, will present the workshop.

Participants will learn the best retirement plan for a sole proprietor; when a 401K plan is appropriate;

how to set up a retirement plan for a spouse with no current income; how to understand simple plans; SEP plan and Keogh plans; and when to use a profit sharing plan.

Present and future business owners are invited to attend.

Cost is $10 for members of Quincy 2000 and $20 for non-members.

Dog Training Classes Begin June 7 At Beechwood

Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy, will offer dog training classes this spring and summer.

"Beginners Obedience" teaches dogs beginner level commands, such as sit, stay, come, down, drop it, don't touch. It also helps with problems such as jumping, mouthy and chewing.

Cost is $80 for a five-week class beginning June 7 at 7 p.m.

"Obedience with Distractions" has three goals: to get dogs to perform a long series of commands for praise and intermittent treats; perform commands like sit, stay in spite of sound, motion and object distractions; and perform commands from greater distances, for longer periods of time and with less and less leash control.

Cost is $80 for a five-week class starting June 7 at 6 p.m.

All classes come with weekly literature and free phone consultations.

To register call (617) 789-3647.

Beechwood Life Center Sunflower Contest Underway

Quincy will soon boast clusters of huge, golden sunflowers as Beechwood Community Life Center's 5th annual Sunflower contestants start sowing.

The annual family-oriented event is sponsored by Beechwood, Almquist Flower and The Quincy Sun.

"Anyone can participate," said Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals. "It's a family project that lasts the whole summer. Seeds are planted during May and June, and sunflower heights will be measured Aug. 31."

Flowers reaching 12 to 15 feet are expected this year, as fertilizers, transplanting, etc. are allowed in the competition. "Anything goes," Beals said. "The tallest flower wins."

All Quincy families are invited to enter the "Grow Together" contest. Seeds are available at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., and The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St.

The contest concludes Aug. 31, when the winning family will take home a Family Fun Basket filled with games, toys, gift certificates, books and other "surprises."

Call 617-471-5712 for more information about the sunflower contest or other summer offerings at Beechwood.

Quincy Teachers: 269 days without a contract

Did you know?

At the beginning of our struggle to get a FAIR contract, Quincy's teachers decided to take no actions that deprived kids. We didn't 'work to rule.' We wrote recommendations. We continued to go that extra mile. No kids should suffer.

It hasn't been easy. Our giving nature is the strength of our profession, and the weakness of our Association.

What has kept us going? The incredible support of the parents and citizens of the City of Quincy has done wonders for us. And we still need that support. The politicians still want us to work "on the cheap." We seek pay comparable to area teachers. That's reasonable.

Thanks, Quincy voters. We still need you!

We're asking Quincy to pay its teachers the going rate.

City Seeks Land For Open Space In North Quincy

By MARILYN JACKSON

The Park Department is seeking a state self-help grant to acquire 5.27 acres of land at the northeast corner of East Squantum Street and Victory Road.

Executive Director Thomas Koch said the property at 542 East Squantum St. "fits into the parameters" of the state's open space acquisition program.

Part of the property, owned by Dickinson Direct, encompasses 4.87 acres of land zoned for Planned Unit Development; another .375 acres is zoned as open space.

According to Daniel Flynn, who is marketing the property for Dickinson Direct for $1.5 million, the company has preserved its rights to reconstruct a warehouse if the property is not sold. A fire destroyed a warehouse on the site a few years ago.

"It's a very valuable piece of land," said Flynn, "and the owner would not mind that it remain open space if someone comes up with the financing."

Before the city can apply for the grant, which could mean up to $500,000, two separate appraisals must be completed. The city has valued the land at $643,800.

The land "stretches along East Squantum Street," said Koch. "It's really beautiful, with tidal flats, marshland and ocean."

Last year, the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs distributed self-help grants to communities totaling $4.3 million, according to a spokesman. This year, that amount could be doubled.

Applications are due June 1, and the grants are expected to be announced in the fall.

Under the program, communities are provided between 52 and 70 percent of the acquisition costs, up to a maximum of $500,000. Quincy is eligible for a 66 percent reimbursement.

Koch said the Metropolitan District Commissioner David Balfour several years ago had looked into the possibility of that agency acquiring the land for open space. "But they haven't had much funding" in recent years for land acquisition said. "The site has been on their hit list," Koch said.

Last week, the city council voted to support the park department's application.

"This is one of the many areas that the open space committee discussed when assembling its five-year open space plan in 1995," said Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, who added a word of vigilance.

"We looked at the land on Quarry Street and clearly missed the boat," said McDermott, referring to the 75 acres of vacant land which Congress Group Ventures acquired in 1997 for $8.5 million.

Ayers Award Program

Ward 6 Councillor and State Representative Bruce Ayers announces his annual Councillor's Award program which recognizes an exemplary child of middle school age living in Ward 6.

Ayers said the middle school years are very important in terms of the development of a child, and believes providing positive reinforcement is invaluable.

"It is my hope that this award will help to set an example for youngster students as well as for the peers of the award recipient, giving them an incentive to work to the best of their inability in school and to take an active role in the community."

The winner will receive a $100 savings bond along with an award which will be presented during the July 4th ceremonies at the Squantum playground after the parade.

To recommend a student for this award, submit a written explanation of why the student is deserving of the award. The award recipient will be judged on his/her achievement and contribution to the community.

Nominations must be received by June 21.

Mail nominations to Councillor Bruce Ayers, Councillor's Award Program, City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

5 Quincy Residents Honored For B.U. Service

Five Quincy residents were honored at Boston University's recent Employee Service Recognition Dinner.

The ceremony recognized employees who are retiring or who have given 10 or 25 years of service to the university.

The Quincy residents who each received a crystal bowl for 10 years of service are:

Sandra Bickford, senior secretary in the School of Medicine; Carolyn Fahlbeck, senior program coordinator in the College of Arts and Sciences; John Ictech-Cassis, clinical assistant professor in the Goldman School of Dental Medicine; Paul Jackson, officer in university police department; and Marianne Hurley, administrative manager in the School of Medicine.

treasurer.

Stratouly is president of Congress Group Ventures, which proposed developing a $200 million residential complex that, in its final revision, would have included 995 one- and two-bedroom apartments and 200 assisted living units. The city council in a 7-1 vote denied the plan; Councilor Francis X. McCauley favored the proposal, and Councilor Daniel Raymond abstained, having recused himself throughout the entire deliberations to avoid a charge of conflict of interest. He owns land in that neighborhood.

"That's what this is, a criminal complaint," said Cahill. "I'm just doing my job."

Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin, a former Mayor and city councillor, confirmed that the application had been filed and has scheduled a hearing at 10 a.m. Wednesday, June 2. He stressed at this point the application is strictly an allegation, and the hearing will determine whether the facts merit the issuance of a criminal complaint.

Tobin said he will ask another clerk magistrate from an outside court to hear the matter "in fairness and in the best interests to both sides."

Allen, who is a former Brookline selectman, said the unions took this court action because any matter before the state ethics commission takes between two and two-and-a-half years to resolve. Last October, the unions made a formal complaint to the ethics commission about Cahill's participation in the Highpoint deliberations.

The application for the complaint alleges that Cahill consistently participated and voted on matters regarding Highpoint between September 1998 and March 1999, during which time members of his family owned property that abuts the Highpoint property that was the subject matter of Quincy council action.

Although Cahill does not live immediately near the proposed development, his parents and a couple of other family members do.

"Our position is that he should not have been participating," said Allen, referring to a fact sheet issued by the state ethics commission regarding conflict of interest.

"This is not me saying this, it's the state ethics commission: Don't vote on matters affecting abutting or nearby property." Public employees and elected officials cannot vote, discuss, delegate or otherwise act in any manner that affects their own financial interest or that of their immediate family, Allen continued. Immediate family includes a spouse, parents, siblings and children.

"Under the law, the state ethics commission says that property owners are presumed to have a financial interest in matters affecting abutting and nearby property. Thus, unless they can demonstrate they have no financial interest, they may not take any action in their official capacity," said Allen.

The application for the complaint was made by Allen on behalf of Thomas MacKay, president of the Building and Construction Trades Council of Quincy and the South Shore.

Cahill said did not know whether a criminal complaint had ever been issued against an individual for voting on behalf of his constituents and added he did not know how his job as county treasurer would be affected if a criminal complaint should be issued.

Cahill said he did not believe that he qualified for a special employee status which some public employees and elected officials obtain in order to carry out their duties. He said when Councilor Daniel Raymond was a member of the school committee, he secured that status so that he could do legal work for school employees.

Attorney Thomas Kiley, who has been hired to represent the city in its suit in Norfolk Superior Court against Congress Group Ventures, will represent Cahill at Quincy District Court next week.

"If it goes beyond June 2, it may be necessary for me to hire a legal adviser," said Cahill. Mayor James Sheets said he would recommend that Kiley continue to represent Cahill because "this is something that has occurred in the pursuit of his responsibilities... and traditionally, we have covered these type of expenses."

Sheets described this new court action as unfortunate. "It polarizes the issue further and makes it more difficult to find a resolution. I just think it's not good policy."

8 Who Died In Wars To Be Honored At Snug Harbor School

Eight youths who went to war from Germantown and gave their lives for their country will be honored at a Memorial Day ceremony Friday, May 28, at the Snug Harbor School.

The Quincy Chapter of the Vietnam Combat Veterans will raise the flag at 9:30 a.m. with the playing of "Taps."

Those to be honored are: Army Sgt. Henry L. Grenier, who won a bronze star and was killed in Belgium during World War II. Seaman Joseph William Sullivan, who was killed in action aboard the USS Bunker Hill in the Pacific in World War II.

Army Cpl. Frederick H. Graves, who died in Korea in 1950.

Army Pfc Robert William Leaman, who also died in Korea in 1951.

Marine Lance Cpl. John W. Granahan, killed in Vietnam in 1967.

Marine Cpl. Gerald R. Peterson, died in Vietnam in 1968.

Air Force Lt. Peter J. Landry, killed in Vietnam in 1970.

Marine Sgt. Edward J.

Gargano, killed in a terrorist attack in Beirut, Lebanon, in 1984.

Special guests at the ceremony will be Gold Star Mothers Mrs. Christine Devlin, Mrs. Mary Gargano and Ronald Leaman and his mother, the mother and brother of the young man who died in Korea.

Other guests will include State Sen. Michael Morrisey, State Rep. Steve Tobin, City Councilors Frank McCauley, Tim Cahill, Paul Harold and Peter Kolson, who will be representing Mayor James Sheets.

Also Jake Comer, past national commander of the American Legion; Carol Lee Griffin, former assistant superintendent of schools; and Morrie Hibbard, former principal of the Snug Harbor School.

There will be refreshments offered at the Germantown Neighborhood Center following the ceremony.

Visitors will be able to pick up registration forms and permission slips for the many summer activities and camp that will be provided through the center.

THE BRYAN VFW Post annual Poppy Drive is underway and Commander Leif Thornton got it off to a good start selling the first poppy to Mayor James Sheets.

Applying The Finishing Touch water-based stains will not raise the grain of the wood.

No matter what they claim, all water-based stains and polyurethane finishes will raise the grain of the wood. However, there is a simple trick that will minimize this problem: after the initial sanding, use a sponge to moisten the wood, then let the wood dry. Then sand the raised grain with fine sandpaper and clean off the dust. When applying stain or polyurethane, lightly sand between coats with a fine sandpaper.

Myth: Water can damage water-based finishes.

Many people think that water-based finishes are susceptible to water damage, but the resins used in these products, once thoroughly dried, cannot be washed off or dissolved with water. In this respect, water-based finishes, such as Olympic Water Based Polyurethane, are just as strong as oil-based.

Myth: To increase penetration of an oil-based finish, rub it into the wood.

Aggressively rubbing an oil-based finish into wood is not a good idea, and it does not increase penetration. Rubbing causes friction and heat, which seals the wood pores and actually prevents further penetration—the exact opposite of what you're trying to attain. The best way to increase penetration of a finish is to keep the wood surface wet, but increased penetration is overrated. It does very little to protect the wood.

For more information on how to protect wood beautifully, contact Olympic Stain at (800) 441-9695.

Household Help by John Amantea

Q. I recently purchased a house. The living-room rug was old and shabby, so I took it up. The floor underneath is parquet. However, I need to refinish it. There are some cigarette burns on it as well. How do I go about fixing the burns and redoing the finish?

A. Removing your old rug and refinishing the parquet wood floor will certainly enhance its beauty. And the maintenance, such as waxing and a periodic coat of polyurethane, will be the extent of your work.

The first thing you'll need to do after removing the rug is to take up the wooden tack strips and apply wood filler if the holes are too large. If you are going to refinish your parquet floor, you might as well do it correctly and sand the entire floor.

Begin by first examining the cigarette burns you have mentioned. If you can scrape off the burn with a putty knife, the defect is not too serious. On the other hand, you will have to penetrate the surface burn with a fine-grit sandpaper sander that you'll have to rent. Your local tool rental center will have the professional floor sander and materials needed to do this job. The sander is quite heavy, so you'll need a helper and some space in your vehicle.

Once you begin sanding, always work in the direction of the grain if you are working with tongue and groove floorboards. With parquet floors, as in your case, just sand from one wall to the other. Once again, concentrate on the hard-to-remove cigarette burns with your floor sander. Next, be sure to vacuum the wood dust and then use a squeezed-out, damp mop to clean it thoroughly.

Finally, the best way to apply polyurethane to wood floors is with a long-handled applicator and not a paint roller. Use thin, even strokes of the product, because you'll have to apply at least two or three coats for a hard finish.

NOTE: It is optional to use a wood preservative or, your floor after you sand it and only before you apply the polyurethane.

'Bad Apples' Give Responsible Lenders A Bad Name

By CAROL BULMAN

A recent article in a Boston newspaper described a growing trend in what the writer termed "unscrupulous methods" of lending. The article discussed a pattern of "predatory lending" and the charging of "exorbitant fees" or points when administering sub-prime mortgage loans.

As the old adage goes, "One bad apple..." Well, you know the rest.

We in the mortgage business - the rest of the bucket of apples, that is - cringe when we hear stories of the elderly and the most vulnerable being taken advantage of by the greed of a few.

So I thought it would be useful to set the record straight and explain how the system has been abused by some lenders, and show how these situations should be properly handled.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts Division of Banks has defined "predatory lending" as the act of basing the approval of a loan solely on the equity in a property, with no consideration of the borrower's ability to repay.

This is different from

sub-prime lending, which is the extension of credit to those who do not qualify for the standard secondary market guidelines, usually because of blemishes on their credit report. These loans typically carry higher rates, depending upon the extent of the problem. Although they cost more, sub-prime loans are not considered predatory because borrowers must demonstrate the ability to repay the debt.

As an example, the article cited the situation in which elderly home owners are enticed by mailings of preapproved credit-cards with high credit limits. An increasing number of senior citizens are amassing credit card debt but soon find themselves prisoners of these payments and fall behind on their utility bills and taxes.

These people are prime targets for unscrupulous lenders who disguise themselves as "knights in shining armor" who will lend money on the basis of the equity in the person's home. These borrowers have been taken advantage of twice - once by a system that allows credit cards to be given to individuals who should not be incurring such debt, and then by the mortgage lender looking for quick profits.

Unfortunately, there are "bad apples" in every profession who will prey upon the vulnerable. It is our responsibility as an industry to make it known that this is intolerable and that there are lenders who handle such delicate and complex circumstances responsibly. It is for this reason that both the state Division of Banks and the Attorney General's office have made educating the public and stopping the practice a priority.

Consumer groups - including Homeowners Beware, in cooperation with the Massachusetts Community Banking Council - are working toward increased borrower awareness. There are nonprofit groups such as the Consumer Credit Counseling Services to help people work through their financial challenges and to offer them alternatives. Unfortunately, none of these were mentioned in the article.

The key for responsible lenders is to work with a customer, explain all options and offer alternatives that are workable. This is being done in most circumstances, and will continue as more and more people incur debt that they cannot handle. In many situations, the sub-prime borrower needs to restructure his or her finanacial situation and match the monthly payments to the income he or she has available; there are many lenders who are willing to work through these challenges without resorting to unfair lending practices.

Another issue brought out in this article is the practice of charging exorbitant fees on sub-prime loans. The Division of Banks has clearly stated that points - fees charged in connection with obtaining a loan, one point being equal to one percent of the loan amount - in excess of five charged to the borrower are excessive. But unfortunately those bad apples have again reared their ugly heads, charging uninformed borrowers many thousands of dollars in points.

The good news is that those companies mentioned in the article are not getting away with their practices, and that charges have been filed against those firms.

Like any industry, the market drives the price. In the cases mentioned in the article, once again it was the elderly who paid the excessive fees, when there are plenty of honest lenders out there who will extend financing fairly and responsibly.

My opinion, and the opinion of many others in this industry, is that those most unable to afford the excessive fees should not be preyed upon by lenders. It comes down to being ethical in business and fair to our customers. Those who are in it for the short term, such as those mentioned in the article, unfairly taint the reputations of those of us in this business to provide good service. Many times this service consists of arranging a temporary financing program until the person is able to build a year's worth good credit.

'Bad Apples' Give Responsible Lenders A Bad Name

By CAROL BULMAN

A recent article in a Boston newspaper described a growing trend in what the writer termed "unscrupulous methods" of lending. The article discussed a pattern of "predatory lending" and the charging of "exorbitant fees" or points when administering sub-prime mortgage loans.

As the old adage goes, "One bad apple..." Well, you know the rest.

We in the mortgage business - the rest of the bucket of apples, that is - cringe when we hear stories of the elderly and the most vulnerable being taken advantage of by the greed of a few.

So I thought it would be useful to set the record straight and explain how the system has been abused by some lenders, and show how these situations should be properly handled.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts Division of Banks has defined "predatory lending" as the act of basing the approval of a loan solely on the equity in a property, with no consideration of the borrower's ability to repay.

This is different from

sub-prime lending, which is the extension of credit to those who do not qualify for the standard secondary market guidelines, usually because of blemishes on their credit report. These loans typically carry higher rates, depending upon the extent of the problem. Although they cost more, sub-prime loans are not considered predatory because borrowers must demonstrate the ability to repay the debt.

As an example, the article cited the situation in which elderly home owners are enticed by mailings of preapproved credit-cards with high credit limits. An increasing number of senior citizens are amassing credit card debt but soon find themselves prisoners of these payments and fall behind on their utility bills and taxes.

These people are prime targets for unscrupulous lenders who disguise themselves as "knights in shining armor" who will lend money on the basis of the equity in the person's home. These borrowers have been taken advantage of twice - once by a system that allows credit cards to be given to individuals who should not be incurring such debt, and then by the mortgage lender looking for quick profits.

Unfortunately, there are "bad apples" in every profession who will prey upon the vulnerable. It is our responsibility as an industry to make it known that this is intolerable and that there are lenders who handle such delicate and complex circumstances responsibly. It is for this reason that both the state Division of Banks and the Attorney General's office have made educating the public and stopping the practice a priority.

Consumer groups - including Homeowners Beware, in cooperation with the Massachusetts Community Banking Council - are working toward increased borrower awareness. There are nonprofit groups such as the Consumer Credit Counseling Services to help people work through their financial challenges and to offer them alternatives. Unfortunately, none of these were mentioned in the article.

The key for responsible lenders is to work with a customer, explain all options and offer alternatives that are workable. This is being done in most circumstances, and will continue as more and more people incur debt that they cannot handle. In many situations, the sub-prime borrower needs to restructure his or her finanacial situation and match the monthly payments to the income he or she has available; there are many lenders who are willing to work through these challenges without resorting to unfair lending practices.

Another issue brought out in this article is the practice of charging exorbitant fees on sub-prime loans. The Division of Banks has clearly stated that points - fees charged in connection with obtaining a loan, one point being equal to one percent of the loan amount - in excess of five charged to the borrower are excessive. But unfortunately those bad apples have again reared their ugly heads, charging uninformed borrowers many thousands of dollars in points.

The good news is that those companies mentioned in the article are not getting away with their practices, and that charges have been filed against those firms.

Like any industry, the market drives the price. In the cases mentioned in the article, once again it was the elderly who paid the excessive fees, when there are plenty of honest lenders out there who will extend financing fairly and responsibly.

My opinion, and the opinion of many others in this industry, is that those most unable to afford the excessive fees should not be preyed upon by lenders. It comes down to being ethical in business and fair to our customers. Those who are in it for the short term, such as those mentioned in the article, unfairly taint the reputations of those of us in this business to provide good service. Many times this service consists of arranging a temporary financing program until the person is able to build a year's worth good credit.

Like to be mortgage-free by the time you retire?

Trade your current 30-year mortgage in for a 15-Year Mortgage from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. The monthly payment's a bit higher, but chances are you're earning more now and it's a great form of "forced saving." The benefits? You lock in your mortgage at the lowest rates seen since the 1960s, you save tens of thousands of dollars in interest, you build equity faster and - by the time you retire - you'll be mortgage-free! It's what people dream of and right now the dream is closer than ever.

Come see us and we'll run the numbers for you. Or call Richard or Angela at 617-471-0750.

	30-YEAR MORTGAGE $100,000	15-YEAR MORTGAGE $100,000
Rate	8%	6.625%
P&I Payment	$733.77	$877.99
Total Paid	$264,157	$158,038

If you can pay $144 more a month on your mortgage, you can save $106,119 in interest. It's a great deal!

At Conway Financial Services, our sub-prime lending makes up less than 5 percent of our business. These are the customers who come looking for a loan on a piece of property, but due to their circumstances, are unable to qualify for the going interest rate.

The sub-prime loans we offer carry rates that are between a percentage and 3 percentage points above the going rate and have similar fees. We consider the sub-prime borrower a person who is looking for the opportunity to purchase a home, pay a slightly high rate for a year, work toward straightening out his or her credit and then return to refinance at a lower rate a year later.

We are and should be in the business of making loans to people to enable them to own a home and comfortably make the payments. If we're not doing that, then we're missing the point.

New Hazardous Materials Warning Ordinance

The City Council has adopted a new environmental assessment and notification ordinance to ensure residents, especially those with young children, will be aware of any potential exposure to hazardous materials.

"Any project, except the repairing of streets, underground utilities or water/sewer/drainage projects within a public way, would be affected by the new ordinance," said Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymondi.

Last February Raymondi drafted the ordinance in response to a problem about two years ago when the city was razing a water tank on Penn's Hill to correct water pressure problems and in the process spread lead paint dust over the area.

Subsequently, the city was required to remove contaminated soil from neighbors' property.

The new ordinance requires that any city project which has the potential to create a nuisance and involves the application, removal or repair of any material deemed to contain hazardous materials must include an environmental assessment and control plan. Those materials would not be limited to only asbestos, lead and petroleum products.

The plan must include the project description, the safety and/or health assessment and containment measures. Public notification be made at least 24 hours before the start of a project. The health commissioner and/or environmental sanitarian, the hazardous materials officer in the fire department, the mayor's office and the ward councillor where the project is located would be notified.

"At first blush, I thought the proposal would be adding more bureaucracy, but after talking with Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue, I will support this ordinance," said Councilor-at-large Francis X. McCauley.

"These are city projects and, if not done properly, the city could find itself in a lawsuit," he said.

Council President Peter Kolson said the councillors should consider including money in the public works budget to cover notification and assessment costs under the new regulation.

"What was done in the past has jeopardized the present and future," said Kolson. Although it was not done intentionally, the science and technology of today was not available at that time, he said.

Mock Train Wreck On MBTA Red Line

DISASTER SCENE -- A mock train wreck on the MBTA Red Line at Water St., South Quincy Bridge, early Sunday tested the response of the Quincy Fire and Police Departments, Quincy Hospital, MBTA and other safety personnel. Reality set in during the drill when Michael Foley of the MBTA safety department and one of the 18 volunteers acting as victims was taken to the hospital with chest pains and treated for hyperventilation.

Friends Of Mike Therrien To Hold Fundraiser June 18

The friends of Mike Therrien announce the blood drive recently held at the New England Medical Center Blood Bank was an enormous success, as many of Mike's friends and colleagues took time out to donate blood at both the Braintree and Boston facilities.

Lesley Laverty, New England Medical Center's blood drive coordinator, said, "It has been one of the most successful drives we have ever had here. Our staff has been overwhelmed by the outpouring of support for Mike and his family."

Laverty said the center processed 160 donors in three days. "We have had such a tremendous response, we have had to schedule people through the end of May. It has made an enormous difference in the supply of blood to the hospital," she said.

As a result of the drive, Mike will have all the blood he needs for a considerable period of time, while he continues to undergo treatment.

His friends also announce that a fundraiser will be held Friday, June 18 from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Knights of Columbus Hall in North Quincy.

Tickets are $50 per person, $80 per couple. They will be available at the door or by contacting Pat Fatseas at 328-1584 or Denise Boyd at 773-6405.

Tickets can also be ordered by mailing a check payable to "Friends of Mike Therrien" to 284 Adams St., Quincy, MA 02169.

All donations will be handled by Citizens Bank in East Milton Square, where an account has been established for the Therrien family.

It is hoped that the fundraiser will meet with the same success as achieved with the blood drive. For those who know Mike,

Marie, and their family, this fundraiser presents a chance to ease their burden when words alone are not adequate. His friends continue to seek prayers and support.

Stamos Files Nomination Papers For Ward 6 Race

Jim Stamos, candidate for the Ward 6 City Council seat, filed his nomination papers Tuesday at the City Election Department.

"Having recently entered the race I feel it is important to file my nomination papers early to further express my commitment to Ward 6," Stamos said. "I have been actively involved in the community for over 20 years."

Stamos said he has been pleased with the response to his candidacy and said his "Whistle Stop Campaign Forum" in the ward Saturday was "very successful."

He said he will continue to campaign in the neighborhoods and meet residents to discuss with them their ideas and concerns.

HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

Many car owners inflate their vehicles' tires in accordance with the pressure indicated on their tires' sidewalls. It should be noted, however, that the number indicated on the tire is its maximum inflation pressure and not the pressure recommended by the car manufacturer. Those who operate their vehicles under normal conditions are advised to follow the tire inflation recommendations found in their owner's manuals, on the label in the glove box, or on the doorpost. And, while we are on the subject of tires, car owners should also see what their owner's manuals have to say about tire rotation. Generally speaking, regular tire rotation every 6,000 to 8,000 miles promotes better uniform wear. If you have any questions about your tires, or anything else related to your car, don't hesitate to ask any questions when you bring it into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. We have modern test equipment, the right parts, and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. Let's get acquainted at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are your local source for propane for grills, mobile homes and converted vehicles.

HINT: Under the Uniform Tire Quality Grading law, tire manufacturers are required to grade their own tires in terms of treadwear, traction and temperature resistance.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Marshall School Exercise Program Promotes Fitness, School Pride

The music may have changed, but the idea of promoting fitness and school pride hasn't.

The first official "Marshall School ACES Program (All Children Exercise Simultaneously) was recently held at the school's front circle. The event, although the first for the Marshall Elementary School, was the sixth consecutive year for the staff and students formerly at the Point Webster Elementary School. The idea of 600 students and staff coming together to "work out" sounds difficult, but an enthusiastic and supportive staff can accomplish anything.

The day's event was led by the fifth grade students in Tricia Hannon's class. These students, along with Hannon, teacher Janice Sullivan, and audio director (student) Steven Salvatore was a huge success. Staff and students worked their "bodies" in a program which included a warm-up/stretching component and a progressive cardiovascular component and cool down.

Special thanks to Recreation Director Barry Welch for providing the sound system.

This year's program was a special one thanks to a visit from Uncle Sam Rounseville.

Elder Substance Abuse Program For Seniors At Quincy Hospital

Quincy Hospital's Quincy Heights, in conjunction with Bay State Community Services, is offering a new Elder Substance Abuse Program (ESAP) for seniors who are experiencing a problem with alcohol or medication dependency.

Warning signs for alcohol or medication dependency in seniors include feelings of irritability, annoyance with other's criticism of their drinking, guilt about their drinking, or claiming to drink "just to steady their nerves." Seniors interested in participating in the program or family and friends who are concerned that loved ones may have a dependency problem can contact the ESAP Program Outreach Worker, Scott Hughes, at (617) 471-8400, ext. 113.

The ESAP Outreach Worker is available to meet with seniors in their own homes on Wednesdays from 9 to 11 a.m. and Fridays from 1:30 to 4 p.m., individually, with family members, or with other professionals.

The goal of the program is to help dependent seniors recognize the problem and accept help with the addiction.

Services offered to seniors who accept help include Quincy Heights Partial Hospitalization Program Substance Abuse Track, Bay State Community Service's Intensive Recovery Program, or community providers specializing in substance abuse treatment.

"A recent report by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has called substance abuse among older people 'an invisible epidemic,' said Roberta Guez, program director of Quincy Hospital's Quincy Heights. "We hope that our new ESAP program will help address this silent, but devastating disease."

Medicare, Medicaid, and other insurances are accepted and the program is also available for those who are uninsured.

For more information about ESAP, contact Roberta Guez at (617) 376-4531.

Bay State Services Offering Free Nicotine Replacement Therapy

Bay State Community Services, an affiliate of Quincy Hospital, has been awarded funding from the Department of Public Health to provide free nicotine replacement therapy.

The therapy program provides free nicotine patch or nicotine gum stop smoking aids for eligible adults.

QUINCY LIONS CLUB member Uncle Sam Rounseville is joined by Principal Phil Connolly during a visit the Marshall Elementary School to drum up support for the club's second annual 5K Walk/Run for Sight slated for Sunday, June 6 at Pageant Field.

5K Walk/Run For Sight June 6 Lions Club Looking To Youngsters For Eye Research Support

The Quincy Lions Club will hold its second annual 5K Walk/Run for Sight on Sunday, June 6.

The 5K Walk/Run will start at 11 a.m. Starting and finish line is Pageant Field, Southern Artery.

Last year's race raised $15,000 for eye research and for those who cannot afford eye care.

The club's goal this year is to raise $25,000 by involving all members of the Quincy community, including youngsters. There will be a 1K race for children beginning at 10:30 a.m., and a brand new Pentium II computer for the elementary school whose children raise the most money for the event.

The computer is being donated by Lion member Raj Solaiappan of Presidency Systems.

"We thought that offering a new computer was a great way to help the children who are helping us raise money for such an important cause," said Lions Club President Steven Mansfield. "It gives the children an incentive, while teaching them the value of community involvement."

Lions Club members Uncle Sam Rounseville, Tom Zukauskas, and Michelle Lydon are visiting Quincy elementary schools to explain the program to the children and generate enthusiasm for the race and their participation in it.

It's Sign Up Time For St. John's Golf Outing

Duffers and others are warned to sign up early for St. John's seventh annual golf outing Monday, July 26, at the President's Golf Course in North Quincy.

The entries are limited to the first 120 who register and last year it was a sell-out.

There will be a shotgun start at 8 a.m. with Florida-style mixed teams.

The all-inclusive entry fee of $75 per person includes greens fees, a golf cart, tee package, "Freddie's Famous Dinner" at St. John's Hall and prizes for all participants.

Applications and checks made payable to St. John's Golf Outing should be sent to Bill & Jean Donnelly, 33

Charlesmount Ave., Quincy 02169 (479-9045) or Bob & Jan Kelley, 15 Bower Rd., Unit F-3, Quincy 02169 (479-1440).

Players can sign up as a foursome or assigned to a team by the committee. Please note that no spiked shoes are allowed. Soft spikes and sneakers are required footwear.

Two Holes-In-One At Presidents' Golf Course

Two holes-in-one were recorded on the President's Golf Course Sunday (May 23).

Bill Wallace of 77 Adams St. aced the 150-yard 10th hole with a seven-iron while playing with Ed Czarnecki, Al Nelson and Bill Dooley. He used a Tite-1st ball.

Patrick Fitzgerald of Milton holed out in one on the 140-yard seventh hole, using a nine iron and a Pinnacle ball. His foursome included John Murphy, Tony Donnelly and Joe Mulken.

Matthew Ramponi Honored By St. Joseph's Basketball

By ROBERT CERASOLI II

At the recent St. Joseph's Basketball Banquet, Matthew Ramponi was honored for his outstanding basketball skills and positive leadership role.

Matt's uniform No. 10 was retired and put up on the wall at G.T. Nickerson Center, St. Joseph's School - Home of the Blue Devils, as family, friends, teammates and fans shared in the excitement.

Matt has attended St. Joseph's since kindergarten and has played basketball just as long. He is captain of this year's Blue Devils varsity team which won the Eastern Mass. Conference Championship. He has played for various leagues and has won several awards for his outstanding ballplaying and sportsmanship.

Having his number retired was a well deserved honor for Matt. He is respected by his teammates,

Make-A-Wish Benefit Road Race June 13

The seventh annual Network Plus 5K Road Race to benefit the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Greater Boston will be held Sunday, June 13 in Quincy.

The race begins at 9 a.m. at Network Plus at 324 Copeland St. The course proceeds toward East Milton Square onto Adams St., onto Furnace Brook Parkway and back to Network Plus on Copeland St.

Registration will start at 8 a.m. the morning of the race. Registration is $12 until June 12, and $15 the day of the race. All registered runners will receive a number and the first 250 registrants will receive an official race T-shirt.

Awards and prizes will be given to first male and female runners in all age categories.

Special appearances will include NFL Hall of Famer John Hannah and several New England Patriots cheerleaders.

Last year's race raised $30,000 for the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Greater Boston, a non-profit organization which fulfills wishes of children in Eastern Massachusetts who have been diagnosed with life-threatening diseases. Since 1987, Make-A-Wish has granted more than 900 wishes.

For more information, call Gerry Paras or Frank Moynihan at Network Plus, (617) 786-4000.

Christopher Barra Accepts Judo Scholarship

Christopher M. Barra, a senior at North Quincy High School, has accepted an athletic scholarship in judo from Cumberland College in Kentucky.

The tiny (2,500 students) college in Williamsburg, Ky., has consistently been a powerhouse in collegiate judo, winning eight national championships.

Barra is ranked as an elite judo athlete on the national roster by the U. S. Judo Association and is considered the top male prospect coming out of high school in New England this year.

He won a silver medal in the 1998 USJA junior national championships in Toledo, Ohio, and finished fourth the previous year in Indianapolis. He began judo in the second grade.

Barra will study business at Cumberland.

Spillane & Epstein Takes 3; Yellow Cab, Locker Room, Kenny's, CNA Also Win

Spillane & Epstein won three out of four games in recent Triple A youth baseball action, bowing only to Yellow Cab in a high-scoring, one-run margin game.

A recap of recent games:
Yellow Cab - 18

Spillane & Epstein - 17
Yellow Cab capped off a thrilling come from behind effort. Chris O'Brien continued his hot hitting with 3 singles in 4 at-bats. Mike Ainsley had 2 hits and 4 RBI. Also collecting 2 hits each were Mark Pepjonovich, Justin Boyd, Mike Saville and Brendan Clifford. Mark McAuliffe made a great play in the field preventing 2 runs from scoring.

For Spillane & Epstein, Kyle Daniels and Nick Peters had 2 hits apiece while Jimmy Mullaney scored 4 runs. Taylor Breen was a defensive standout at third base for S & E.

Spillane & Epstein - 13
CHM - 12

For Spillane & Epstein, Brendan Marsters was the winning pitcher striking out 8 batters in 3 innings. He also scored 3 times. Ryan Donovan added to the offense with 2 hits and an RBI. Nick Peters played well as DH scoring twice. Nick Gizzarelli smacked a triple. Matty Young connected for a homerun and 5 RBI.

Consumer Home Mortgage scored 5 runs in the fifth and 3 more in the sixth to make it a close game. Ben Kelliher hit a single, double and triple and scored 3 times. Brian Sorenson went 4-for-5 with an RBI. Jimmy Vey played well with a single and double for 3 RBI.

Spillane & Epstein - 14
Local 2222 - 8

Kyle Daniels powered Spillane & Epstein's offense with 3 homeruns. Jimmy Mullaney went 3-for-4 scoring 3 runs. Nick Lavie played well as DH with a double and 2 RBI. Adding to the offense was Cody Daniels with a double and an RBI while playing well in leftfield.

In the fifth inning back-to-back homers by Shane Carlyle and Matt Palmer started a rally for Local 2222. Paul Farina added two hits including a triple.

Quincy D.A.R.E. - 2

Matt Young pitched a great game for S & E with 10 strikeouts. Mike Naughton reached base both times he was up, adding an RBI. Vinnie Pastore played well hitting two doubles along with an RBI. Taylor Breen played excellent defense at third base.

Biran O'Dea played well for D.A.R.E. hitting a triple and scoring once. John Dalquist added a base hit and an RBI. Jonathan Cahill smacked a double and scored a run.

Locker Room - 8
D.A.R.E. - 6

Justin Weed and Alex Jorgansen combined pitching duties for the win. Vincent Pleva played well defensively at thirdbase for Locker Room. Spencer Peterson was solid behind the plate.

CNA - 7
Locker Room - 3

Johnny Maglioizzi pitched very well for Locker Room in his first start of the season. Christopher Hunter, Brian Mahoney and Justin Weed played a strong game.

Kenny's Lock - 20
Flavin & Flavin - 6

For Kenny's Lock, Jason Thomas had 4 hits including a grand slam. Jeffrey Rackauskas had 2 hits, reached base 5 times, and made several nice plays in the field. Anthony Salvatore reached base 3 times. Dennis Rackauskas went the distance and didn't give up any hits to earn the victory.

Flavin & Flavin's Jonathan Eaton pitched well in relief. Robert Lauder and Matt Eagerly both played well.

Yellow Cab - 6

With the win, Quincy P.A.L. reached the first half of the season with a 7-1-1 record. Steve Yovino, who picked up his second win of the season, and John Murray combined for 10 strikeouts to lead P.A.L. to victory. Steve Yovino also added 3 hits, including 2 doubles for 4 RBI. Nicholas Poli ripped a 2-run hit in the first inning, and Derek Riihimaki made a great catch in left field. Leadoff hitter David Cordiero did his part to help the offense, reaching base 4 times and scoring 3 runs.

For Yellow Cab, Justin Boyd collected two hits and did a good job in his debut as catcher. Matt Clifford sped around the bases for his first Triple A run scored.

Burgin - 11
Rotary - 4

Ryan Collier struck out seven and Justin Thorley had two homers and a double to lead Burgin/Platner.

Thorley went 3-for-3 and Bobby Newcomb and Pat Malone had two hits apiece for the victors.

Brendan Camell got his first hit of the season for Burgin/Platner and Danny McAllister stole three bases.

Tom Ross starred in the field.

Ryan Barter hit a three-run homer and James Spellman belted a solo home run for Rotary.

S. S. Buick - 11
Kiwanis - 5

Mike Arufat fanned 10 and Paul Graham with a homer and John Ridge with a triple led the hitters for South Shore Buick.

Arrufat, John Folino and Matt Haskins also led the hitters while Haskins and Paul Lynch starred in the field.

Billy Dwyer struck out six on the mound for Kiwanis, while Andrew Donovan, Mike Mahoney and Mike McPherson stood out at the plate.

Burgin/Platner - 8
Keohane's - 3

Justin Thorley fanned nine and won his fifth game in a row for Burgin/Platner. He now has 60 strikeouts and an earned run average under 2.00.

Thorley also went 3-for-3 at the plate, including three doubles.

Tony Pepdjonovich had a single and a double, Bobby Newcomb had a pair of hits, Mike Powers had one and Pat Malone had two RBIs.

Colonial Federal - 7
Keohane's 2

Nicholas Malvesti pitched four shutout innings, fanning nine, and Chris Rooney finished up with a strong performance in relief.

Raymond Marchand had two hits in two trips to the plate, John Santon and John Reggiannini each went two-for-three and Jeff Green contributed an important double.

Solid defensive performances were turned in by Daniel Scribi at third Rob DeAngelis in right field and catcher Raymond Marchand.

Nick DeVico played a solid defensive game for Keohane's and had two singles at bat. Michael Dunbar and Michael O'Neil also played well for Keohane's.

Elks Run Unbeaten Streak To 6; Houghs Neck Douses Fire, 11-3

The Elks increased their record to 6-0 with a hard fought win over Barry's Deli, 6-2.

Pat Gregoli and Phil McGillicuddy hooked up in a pitcher's duel with Brigoli picking up his fourth win of the year while scattering 3 hits. McGillicuddy was as impressive giving up seven hits.

The Elks broke a 1-1 deadlock in the fifth inning as Ryan Farnham walked with the bases loaded. Three straight doubles in the sixth by Chris Ham, Dan Duggan, and Steve Reardon broke the game open for the winners. Ham finished with 2 hits, and Reardon had 2 RBI. For Barry's, Walter Perry played well at third base.

Hough's Neck - 11
Fire Dept. - 3

Hough's Neck had 13

Jaehnig Chiropractic - 3
Burke Club - 1

David Jaehnig continued his outstanding pitching as he followed up his no-hitter of last week with a one-hit victory.

Frank McKenna's two base hit was the only safety off Jaehnig, who has given up only one hit in the last 17 innings.

He struck out 13 and helped his own cause with a single, a double and a steal of home.

Chris Marinelli continued the pound the ball with three hits, including a double and an RBI, and Kevin Donovan's double knocked in the game-winning run.

Jon O'Connor and Robbie Dolbec each hit safely.

Zack Eaton was the hard-luck loser on the mound for the Burke Club, fanning seven. Tom Rondall, Glen Gibbons and Tommy Palambros played well for the Burkes.

Jaehnig Chiropractic - 7
Police Department - 2

John Fitzgerald banged out three hits and struck out 10 in pitching a complete game victory.

Kevin Donovan had three hits and Jon O'Connor two while Mike O'Mahoney cracked out a key last inning RBI double.

Chris Marinelli, Dave Jaehnig (a double), Nick Al Katib, Rob Dolbec and Matt Jaehnig were the batting stars for Jaehnig.

Dennis Magaldi and Kevin Richardson had two hits apiece for the Police and Billy Glennon laid down a beautiful bunt single.

Ted Falwell, with a double and a strong mound appearance, also starred.

Colonial Federal - 11
Burke Club - 6

Daniel Reggiannini pitched another strong game for Colonial Federal, recording six strike outs in the three innings he worked.

Then rookies James Nichols and Rob DeAngelis, John Santon, and Raymond Marchand finished up.

Dave Djerf stood out on offense with a triple and four stolen bases. Marchand had two singles, a double and two RBIs for Colonial Federal.

Nick Malvesti belted out two singles and a double with three RBIs. Santon also had two singles and Mike Giordani added a double to right field.

An outstanding catch by third baseman Daniel Scribi saved his team in the fifth inning and Malvesti made a great running catch on Zack Eaton's bid for extra bases.

Steve Straz struck out seven in four innings on the mound for the Burke Club and Joe Griffin fanned four in relief.

Jaehnig Chiropractic - 7
Colonial Federal - 1

Big Mo Al-Khatib hit a three-run homer to clinch the win in the battle for first place.

Matt Jaehnig smacked an RBI single and Dave Jaehnig (a double), John Fitzgerald, Chris Marinelli and Kevin Donovan also hit safely.

Nick Malvesti, John Santon and Rob DeAngelis had hits for Colonial Federal. Ray Marchand and Denny Reggiannini played well on defense.

S. S. Buick - 2

Chris Marinelli belted a tape measure home run in the last inning to seal the victory.

Three 10-year-olds came up big to tie the game in the fifth inning.

Jim Garrigan hustled out an infield single, stole second, went to third on Nick Al Khatib's sacrifice and came home on Matt Jaehnig's two-out single.

John Fitzgerald had two hits, Kevin Donovan and Rob DeAngelis had one and Dave Jaehnig a single.

Dave Jaehnig picked up the win in relief of Jon O'Connor, who pitched a fine game.

John Folino was the losing pitcher despite a gutty effort.

Matt Haskins, Matt Connors and Matt McHugh hit safely for South Shore Buick and John Ridge made three fine defensive plays at third base.

Quincy Kiwanis - 12
Keohane's - 5

Dewey Donovan recorded his first win of the year fanning eight batters in five innings of work.

Leading Kiwanis at the plate were Andy Patton (3 hits), Nick Falbo (3 hits), and Dewey Donovan (2 hits). Other Kiwanis batters with hits were Mike O'Mahoney, Mike Garland and Mike McPherson.

For Keohane's, Joe Bodkin has an outstanding game with 2 hits and several great defensive plays at second base.

In other games: Beacon Sports defeated Keohane's behind good pitching from Paul Lennon and 10-year-old Ken Tolbert made a nice defensive play. Paul Noonan, Dean Sandonato, and Paul Lennon had multiple hit games for Beacon.

Affordable Housing In New Highpoint Plan

plication," Stratouly said, "we had proposed 70 percent two-bedroom units and 30 percent one-bedroom units, but at the request of Councillor Patrick McDermott, we reduced the number of two-bedroom units to 50 percent and increased the number of one-bedrooms to 50 percent to avoid a [financial] impact" of a large number of children on the city.

"The new application, because it must be responsive to families, especially any families with children, calls for 20 percent three-bedroom units, 40 percent two-bedroom units and 40 percent one-bedroom units," said Stratouly.

"The assisted living facility for seniors is out the window." The $22 million of pledged infrastructure improvements also are no longer part new plan, he said. However, water distribution lines and water pressure on Hospital Hill would be improved with the installation of a new cross connection to the Quarry Street water main and water tower.

Stratouly said he submitted the proposal for a comprehensive permit for a couple of reasons.

First, he said, "I own the land and I have to do something with it. At this point, I have spent over $13 million, and it's my land and I have the right to develop it. That's issue number one.

"Second, the City Council's egregious behavior and total disregard for the well-being of Quincy, both on a short-term and long-term basis, made a very responsible project unfeasible and turned it down," he said of his pared down project which the councillors rejected last March.

Stratouly has appealed the decision to Land Court.

"The fact that the councillors rejected the final proposal of fewer than 1,200 units with close to $22 million worth of mitigation after a year-and-a-half of negotiations and discussions with the City Council is egregious," continued Stratouly, "and I am pursuing all my rights and remedies."

"Another issue is we need to develop the land. There is a huge housing need in Greater Metropolitan Boston, and as a comprehensive permit [this development] addresses an overall need for housing but also addresses the critical housing need in the Boston Metropolitan area and in Quincy," he said.

"There's plenty to talk of high income and luxury housing and very little about affordability. "This is a major legislative issue with the governor, with House Speaker Thomas Finneran, who has come out with his own tax proposal.

"And Cardinal Bernard Law has come out with his own form of inducement to create low and moderate income housing.

"Quincy is well below the threshold of low- and moderate-income housing.

"It's fairly serendipitous that [Councillors] Tim Cahill, Steve Durkin and Mike D'Amico have pointed us in this direction. They have created an opportunity for me to take another look at the project and at the economics" of it.

"We think it is a great opportunity for the city to get much needed housing for a constituency which has been totally ignored for the last few years in Quincy...and it's new, high-quality housing."

The development, designed by John M. Sheskey and Associates, looks similar to Congress Group Ventures' Museum Towers housing complex in East Cambridge, only smaller. Thirty-three units in that 435-unit development are reserved for affordable housing.

Last week, workers began erecting a chain-link fence around the 75-acre site which, according to Stratouly, is what he had been requested to do, not only by residents attending the various hearings last year but by public safety officials as well.

"We're doing what we were asked to do," he said, adding that he hopes to start doing necessary environmental work on the site this summer.

Some of the neighbors may be unhappy that he has put up the fence, but "at the end of the day, it is my land. These people have assumed for whatever reason that this land is theirs, and it's not.

"It's not public open space; it's private land," he said. He added that because it is registered land, the concept of adverse possession does not apply.

"The fact that they go claim it as their own land as if it is the Oklahoma land rush is just not acceptable," Stratouly said. "How would you feel if I put a swimming pool in your back yard? I could bring a towel and show up with a cooler and sit on my side of the pool," he laughed.

"Quite seriously," he said, "it's a lot of money, and at the end of the day it's about land rights."

He charged that the city councillors, when they denied his earlier application, "were not thinking about what was good for the city but what was politically expedient for certain councillors to fulfill their ambitions to get to the corner office.

"There are very serious issues here, and I don't take them lightly. I'm trying to responsive, understanding, trying to balance a whole set of issues of private rights and public interest. They are not always parallel; sometimes they are divergent.

"The people of Quincy have a view [of Highpoint] that's Columbia Point revisited," said Stratouly, referring to the former housing complex in Dorchester, near the Kennedy Presidential Library, which was razed and turned into a housing complex with mixed incomes.

Stratouly said the character of his Highpoint proposal has changed dramatically from what would have been oriented to people with very high-end incomes without children — singles, young marrieds and retired people — to family housing that will bring about 600 children to the development.

"This will have a huge impact on the city. Quincy can't stick its head in the sand and ignore this issue [of lack of affordable housing].

"It's a city issue and a regional issue, and there are responsible politicians that are trying to address this issue.

Stratouly said the city is spending more money in court which could be allocated for other programs Quincy is in desperate need of.

Estimating the city's legal fees will cost at least a million dollars, he asked retorically whether that was the best use of the city's money, "particularly when it has a hospital that's upside down, a teachers' contract that needs to be settled, the USS Salem that sucks money out of its coffers and the shipyard."

He estimated that real estate tax revenue would generate more than $1 million annually and excise taxes of more than $500,000 annually when the development is completed. Construction of the project would create 2,000 jobs, he said, and would provide about 100 permanent jobs.

The zoning board will have 30 days to hold a public hearing on the comprehensive permit.

"It's going to be a long summer," said Stratouly. "I'm not planning on going any place this summer."

Comer Grand Marshal Quincy Flag Day Parade

Quincy native John 'Jake' Comer has been named grand marshal of the 1999 Flag Day Parade, announces the Quincy Flag Day Parade Committee.

The parade will step off at 7 p.m. on Saturday, June 12.

Comer is a past National Commander of the American Legion (1987-1988), the nation's largest veterans' organization. During his tenure as National Commander, he raised more than $1.1 million for the Child Welfare Fund. During that time, he represented the American Legion in all 50 states and in 18 foreign countries.

He has also served as commander of the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion.

Comer is a U.S. Air Force veteran of the Korean War. He served from 1951 to 1954 and was honorably discharged in 1955.

He and his wife, Eileen, have two daughters, a son, six grandsons and a granddaughter.

"Each year the Flag Day Committee selects someone as Grand Marshal who embodies the spirit of Quincy's Flag Day parade; the love of country and community," said Flag Day Chairman Thomas Koch.

JAKE COMER

"For decades, Jake has worked hard on a variety of benevolent causes; from veterans' issues to disabled housing, he has been there to fight for the needs of others. We are happy to recognize such a figure from our own community as our Grand Marshal," Koch said.

Comer served as the executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority from 1982 to 1997. Prior to that he worked as the City of Quincy's assessor from 1969 to 1976.

Comer has been presented numerous awards for his service to the community, including: the 1983 Distinguished Service Award of the Manet Community Health Center, the 1985 Distinguished Service Award of the South Shore Mental Health Center, the 1989 Unity Award from the Ward 2 Civic Association, the 1993 James R. McIntyre Good Scout Award; and the 1997 WORK Inc. Probud Award for his commitment to the disabled.

President George Bush named him to the Korean War Veterans Memorial Advisory Board in 1990. He also served on State Treasurer Joe Malone's "Hero's Welcome Charitable Trust" which raised $800,000 in private funds to provide a bonus for each man and woman who served during the Persian Gulf War.

Comer will be marching in the Flag Day Parade alongside the Waltham Post Band and a large contingent of color guards from various Legion posts throughout Massachusetts that Comer has served with over the years.

For more information on the Quincy Flag Day Parade, call 376-1251.

'Choral Masterworks' Opens Friday At ENC

Eastern Nazarene College A Cappella Choir and Chamber Singers, with members of the New England Conservatory Symphony Orchestra, will present "Choral Masterworks" on Friday, May 28 at 7:30 p.m. in Jordan Hall at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston.

ENC's A Cappella Choir, established in 1938 by Professor Esther Williamson, will celebrate the conclusion of its 61st concert season. The Choir, conducted by Professor Timothy Shelter, strives to develop excellence in the performance of choral music, ranging from the Renaissance Period to the 20th century.

The Chamber Singers, 25 voices of the 78 in the Choir, explore music of the European Renaissance and chamber music of the 19th and 20th centuries.

Concert repertoire includes Janequin's La Guerre, Brahms' Schicksalsspiel, and selections from Mendelssohn's Elijah. Soloists for the Elijah selections include Gayle Berman, soprano; Jean Danton, soprano; Erin Bretsch, alto; Murray Kidd, tenor; and Thomas Jones, baritone.

Tickets are $14, $12 for students and senior citizens, and can be purchased at the door or by calling the New England Conservatory's Jordan Hall Box Office at 617-536-2412, the Eastern Nazarene College Alumni Office at 1-800-R-I-N-G-E-N-C, or the ENC Box Office at 617-745-3715.

PODIATRY TRAINING

Did you ever wonder about the training of your podiatrist? Since we are asked that question in our office so frequently we decided it would be a perfect topic for "Footprints."

After finishing college, we attended a four year accredited Podiatric Medical School (there are only seven in the country). The first two years are spent in the classroom taking subjects related to the whole body. The last two years are typically spent in a clinical environment getting a more "hands on" education.

After Podiatry school, most doctors go on to do a residency that can be from one to three years, depending on the focus of the residency. Many podiatrists are surgically trained to correct bunions, hammertoes and many other procedures. Some podiatrists do a residency focused more on conservative treatment of foot problems.

Before practicing in most states there is also a board examination that must be passed to get privileges to practice. Optional board certification examinations also exist to certify podiatrists in surgery, primary podiatric medicine, orthopedics and more.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

A Thought For The Week

On this Memorial Day let us remember that this day signifies, perhaps more deeply than any other, patriotic observance, the soul of America. The patriots to be remembered on this day represent every generation of Americans.

They fell in battles widely separated by distance and time. Some came from families long established in America; many others were new to the land. These patriots differed in color, in religious beliefs, in political faith and in other ways which historically have divided the human family...

And so, on this Memorial Day, let us solemnly pay tribute to these fallen heroes... Let us spare a prayer of thanksgiving that there have always been men and women willing to offer the ultimate sacrifice so that our national ideals could endure.

Jean Landers, 68

Retired Quincy School Teacher

A funeral service for Jean Landers, 68, of Marshfield, a retired Quincy Public School teacher, was conducted May 21 by the Rev. Robert Jackson, First Congregational Church, at MacDonald Funeral Home, Marshfield.

Miss Landers died May 16 at the Center for Optimum Care in Falmouth after a long illness.

She worked as a teacher in the Quincy Public School System for many years before retiring 13 years ago.

Born in Milton, she graduated from Milton High School and received a masters degree in elementary education from Boston State College.

Daughter of the late William B. and Marion B. (Gould) Landers, she is survived by five cousins.

Burial was private in Milton Cemetery.

John H. Dunham, 77

Retired Boston Police Officer

A funeral Mass for John H. Dunham, 77, of Quincy, a retired Boston police officer, was celebrated Wednesday at St. Joseph's Church.

Mr. Dunham died Sunday at Milton Hospital.

He was a Boston police officer for 35 years, retiring in 1986. He worked at Station 19.

He was a Marine Corps veteran of World War II, serving in the Pacific Theatre.

Born in Allston, he lived in West Roxbury before moving to Quincy seven years ago.

He attended Boston schools.

Husband of the late Frances E. (Paglia) Dunham, Mr. Dunham is survived by a son, John A.

Dunham of Quincy; two daughters, Susan A. Street of Belmont and Judith F. Revan of Roslindale; two sisters, Kay Rettinger and Charlotte Dwyer, both of California; and three grandchildren.

Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, Milton.

Find at least six differences in details between panels.

Differences: 1. Fence not in background. 2. Window in background. 3. Book is upside down. 4. Smoke is missing.

CRITIC'S CORNER

ARLINGTON ROAD: A gripping contemporary thriller about the terrible truth that can hide behind everyday appearances, this flick is an intense, edge-of-your-seat journey that reveals just how little we know about the world around us.

Witnessed, when his FBI agent wife is killed by a right-wing group, college professor Michael Faraday (Jeff Bridges) becomes obsessed with the culture of these groups - especially when his new neighbors, the all-American Oliver and Cheryl Lang (Tim Robbins and Joan Cusack), start acting suspiciously. With each twist, the mystery deepens and the questions - is Faraday just consumed by fear and driven by paranoia, or has a lethal conspiracy been born on Arlington Road?

This one's a stunner! Don't miss it!

THE THIRTEENTH FLOOR: On the thirteenth floor of a downtown corporate tower, visionaries

Douglas Hall (Curtis) and Hanson Fuller (Armin Mueller-Stahl) have taken virtual reality technology to its apex by creating a living, breathing simulation of 1937 Lo Angeles on a computer chip. When a confused Ha awakens to discover bloody slabs in his house and Fuller murdered, Ha becomes the prime suspect. Did he do it? Why can't I remember? To find the answers, Hall must cross the boundaries between the 'real' world and the simulated world he has created.

But the lines between fantasy and reality blur when Hall meets the beautiful and mysterious Jane (Gretchen Mol) and experiences an eerie sense of deja-vu. Ultimately, Hall must enter the thirteenth floor to confront not only the truth about his innocence, but the reality of his own existence.

This is another one that'll have you on the edge of your seat!

Your Horoscope

by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Now is one of the times when you are content to simply exist. You are capable of achieving much, but it feels best to do and say nothing at all.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Seek out the person who knows you best, and allow yourself the luxury of collapsing in their arms. You need some support but it can't come from a stranger.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your mood may fluctuate in unpredictable and unconvincing patterns. You can't control your emotions, so follow them and enjoy the ride.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Relationships, both old and new, blossom in unexpected ways. Tell an old friend how much they mean to you, and create precious memories with your current partner.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You are easily flustered now, and your feelings are extremely vulnerable. Find a safe, private spot and stay there for awhile.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Utilize twice as much caution as normal when dealing with others. Speak softly, keep a positive tone and save emotional outbursts for the privacy of your home.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) More may be accomplished through teamwork than by moving independently. Being part of a team will give you some emotional support right now.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The idea of a love affair appeals to you, but you don't have time to find the right person. Know that when the time is right, you won't need to look quite so hard.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You feel particularly warm and loving toward everyone. Since you have achieved inner peace, you can support people without needing anything in return.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The comforts and cares of the material world are particularly important right now. You have been dragged firmly down to earth and have no time for esoteric exploration.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 19) Spend an evening out this week with immediate or extended family. Enjoy your time while reminiscing with siblings or cousins whom you haven't seen in a while.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) There may be an excess of emotional demands placed on you. You can't answer to everyone immediately; tell people to give you more time.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK ... A bold approach is the best approach, and no challenge is too great. These are the mottos by which you live. You like to be the best at everything - and you usually are. Physical and mental exercise are important to you. Be aware of your tendency to be overly competitive or combative.

Public Works Awards Presented

School for third place. Montclair School won first place for its community project, followed by the Squantum School and Beechwood Knoll School. Jennifer Berfield, a fifth grader at the Merrymount School, was singled out for her essay in a writing contest.

Long-time public works employees also were recognized for a quarter century of service. They were Richard Saari, John Cunningham and John Gray. Richard Simone was presented a safety award by his co-workers. In a moment of levity, three other public works employees were presented the DPW's fishing fiasco award for a fishing derby they organized. They were Tom Travers, Brian Carlisle and Tony DiStasi.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton said this was the eighth year that the city has celebrated National Public Works Week. Sponsor for the community awards was Earth Tech, a consultant for the DPW, while Peters Automotive Resource Inc. sponsored the banner and essay contests.

On Thursday, the public works department held an open house for more than 500 students who visited the facility.

The city of Quincy won a national award for its 'out-reach work in encouraging recycling efforts citywide and engaging the community to become involved.

Hancock Park Facility Receives 'Deficiency Free' Rating

Hancock Park department of Public Health's benchmarks of quality.

"When we opened our doors in October of 1996, we promised to bring quality healthcare to Quincy," he said, "Our staff works hard to achieve this recognition, and continues to provide quality care. We view our deficiency free rating as another step towards excellence."

This annual Medicare/Medicaid recertification survey is part of a State and Federal regulatory process to validate the quality of life and care provided to residents. At the survey's conclusion, Hancock Park was awarded a 100 percent deficiency free status; meaning that all were in substantial compliance.

Richard Johnson, executive director of Hancock Park, praised caregivers and nonprofessional employees in working to achieve the

Sees 1,641-Unit Plan Reduced

Cahill Takes Issue With Highpoint Developer

Just because a developer has proposed building 1,641 apartments off Quarry Street, that does not mean a project of that size will be built, Councillor-at-large Timothy Cahill said Tuesday.

Last week Congress Group Ventures filed a request for a comprehensive permit to build 1,641 apartments, with 410 units earmarked for affordable housing. The Zoning Board of Appeals has scheduled a hearing at 6:30 p.m. June 22 at City Hall.

"One thing I want people to understand is that the Zoning Board of Appeals

TIM CAHILL

'I just want to make sure people don't think it's a done deal.'

will have a say about the size of it," said Cahill.

Ten years ago, when Ricciardi applied for a comprehensive permit for that site, his initial application was for nearly 1,400 units, but after several hearings over a period of nine months, the ZBA issued a comprehensive permit for 975 units, said Cahill, who was a member of the city council at that time. In addition, there were 32 pages of conditions the Zoning Board imposed.

Cahill, who had opposed the large-scale Highpoint development from the beginning, charged Tuesday

Sheets Concerned About Union

Hospital Negotiations 'Moving Forward'

By MARILYN JACKSON
Mayor James Sheets Tuesday was exuding confidence about the proposed affiliation of Quincy Hospital and Boston Medical Center.

He had just come out of an hour-long meeting with officials from BMC.

"I had a good trip to Washington Friday, and I have developed a good level of comfort in terms of receiving funding from the federal and state government."

"Just on that basis, negotiations are really moving forward," said Sheets. "All the signs are there."

He said he has met with Sen. Edward Kennedy and has pledged to do everything he can. In addition, he has met with U.S. Rep. J. Joseph Moakley of South Boston as well as U.S. Rep. William Delahunt to promote the affiliation.

"They are supportive," he said.

He said he could not detail the funding strategies, including whether or not special legislation would be needed for state funding.

"The real area we have to work through is the union issue," said Sheets. "I don't have the same level of comfort there."

"I believe we will get the funding, but I'm not convinced we will be able to work out the concerns of the union."

"Maybe in a week or two, I will feel differently," he said.

Assistant City Solicitor Kevin Madden and labor lawyer David Grunebaum were expected to meet with a coalition of union repre-

Public Hearing June 9 New Plans For $30-M Retirement Complex

By MARILYN JACKSON

Plans to construct a $30 million retirement community in a three-building campus off Falls Boulevard have been amended to incorporate a 24-hour care nursing facility and a smaller assisted living facility than previously proposed.

A joint hearing on the proposed changes is scheduled before the city council and planning board at 8 p.m. June 9 at City Hall. The property lies within a Planned Unit District, tucked behind Bradlees on Quincy Avenue and adjacent to Faxon Park.

The 99-bed long-term care facility in the retirement community would be housed in a three-story, steel-framed building, with an adjacent four-story wing which would house 85 assisted living units.

There would be 57 nursing suites; most would include two beds, while there would be a few single-patient rooms. This wing also would rehabilitation suites. "It's not just for the elderly," said attorney Dennis Harrington.

Harrington, who represents the proponents, explained that the construction of the Faxon Woods Life Care Community would be the first time the full spectrum of nursing care would be provided at one campus.

The proposal had received approvals for a different configuration of units last year, said Harrington.

It's Official: Sheets Seeks Sixth Term

It's official.

Mayor James A. Sheets will seek a sixth term as mayor.

"I'm formally telling you I'd run again," Sheets said Tuesday.

"I think I can bring the hospital negotiations to a successful conclusion," he said.

But the proposed hospital affiliation is not the only project on his plate.

"Within the next two years, Squantum Gardens can be developed and the construction of the first ship at the Fore River will be under way, and the Quarry Hills golf course will be done," he said.

"The next two years will be exciting for the projects I have started."

"The hospital issue is so important, and I'm on top of that. I think I'll be successful bringing that to a conclusion and it will be an even better facility.

"I am looking forward to serving another two years," he said.

Sheets has had a long political career in Quincy, having been elected a city councillor in 1973 and serving consecutively until 1989 when he was elected mayor in 1990.

And, from 1975 to 1978 he also served as a state representative.

Restaurant Opening Delayed Again

Plagued by structural problems, the Naked Fish restaurant on Adams St. has delayed their opening for the second time, and will not open this month after all.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman told the License Board Tuesday that he had visited four restaurants in the city which are under construction.

He said the Naked Fish had many "unforeseen" structural problems and said they had to virtually "gut" the old building out, and hope now to open in August.

When the owner first purchased the former Hollow Restaurant, he had visions of opening right after Easter. Then that was delayed until this month. And now, the opening is targeted for August.

Owners of the restaurant are being notified to meet with the License Board on June 29.

Other restaurants that have been under construction for several months and are being notified for the June 29 meeting are Louie's Cafe in Houghs Neck which Gorman said the "shell was up", X & O in Quincy Center, (former Mando's), and Walsh's Restaurant in North Quincy.

Mexican Fast Food Restaurant Approved

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

A new fast food restaurant called OK Jose Taqueria, which will feature "real Mexican food" was approved by the License Board Tuesday, and will open shortly at 1502 Hancock St., across from the former Remick's. It was formerly Rick's Diner.

Addressing the License Board, owner Santiago Villanueva said that the other restaurants in Quincy are not "real" Mexican food as he knows it, and that his will feature the real thing including tacos, tortillas, salsas and other items. (the other restaurants in the city feature Tex Mex and California type Mexican food.)

Villanueva also owns the factory that will be making all these tacos at the former Merrymount Bowling Alley. He said construction is still ongoing and will probably be ready to open in about three weeks.

Health Commissioner Jane Galloway said she will meet with the State Department of Public Health about the factory because of its production of wholesale products.

Villanueva, whose factory was formerly housed in Jamaica Plain, said his restaurant will also feature "take-out".

Chairman Joseph Shea told the board that he visited Villanueva's factory in Jamaica Plain with Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi where they tried to "lure" him into moving to Quincy, which ultimately proved successful.

Villanueva said renovations for the new restaurant will be minimal with a new face and signage.

Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott speaking in support of the new venture called Villanueva a "great success story" saying the business venture is a "wonderful benefit" to the city and said he was grateful for the "new jobs it will bring into the city."

Villanueva said he hopes to open the restaurant in about six weeks.

Promotions At Liquor Spots Need Board's Approval

In an effort to control various promotions, Chairman Joseph Shea of the License Board said Tuesday, he will be sending out letters to all liquor establishments in the city requesting that all promotions be cleared with the board prior to running them.

The promotions usually consist of T-shirt and hat giveaways which are permitted in the City of Quincy. However, some establishments are running certain promotions that feature products not sold in restaurants, or bars. (E-Z Wider paper, etc.)

Owners of the establishments will be told to contact Det. Lt. Robert Perchard, Quincy Liquor Inspector to receive permission to run promotions. Normal approved promotions will still be allowed in the city.

Quincy Keynote Speaker: Americans Losing Memorial Day Connection

Quincy dignitaries Monday honored those who paid the ultimate price and gave their lives in the service of their country during Memorial Day exercises.

In the blistering heat, veterans, high school marching bands and city officials paraded from School Street to Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, pausing at the First Parish Church to place wreaths on the tombs of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

Cdr. Paul Molloy, USNR, of the Naval Reserve Center in Quincy, delivered the keynote address.

"For decades, Memorial Day was a day in our nation when stores closed and communities gathered together for a day of parades and other celebrations with a patriotic theme," he began.

Today, he said, many view Memorial Day as a three-day weekend or a major shopping day, but the patriotic core — the spirit of remembrance — is absent...

"You understand that on Memorial Day we honor the ideals and values those soldiers stood for and died defending," he told the audience, which included two centenarians, former school committeeman Frank Anselmo who served in both World Wars I and II and Winifred Lancy, a Gold Star Mother whose son, Norman Lancy was killed during World War II in a B-24 bomber flying over Germany.

"Sadly, many Americans have lost this connection with their history," Molloy continued, noting that many Americans have no relatives or neighbors who serve now or have ever served in the military and that the majority of members of Congress today have not served in the military.

Memorial Day symbolizes a time when Americans should take a clear look at the past and at the future and acknowledge the debt owed to those men and women who "because they so cherished peace chose to live as warriors."

"Could anything be more contradictory than the lives of our soldiers?" he asked rhetorically.

"They love America, so they spend long years in foreign lands...They revere freedom, so they sacrifice their own that we may be free.

"They defend our right to live as individuals, yet yield their individuality in that cause...They value life and so bravely ready themselves to die in the service of our country," he said.

For more than 220 years, the military has provided a bastion against enemies. With the end of the Cold War, defense spending was slashed, requiring all the service branches to operate more efficiently.

As a result, the Reserve forces have stepped in to provide needed support to the active forces, and they too should be commended.

Adoption Information Meeting June 16

Interfaith Social Services (ISS) will hold an adoption information meeting, free of charge, on Wednesday, June 16, at 7 p.m. the Best Western Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Adoption social workers from ISS will present information on adopting children born in the U.S. and internationally. A local family, who has adopted through ISS, as well as an adoptee, will share their personal experiences and answer questions.

Adoption offers children a chance to live in loving, nurturing homes. Massachusetts has thousands of children waiting for families; while countless of other children throughout the U.S. and around the world also wait. At the information meeting, one can learn more about becoming adoptive parents and how to help these children be part of their caring home.

Interfaith Social Services (formerly Protestant Social Service Bureau) is a private, non-profit, non-sectarian agency, which has been providing adoption services since 1974. ISS places children of all races and religions.

For more information or to register, call Interfaith Social Services in Quincy at 617-773-6203.

Will He Or Won't He?

Suddenly, there's a hot question burning along the local political front.

Will he or won't he?

He is Paul Harold.

And, the full question: will he or won't he run for mayor. This year.

The buzz was loud last week and louder over the Memorial Day weekend with some observers flatly predicting Harold is going to run.

One elected official was so sure he even forecast last Friday as the big announcement day. Wrong.

Others think it will come in 10 days or so.

Harold himself is pretty mum. He isn't saying yes or no or even maybe.

As of Tuesday he hadn't taken out nomination papers for re-election as councillor-at-large. But that may not be any indication he's going to run for mayor. Tim Cahill hasn't take out his papers yet, either. They have until July 27 to pick them up and file them.

But, Harold does look like a man who is doing some serious thinking.

Will he run?

Since speculation here two weeks ago that he might be thinking of running, Harold has had a number of people in political, business and civic circles urging him to go for it.

With his powerful vote-getting track record through the years, he would certainly be a formidable challenger to incumbent James Sheets. And the first major one since Sheets took office.

But others are urging him to be patient and wait two years. Issues will be clearer then, they think. And, this year, some feel, could be Sheets' Last Hurrah. That he could very well decide 12 years as mayor is enough.

And there are those who remember a pretty young city council president by the name of Jim McIntyre who took on a popular incumbent mayor by the name of Amelio Della Chiesa in 1959.

Della Chiesa won but it is still remembered as one of the great mayoral campaigns in the city's history.

And McIntyre did become mayor--after Della Chiesa left office

SHEETS

MAYOR SHEETS feels sure that Weymouth made the right move when voters approved a charter change to a mayor-council form of government.

Because of its size, he believes Weymouth has outgrown the town meeting form of government it has had for 375 years. The new charter, he says, will streamline and make operation of the government more efficient.

But, he cautions, it is paramount that the first mayor be the right one.

"The first mayor," he says, "will have the opportunity to set a good precedent and get the new form of government off on the right foot."

It will also be a challenge for the first mayor, he says, because everyone will be watching to see what he--or she--and the new government can do compared to the old way.

SPEAKING OF SHEETS, it shouldn't surprise anyone that he has taken out nomination papers for re-election to a sixth term.

He already holds the longevity record for mayor under Quincy's Plan A charter. A sixth term will give him 12 years and one that may stand well into the 21st century.

TWO CITY COUNCIL at-large candidates have stepped forward.

Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg of Clay St. and Kevin Worley of Nielsen Ave., have taken out nomination papers.

Stenberg, a seniors advocate and former Wollaston businesswoman, has run at-large before. Worley, a controller, apparently is a first-time candidate.

GERMANTOWN GIRL SCOUT Troop 4998 was all decked out in snappy new T-shirts and caps for the Memorial Day parade, thanks to City Council President Peter Kolson.

Kolson purchased the shirts and caps for the approximate 26 troop members.

"They looked beautiful," he says.

SUPERIOR COURT OFFICER William Weed, candidate for the Ward 1 City Council seat, has a campaign kick-off fundraiser tomorrow (Friday), 7 to 11 p.m., at the Quincy Yacht Club.

Tickets are $25.

AND, Joseph Newton, running for the Ward 6 council seat, has a reception coming up Thursday, June 10, 7 p.m. at the Adams Inn, Hancock St., North Quincy. Tickets are $10.

McDermott Campaign Kick-Off Saturday

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott will formally announce his campaign for re-election Saturday, June 5 from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The evening will feature a cash car, barbecue and entertainment. Tickets are $15.

McDermott, first elected to the Ward 3 council seat in 1995, will be seeking his third term.

Child Abduction Prevention Program At Beechwood

"SCI Escape School" will be offered to Quincy families on Thursday, June 10 at 7 p.m. at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Quantum St., Quincy.

The workshop is sponsored by Beechwood and the Deware Funeral Home. Scott Deware, a child abduction prevention expert of SCI Escape School, will present important information in a fun and entertaining manner to children ages 5-15 and their parents.

Techniques to be taught include steps to take to stay safe; how to identify a stranger by how they act (not necessarily by how they look); and why all the rules change in dangerous situations.

Deware has traveled nationally to educate children and adults about safety prevention through this program. "Escape School" has also been featured on national programs such as "The Oprah Winfrey Show" and "48 Hours."

The program is free and open to the public. For more information, call 617-471-5712.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A TURN of the century view of the public landing near Harvey's Wharf at the end of Houghs Neck. A channel had been dredged to allow steamboats like the one on the right to come here at low tide. The building and the other structures at the end of the pier are long gone but the pier remains. It will become a key component in the revitalization of the Harvey's Wharf area. A variety of waterfront activities are planned for here including a long overdue base for Quincy's Harbormaster.

Saving For Teachers' Salaries

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I would like to respond to the many letters directed to teachers' contracts in Quincy.

Teachers are shaping and influencing our children's minds often more than our parents. Our teachers are shaping our future. They are teaching because they love to teach, otherwise they may have already replaced their profession to something more lucrative profession.

Let us see how the money can be found.

To find the money for teachers' contracts, I would like to propose that the city would examine carefully how much they would save if they would fix the following problem, and perhaps in the few months or in a year's time there would perhaps be enough accumulated savings to give the teacher their due wages.

The shower-heads at the Lincoln Hancock Pool do not have shut-offs. They have been broken for years. Therefore, each time one person takes a shower, the entire system is turned on from the main shut-off. This means that there could be between 8-12 showers running hours at a time and even if no one is using them.

This means gallons of hot water is needlessly running down the drain. It is not only a terrible waste of natural resources, but also public money. By simply replacing the shower heads' shut-offs could perhaps pay for itself in matter of weeks on the electric and water bill.

The savings could start accumulating revenue and be placed under the line item of "teachers' salaries."

Shopping Carts Issue Needs Community Input

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
My experience with the Stop & Shop, Shaw's and the DFW regarding the retrieval of abandoned shopping carts has been fairly positive.

I call them every week and they do a pretty good job, but the next day, "they're back." It's frustrating; these carts are a constant eyesore throughout my neighborhood. It's hard to be sympathetic towards someone who takes a cart without permission, uses it to his or her own advantage, and then shoves it down the street.

Is it too much to expect people to walk these carts back to the store, so that other customers may use them?

We need a multi-lingual, public relations effort, via cable TV, local radio, local newspapers, flyers and mailings, informing all residents of Quincy that this practice is a detriment to our neighborhoods.

Let's not rush to dismiss this problem as a "non-issue," when so many people are upset and anxious for a solution. City officials have met with store managers, but they have not sought input from the community.

We need to work together in order to address this issue.

April Was A Cruel Month

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
T.S. Eliot wrote "April is the cruellest month, breeding lilacs out of the dead land". Cruellest, with a double "L"... British style from "The Wasteland".

Running true to form, April was also a cruel month at Columbine High School where a pair of disgruntled students shot 13 others to death. And as we clamor to explain that carnage, we're as quiet as a herd of turtles to the violence and immorality our children are subjected to everyday on television.

Press the TV remote and you'll surely be greeted with heartbreaking misery in Yugoslavia. A little girl's rag doll dangling from a tree branch in the aftermath of a

NATO air strike doesn't instill jingoistic pride in many Americans, only deep revulsion and shame! (Children are acutely aware of such things.)

Press it again, you'll see ugly women trying to claw each other's eyes out on "The Jerry Springer Show" (usually over a man...or another woman). Click it again, you'll get professional wrestling exhibitions (not to be confused with legitimate wrestling matches). In the exhibitions you'll see everything but fair play and human decency exhibited toward one another. Brotherrrr! We know it's Show Biz, however, young minds are very impressionable. One more click and welcome to "The Howard Stern Show!"

(Howard's show needs no further explanation).

We've thrown our Heavenly Father out of school and replaced Him with secularism...and now we don't know where we went wrong. Could today's troubles be just a classic case of The Chickens Coming Home to Roost?

Pops Conductor To Lead Quantum July 4th Concert

By PAUL HAROLD

Arthur Fiedler, the nationally known director of the Boston Pops Orchestra, said this week he would lead the band concert, following the annual Quantum July 4th neighborhood parade.

June 3 - 9

38 Years Ago

Charles Ward, the parade chairman, said the concert would take place at Wendell Moses Playground, make up of the six bands scheduled to march in the parade.

It was also announced that the Cataldo family would be in charge of the athletic events that would be part of the July 4th program.

BLUE LAWS BAN JULY FOURTH FIREWORKS

In a related story this week, a spokesman for the Quincy Fire Department said that no "noise making, fireworks display nor certain carnival activities," would be allowed on July 4th in the city. It was noted that Blue Law restrictions applied to the state's seven holidays, including Independence Day.

The move to strictly enforce the state's 300-year-old Blue Laws came following a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, upholding the ancient statutes.

Responding to the high court's ruling, Governor John Volpe asked for a review of the Blue Laws. He noted that a strict enforcement could hurt a great number of people.

STUDENTS TAKE OVER CITY

Some 200 ninth grade students "took over city government" as part of the annual junior high school student government day.

The program was organized by Quincy Point Junior High School teacher Patrick Pappalardo and Kenneth Gardner, personnel director.

Students assumed the roles of department heads as well as posts in the police and fire departments. By lottery, Broad Meadows student William Waters of Rock Island Rd. was named "Mayor for the Day."

Mixed Bag Of Potatoes

It's cook-out time! And naturally, we couldn't wait to clean up the yard, so we could grill to our heart's content.

Instead of cooking the vegetables in the house, I found a great way to cook some potatoes outside as well.

I have been mixing sweet and white potatoes together, either roasted, fried or otherwise. So with the heavy duty aluminum wrap, this is a cinch. And you don't have to clean, just throw the foil away.

Sweet And White Potato Bake

3 sweet potatoes, peeled and cut into 1/4 inch pieces.

3 white potatoes, also peeled and cut the same way.

1 small onion (chopped)

salt and pepper to taste

2 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil (or melted butter)

In a bowl, mix the potatoes with the oil or butter, salt and pepper until blended.

In a large sheet of foil tuck the sides and place the potatoes and wrap leaving a little room on top for air to circulate. Grill for 20-25 minutes, or until potatoes are tender. (for a different bake, add apples and raisins in place of the white potatoes.)

Aviation History Meeting At Beechwood June 9

An aviation history meeting will be held Wednesday, June 9 at 7 p.m. at the Beechwood Community Life Center, East Squantum St., North Quincy.

North Quincy Alumni Theatre To Present 'The Foreigner'

The North Quincy Alumni Theatre will conclude its 1998-99 season this month with The Foreigner, a comedy by Larry Shue and directed by Tracey Phelan.

Performance dates are June 10, 11, 12, 17, 18, and 19, at 8 p.m., at the Black Box Theatre at North Quincy High School, Hancock St.

The Foreigner takes place at Betty Meek's Fishing Lodge Resort in rural Georgia where an unusual cast of characters fuel the hilarity of the play and set up the wildly funny climax in which things go uproariously astray for the "bad guys" and the "good guys" emerge triumphant.

The cast includes Tim Brown, Chris Driscoll, Bob Heim, Michael Jorgenson, Evelyn Moffett, Jimmy Phelan, and Jim Ryan.

Tickets are $10, $8 for senior citizens and students.

To reserve tickets, call (617) 984-8998.

Kimberly Huerth Advances To State Lions Speech Competition

North Quincy High School senior Kimberly Huerth, first place winner in the Quincy Lions Club annual Speech Contest, has advanced to the state competition.

Huerth also won first place among the regional and district club winners. In the state competition, she will represent approximately 55 clubs in District 33K.

As a result of her first place achievements thus far, Huerth has received a combined total of $1,250. She is eligible to win an additional $1,500.

The topic of the speech students were required to address was, "What Can Young People Do to Show Leadership?" The theme of Kimberly's essay focused on her belief that in order to have leadership, you need to have vision.

The state competition will be held Saturday, May 15. She will compete with four other first place district winners in the state.

When asked to comment on Kimberly's speech and success thus far, Speech Contest committee member Brenda Miller said Kimberly "really marches like a drummer," and that she is very "articulate and skilled with her speaking and writing."

"This is the first Quincy contestant to get this far in the competition and I am confident and hopeful that Kim will make it all the way," said David Kale, Speech Contest coordinator for the Quincy Lions.

King Lion Steve Mansfield, on behalf of the Quincy Lions, continues to cheer for Kimberly's success.

Marilyn Reisberg Art Exhibit

Marilyn Reisberg of the Quincy Art Association, has an exhibit of her paintings at Borders Books, Grossman Drive, Braintree now

THE PAINFUL HEEL

Heel pain is one of the most common complaints seen in the podiatrist's office. Many people complain of pain when they first get up in the morning, or pain when first standing after periods of sitting. After several minutes of walking the pain often subsides.

This condition is known as plantar fasciitis or inflammation of the plantar fascia. The plantar fascia is a thick band of connective tissue that attaches to the heel and spans the bottom of the foot. It functions to support the arch.

Very often, stress on the plantar fascia due to a person's foot type, running and jumping activities and even weight can lead to a strain of the plantar fascia or small tears in the fascia. Treatment depends on the cause of the plantar fasciitis and include such options as orthotics, oral or injectable anti-inflammatory medicine, physical therapy, foot taping, and even shoe modifications. If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy, Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Business banking with people. What a concept!

We admit it. In today's world of voice mail, internet and digital interconnect, the idea of speaking face-to-face with an experienced

It's how we do business banking here at The Bank of Canton.

McCauley To Seek Re-Election To Council

Councillor at-large and former mayor Francis X. McCauley announces his candidacy for re-election to a sixth term on the city council.

McCauley stressed he has served 10 years on the council both as Ward 1 councillor and councillor at-large, eight years on the school committee and four two year terms as mayor between 1982 and 1990.

"I have served in all four local elective offices, the only person in the history of Quincy to do so," McCauley said.

He pointed to, as among, his accomplishments:

- During his tenure as mayor, the city filed a successful environmental lawsuit against the MDC which led to a court ordered cleanup of Quincy Bay and the closing of Nut Island as a sewage treatment plant.

- A modern addition to and renovation of Quincy Hospital was completed during his administration.

- As mayor, he worked with the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women to establish an after school day care program in Quincy elementary schools. The program, which provides day care for children of working parents, started at the Montclair School and has expanded to seven other schools.

FRANK McCAULEY

As mayor, he appointed women to full-time positions and as board members in areas that had been male-dominated.

McCauley noted that during the past two years as councillor at-large he has served as chairman of the council's Health and Hospital Committee and has been working with Mayor James Sheets' administration and a hospital task force to financially restructure the hospital and keep it operating as an acute care hospital for Quincy and South Shore residents.

McCauley and his wife of 45 years, the former Sandra MacKinnon, live at 210 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck. They are the parents of five children and grandparents of 11.

McCauley is a graduate of Boston College High School, attended Boston College and is a graduate of Bentley College.

At age 69, he is the only senior citizen on the city council.

"My experience has also included over 25 years in the private sector, retiring as president of a local bank upon election as mayor. I have served the state of Massachusetts as director of the State Retirement Board."

"I have been involved in many civic organizations, serving as president of the Lions Club and the Houghs Neck Community Council. I was a governor's appointee to the Quincy Housing Authority, serving a five-year term, one year as chairman."

"I have made public service my life. I would like to continue to serve the citizens of Quincy as a councillor at-large. I hope that my record will merit re-election to this office."

McCauley and his wife of 45 years, the former Sandra MacKinnon, live at 210 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck. They are the parents of five children and grandparents of 11.

Foot Notes

*by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist*

THE BACK PAIN'S CONNECTED TO THE FOOT PAIN

Some people suffer chronic and/or disabling back pain that doesn't respond to physical therapy, muscle relaxants, bracing, or chiropractic manipulation of the spine. The pain in the back just might very well be caused by a problem with a foot or feet. With every step you take, the force of your full body weight is meant to be absorbed by the foot. If, however, the foot fails, or is unable, to absorb the shock, the jarring effect of each step radiates to the back. Your podiatrist can treat this condition by treating the foot imbalance that made it impossible for your foot to function well. Most people who complain of foot or arch fatigue suffer back pain as well.

While our specialty is feet, our work in podiatry can affect all parts of the body. And as podiatrists, we have a unique opportunity to get an insight into how other systems of the body are working. With our knowledge and experience, your cooperation, teamwork with other medical care givers, and the power of podiatry, we'll have you again walking with a smile. For foot care for the family, please call us at 617-472-3466, 110 West Squantum St., North Quincy.

P.S. Your podiatrist may be able to correct the imbalance in your feet and end your back pain simply with the help of a custom orthotic device.

Are you ready for Y2K?

Check this handy checklist!

Most of us sleep through the average New Year's Eve, but this year is one that might just be worth staying awake for. As the calendar turns from 12/31/99 to 01/01/00, we'll welcome a new era and find out—once and for all—how the Year 2000 changeover will turn out. The good news is that the closer we get, the more it looks like things are going to go pretty smoothly. Most computers—including ours!—seem to be in great shape. But a bit of advance preparation can't hurt. At the very least, you'll be ready for the next nor'easter—which could just hit on New Year's Day.

Avoid the last-minute rush!

- ☐ Have your fireplace cleaned now. Get wood delivered.
- ☐ Buy bottled water, batteries, a good flashlight, candles. Remember matches!
- ☐ Plan to have some cash on hand. (AARP suggests enough for a 3-day weekend.)
- ☐ Buy a few extras of your favorite canned foods...and a manual can-opener!
- ☐ Keep your prescriptions up-to-date and filled.
- ☐ Sign up for a debit card—access your accounts wherever you are.
- ☐ Have your gas grill cleaned. Get extra propane.
- ☐ Make sure you have a battery-operated clock-radio.
- ☐ Make friends with your neighbors!

In December

- ☐ Keep your car's gas tank filled.
- ☐ Back-up your computer. Unplug it on New Year's Eve.
- ☐ Get a few good books or magazines.
- ☐ Invest in a couple of new board games and a pack of cards.
- ☐ Arrange a buddy system with your friends.
- ☐ Plan a "Happy New Year!" breakfast for January 1st.

Once upon a time, we lived without computers. We even survived the Blizzard of '78! And working together, we'll all get through this New Year's Eve too. As long as the Bank has electricity, our ATMs will be here for you all New Year's weekend and we will be open our regular hours on Monday, January 3rd, 2000. In the meantime, if you have Y2K preparation suggestions, send them to us. Maybe you'll see them in an upcoming ad!

North Quincy, Quincy Graduations June 7, 8

Here is the graduation schedule for Quincy's high schools.

North Quincy High School graduation will be Monday, June 7 at 6 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, Hancock St. and Southern Artery.

In the event of rain, the ceremonies will be moved to the school gymnasium, starting at the same time.

Quincy High School and the Center for Technical Education graduation will be Tuesday, June 8 at 6 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Rain date is Wednesday at the same time. If the weather is bad then, the ceremonies will be held at the Vo-Tech gymnasium.

Kevin Ryan Honors Student At Citadel

Cadet Cpl. Kevin Ryan of Quincy, was named Cadet Platoon Sergeant at The Citadel, military academy in South Carolina for school year 1999-2000.

In addition he was named to the Dean's List and was awarded "The Outstanding Student Award" by the General Society of the War of 1812, Citadel chapter.

This award is presented to one student, for achievement in studies and for distinguished attainment in the ROTC program.

QUINCY LIONS CLUB awarded $3,050 in scholarships to nine graduating seniors from North Quincy and Quincy high schools. Eight of the recipients are shown here with Club President Steve Mansfield and Scholarship Committee Chairwoman Mary Weafer. Seated, Amber Anderson and Jeanne Sheehan. Standing, Weafer, Brendan Griffin, Christopher Myers, Elizabeth Stone, Kimberly Huerth, Brendan Donovan, Sean Donovan and Mansfield. Missing from photo is recipient Kristin Moy.

Quincy Lions Club Awards $3,050 In Scholarships

The Quincy Lions Club has awarded $3,050 in scholarships to nine Quincy and North Quincy High School students who plan on attending college after graduation.

Recipients are:

Sean Donovan, $500; Kimberly Huerth, $500; Christopher Myers, $500; Kristen May, $300; Amber Anderson, $250; Brendan Donovan, $250; Brendan Griffin, $250; Jeanne Sheehan, $250; and Elizabeth Stone, $250.

The Quincy Lions established the scholarship fund to honor the memory of Wilfred A. Nolan, who was a school administrator and a dedicated Lion.

Applicants were asked to address issues of community service, leadership, compassion, integrity and a deep concern for improving the lives of others. In awarding the scholarships, special consideration was given to students with eyesight problems in efforts to foster the Lions' mission of improving the lives of the visually challenged.

This year's competition was a success as the number of applicants doubled from last year. All applicants were well qualified and essays deserving of attention.

"The high number of applicants made the job of the committee extremely difficult and we like to thank all of the students for their efforts and a job well done," said Mary Weafer, Scholarship Committee chairperson.

State Supreme Court Justice Speaker Quincy College Commencement Sunday

Approximately 350 graduates will receive degrees at the Quincy College commencement Sunday.

The commencement will be at 1 p.m. outside in front of Coddington Hall on Coddington St., Quincy Center. In case of rain, it will be held at 1 p.m. at the North Quincy High School auditorium.

Commencement speaker will be Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court Justice Roderick L. Ireland who will receive an honorary degree.

Honorary degrees will also be presented to three representatives of Quincy College's major partner institutions:

Sherry H. Penney, Chancellor, University of Massachusetts, Boston; Kenneth K. Quigley, Jr., President Curry College and John F. Brennan, Dean, School of Management, Suffolk University.

Justice Ireland, who was appointed by Gov. William Weld in 1997, is the first African-American to serve in the State Supreme Court.

Prior to that, he was an associate justice of the Appeals Court for seven years and an associate justice of the Boston Juvenile Court.

Shun Zhang UNH Grad

for more than 12 years. He was named to those two posts by Gov. Michael Dukakis.

A native of Springfield, Justice Ireland graduated from Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, received his J.D. degree from Columbia University Law School and his L.L.M. degree from Harvard Law School. Last year, he earned his Ph.D. at Northeastern University in its Law School.

Since its inception in 1990, Justice Ireland has been an advisor and teacher for the Supreme Judicial Court's Judicial Youth Corps, a high school court education program.

Justice Ireland has received numerous award for distinguished judicial service. He was presented the Boston Covenant Peace prize in 1982 in recognition of his efforts to promote racial justice.

He began his legal career with the Neighborhood Legal Service in New York City and then became a staff attorney at the Harvard Center for Law and Education in 1970.

From 1971 to 1973 he was chief attorney, then deputy and executive director at the Roxbury Defenders Committee. He also worked part-time for the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission and for the Roxbury District Court clinic.

He and his wife, Alice Alexander, live in Milton.

330 Graduate From Eastern Nazarene College

Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) held its spring commencement exercises for the graduates of 1999 on the lawn in front of Gardner Hall on the college's Wollaston campus Monday.

Dr. Jim Bond, general superintendent for the International Church of the Nazarene gave the commencement address.

Bond, former president of Point Loma Nazarene University in San Diego, CA, served on several national and state higher education boards including the Executive Committee of the Association of Independent California Colleges and Universities, the Coalition of Christian Colleges and Universities, the American Association of Presidents of Independent Colleges and Universities, and the Council of Presidents of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Bond earned his bachelor of arts degree from Pasadena College (now Point Loma Nazarene University); master of divinity degree from Nazarene Theological Seminary; and the doctor of ministry from Fuller Theological Seminary. Her is also the recipient of two honorary degrees, the doctor of divinity from Southern Nazarene University and the doctor of humane letters from Northern Arizona University.

One hundred thirty seven undergraduates, 37 masters level, and 166 LEAD graduates, received their degrees during the commencement ceremony.

This year ENC awarded three honorary doctorates to trustees of the college: George Gressett received a doctorate of laws; Henry Henderson received a doctorate of humane letters; and V. Seymour Cole received a doctorate of divinity. A special post humus associates degree was also awarded in honor of Christine Higby.

The graduates include 32 from Quincy (see other story).

Other graduates are: Abdullah Al-Qshere, Randolph; Vincent Aliotta, Hooksett; Victoria Ambrus, Quakertown; Elanie Atkinson Roslindale; Iris Aviles Brockton; Jeffrey Ayres, Cherry Hill.

Retired Teachers Assn. Awards $111,200 In Scholarships

Quincy Retired Teachers Association honored its 1999 scholarship recipients at its annual spring luncheon held recently at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

This year, the interest on the scholar fund enabled the awarding of $111,200. Scholarships ranging from $1,000 to $8,000 were presented to 31 graduates of Quincy's public high schools.

The Scholarship Program has been in effect for 19 years. Contributions, both large and small, helped the fund grow from an initial contribution of $1,000 in memory of Warren B. Findlay to $425,000 in 1997.

The amount increased to more than $1,272,000 following the death of Harry Beede, former principal of Broad Meadows Middle School, who bequeathed the fund 70 percent of his estate.

The Beede gift was magnificent—a legacy that will benefit a constantly increasing number of Quincy students. Also important are the many smaller gifts from members, their families and friends who keep the fund alive and growing.

Since 1981, the QRTA Scholarship Fund, Inc., has awarded 300 scholarships with a total monetary value of $354,300.

The Quincy Retired Teachers Association is an organization of retired

Quincy public schools personnel. Current membership totals 321 members of whom 33 are honorary members. Honorary membership is bestowed on members who have reached 90 years of age.

Two Beechwood Music Students Win Medals

Two students at the Beechwood Music School, Quincy, recently won Gold Medals in the Young Musicians Competition sponsored by Milton Academy.

They were awarded to Billy Sutton, 11, and Matthew Sabin, 12 for top piano performance in their age group, said their Beechwood Music School piano instructor, Eniko Konye.

"We are very excited about the boys' accomplishments and are proud of our Music School students," said Konye. "They work very hard and their performances reflect this."

The Competition is held every year for young musicians who are either Milton residents or who take music lessons from a Milton school. Sabin and Sutton, both of Milton, have studied with Konye at the Quincy school for several years.

The Beechwood Music School at Beechwood on the Bay was founded in 1982. Private music lessons are offered in voice, violin and guitar Monday through Thursday, between 3 and 9 p.m. All instructors are professional, conservatory-trained teachers.

For more information, call 617-471-5712.

6 Quincy Students In National Honor Society

Six students from Quincy have been named to The National Honor Society at Boston College High School.

The National Honor Society is established under the National Association of Secondary School Principals to provide recognition to high school students who have clearly distinguished themselves in their school and community for scholarship, character, leadership and service.

The Quincy students are: Yuthana Chanpreachakul, Patrick Driscoll Jr, Andrew C. Freeman, Robert R. Hanna, Timothy F. McGillicuddy and Andrew M. Nestor.

All six students are members of the class of 2000.

Doug Nolan Student Tutor At University of Mass.-Lowell

Doug Nolan of Quincy, a member of the UMass Lowell Riverhawk hockey team, recently participated in the Reach To The Schools Initiative.

Nolan, a senior majoring in criminal justice, participated in the initiative which connects UMass Lowell undergraduate students with service sites in Lowell.

Team members helped Lowell school teachers strengthen the academic performance of their students by tutoring them for one hour each week from October through May.

As an added bonus, the UMass Lowell hockey team invited the students they tutored to see them in action during a game at the Tsongas Arena.

Always do right.

Allied American Insurance Opens New Quincy Office

Allied American Insurance Agency, Inc. now has an office in Quincy at 382 Quincy Ave, site of the former Eddie's Diner.

The branch offers the agency's expertise in personal and commercial lines, property and casualty insurance.

A consolidation of Allied American Insurance Agency's Weymouth and Braintree offices, the Quincy location manages accounts for 8,000 personal lines customers and 13,000 policies. The staff also handles about 15,000 commercial lines policies. Allied American Insurance Agency President Hope Aldrich says the new location is conveniently located to provide accessible service to the agency's clients, with excellent parking in a busy shopping area.

"We have a seasoned staff; we've brought everyone in from the Weymouth and Braintree offices to work here," she says. "We offer the best in commercial and personal lines insurance service."

Recently, Allied American Insurance Agency acquired Carlin Insurance, an established and well known Massachusetts agency, in April 1999. Allied American Insurance Agency has grown to a $130 million agency, making it the largest Independent agency in New England.

Don Uvanitte, an Allied vice president and a Quincy resident, serves the new office as its resident manager. Allied's number one salesperson, Uvanitte says the new, convenient location could benefit any Allied American Insurance Agency customer through the agency's networking system.

"With our state of the art computer system, any account can be accessed from any branch," he says. "No matter which office your account originated from, service can be provided at any of our 19 offices."

Meg Somerville, personal lines marketing manager of the Quincy office, says Allied American Insurance Agency's wide range of insurance companies gives their customers numerous options.

"We have 70 insurance carriers, more than any property and casualty firm in Massachusetts; it gives us access to many different products," she says. "We're a full service agency and it's our job to make sure our customers receive the best coverage and service available in the marketplace."

One new service customers will soon be able to take advantage of is the on-site motor vehicle registry service. Starting in June, Allied American Insurance Agency customers will be able to pick up license plates, conduct plate transfers, and change their address information at the Quincy location, thereby avoiding the dreaded trip to the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

"Allied American Insurance Agency was chosen to participate in this pilot program to be able to offer this additional value added service to their customers," Somerville says.

Allied American Insurance Agency, Inc. has a total of 220 insurance professionals in 19 offices who handle over 75,000 personal and commercial customers. The Quincy office is open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and claims service is available 24 hours a day. The office can be reached at (617)328-8300. With its headquarters in Natick, Mass., Allied American Insurance Agency, Inc. has offices in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont.

Conway TV Commercial Wins National Award

Jack Conway and Company's television commercial has won a bronze award in the 1999 National Telly Awards Competition.

The 30-second TV spot was a finalist among 11,000 entries from across the nation and earned honors for on-screen talent, writing and cinematography.

The commercial, entitled "Hey, Henry," features a young Jack Conway, circa 1935, selling a clubhouse for a friend and ends with a scene of the real Jack Conway selling an oceanfront estate.

The message is "List your house with Conway and consider it sold."

The commercial recently was selected as "Spot of the Quarter" among a group of entries submitted by Me-diaOne producers in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire and New York. After winning at the regional level, the commercial advanced to the national Telly Awards.

Now in their 20th year, the Telly Awards recognize outstanding non-network and cable TV commercials, granting silver and bronze awards for excellence. Recent winners include AT&T Wireless Services, Lexus, Coca-Cola, Time-Warner, Blockbuster Video and Texas Instruments.

"Hey, Henry" received a score of 8.7 points on a 10-point scale for quality of writing, on-screen talent, set design, cinematography, sound, and music.

Company Chairman Jack

Conway said he enjoyed his cameo role in the commercial.

"We're very excited about the awards," said Conway, who founded the 36-office realty firm in Hingham Square in 1957. "It was a lot of fun for me and a lot of hard work for the two youngsters who acted in the spot. They did a great job."

The Conway commercial is currently airing on cable networks and on WCVB Channel 5's New Homes Preview program, which can be seen every Sunday morning at 10 a.m.

Norwell-based Jack Conway and Company is the largest independently owned real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents in 36 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Your Home Security When Moving

(NAPS)—Almost one in every five people will move this year, and many will be buying or selling one of the 19 million U.S. homes with a security system. As a result, more homeowners than ever are asking questions about what to do with their systems when they move out...or move in.

According to security experts, planning ahead can make your move easier, save you money and help secure your home before, during and after your move.

"Home sellers ask questions about when their systems should be disconnected and whether service can be re-established at their new homes," said Tony Byerly, general manager at SecurityLink from Ameritech. "Home buyers face a tougher challenge: They're moving into homes with systems already in place but don't know how to re-establish service or who to call for help."

The questions will increase as the home security market grows 22 percent to $18.4 billion between now and the year 2000. Demand for security systems is stronger than ever because they are more affordable and are included as a standard feature in more newly built homes. What can movers do? Byerly recommends these tips:

For Sellers:

- Review your monitoring contract. You may be required to pay the balance of the contract before you move. Also, many homeowners aren't sure whether they own their system. Check your contract if you're not sure.
- Call your security company two to four weeks before you move and provide a firm moving date. Arrange to have your system monitored through moving day and ask if the company offers any moving programs or incentives.

- Discuss the system with your home's new owners. Ask if they want to keep the system and sign up for service with your security company. If they do, your security company may offer incentives for passing on the names of the new owners.

- Should you have the system removed? Unless you own the system, leave it in place so the new owners have the option of re-establishing service.
- Give the new owners your security company's name, contact numbers and information on your system, so they can re-establish service and learn how to operate the system.

• If you'd like a system in your new home, ask the company if you can re-establish service at your new address. If your new home is vacant, make arrangements to meet with a sales consultant and have the system installed before you move. Ask about any incentives for re-establishing service.

For Buyers:

- If your new home has a system, the first step is to find out who provides the service. If there's no information from the previous owners, look for contact information on the system keypad or control panel.

- Call the company and ask to re-establish service under your name, or ask to have the system removed.

- If you re-establish service, make sure family members understand how to use the system. Ask your security company if a technician could visit your home for some basic training.

Consumers who have questions about what to do with a security system when they move can call SecurityLink at 800-626-7182.

Security Link from Ameritech provides a variety of advanced security, fire detection and electronic monitoring systems to more than 1.2 million residential, commercial and government customers nationwide.

Athletic Association. In her younger years she had played with Quincy Youth Soccer.

Obituary On Page 26

Miss Gaughan also participated in the school's campus ministry program, volunteering at Father Bill's Place in Quincy, at the Boys and Girls Club in South Boston, and the Julie Learning Center in South Boston where she helped children learn to speak English.

During the summer she, along with her brother, Kevin, and her cousins, Michelle and Jennifer, had volunteered during Special Needs Week at Camp Fatima in New Hampshire.

Miss Gaughan had attended St. Ann's Grammar School in Wollaston where she was chosen class president.

On Saturday, when the school learned of her death, officials called the student support team together for a 3 p.m. meeting and planned a liturgy later that afternoon.

The Rev. Robert Monagle of St. Joseph's Church in Quincy said the liturgy, which was attended by many of her senior classmates as well as dozens of her friends from Quincy.

The students met again

Sunday, and on Tuesday, when the school reopened, the faculty met at 7 a.m. for a prayer service. After homeroom, the students attended a prayer service that had been organized by the campus ministry team, and again, many friends from the Quincy schools attended also.

"It was a wonderful, terrific tribute to Kate for all those to come to the prayer service," said Bologna, who added that counseling was made available throughout the day in the guidance office.

"It's very devastating," she continued. "There is a great sense of loss on everyone's part."

Last fall, three other Notre Dame students were killed in an automobile collision on their way to school. Two of the teens, Colleen Clancy and Erin Darling, were Kate Gaughan's classmates.

"We all mourn these losses and grieve for those who have gone. Through prayer and liturgy, we hope to give comfort to each other," she said.

The Gaughan family has requested that memorial donations be made to the Clancy Darling Scholarship Fund in care of Notre Dame Academy, 1073 Main St., Hingham 02043.

DRIVEWAY INSPECTION

Car owners should check their vehicles every other week to avoid many expensive repairs. First is the oil level. If it is down a quart, add the oil and look into the reason for frequent losses. Next, check the radiator. If the coolant level is down more than a quart, have the auto technician find the source of the leak. Check all the hoses running from the radiator to the engine to see that they are not brittle, soft, or cracked. Also check belts for fraying and looseness. After that, check the driveway for telltale fluids. Check the exhaust system for rusty holes. Finally, check the tires for uneven wear, underinflation, and sidewall cracking.

A regular checkup of fluid levels, hoses, belts, and tires, coupled with regularly scheduled maintenance, can greatly extend the life of your car. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we want you to be informed about everything in your car whether or not your car is leased. Our friendly, professional, ASE Certified service staff here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) will gladly answer all your questions. Give us a try. We'll earn your trust! Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Count on us for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: If you see a good deal of grease behind the front wheels of a front-wheel-drive car, the rubber boots that cover the (expensive) constant velocity joints may be torn or missing. Have them replaced to protect the CV joints from dirt and sand.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Losing Weight Not As Simple As Taking Pills

Years ago if you needed a prescription to use a diet drug, you had to get it from a doctor. But these days, consumers are turning to cyberspace to purchase a new prescription diet drug, recently approved in the U.S.

Since its release earlier this month, the new fat-absorbing diet pill Xenical, also known by its true medical name Orlistat, is currently receiving its share of media attention, as medical reporters question the drug's safety and effectiveness.

But perhaps the biggest controversy is not over the drug's effectiveness and unpleasant side effects, but rather its availability. The newest FDA approved weight-loss drug was intended for pharmacy sales but, unfortunately, it is now readily available on a number of unregulated Internet sites. In accessing certain sites, it is possible to order the drug and use it, by passing the manufacturers' guidelines for usage only under close medical supervision.

"This is extremely unsettling," says Weight Watchers President and CEO Florine Mark. "The fact that anyone can just log on and order this drug without medical supervision is downright scary when you think about the potentially dangerous health risks."

"What's frightening is the number of overweight people frantic enough to resort to anything marketed as a weight-loss drug or supplement in hopes of taking off the weight effortlessly and quickly," says Mark.

"There is no way to take off weight effortlessly and quickly but people still want the pounds off 'yesterday,' believing in magic, hype and the reputation of on-line 'doctors.'"

"No weight-loss drug FDA approved to-date, including Xenical, should be prescribed but to the seriously overweight and then only with ongoing physician care," adds Mark. It's impossible to monitor a patient's health or needs over the Internet."

Mark adds that drug manufacturers and physicians stress that in addition to using weight loss medications, patients must also follow a nutritious food plan and increase their daily physical activity. "These are two crucial steps in maintaining a healthy weight," says Mark.

"Patients following the Weight Watchers plan learn healthier lifestyle habits they can incorporate into their lives."

Research shows that one-third of Americans are now classified as obese and the statistic shows no sign of tapering.

According to the "Current Estimates of the Economic Costs of Obesity" (March 1998), obesity accounts for nearly $100 billion in direct and indirect health care costs. This may be why many are desperately searching for the magic weight loss bullet that will lead them down the road to improved health.

"We all need to accept the fact that losing weight is not as simple as taking a pill," Mark said. "If you're faced with a weight problem, make an appointment with your physician to personally discuss your situation and agree to undergo a medical examination. Only then can the best course of action be determined.

If it's decided that a weight loss drug might help you to get to a healthier weight, be sure to follow-up with your doctor on a regular basis. Using medication in anyway other than who it's intended to be used is taking a major risk. It doesn't make sense to gamble with the thing you are trying to protect -- your health."

Lions Club 5K Run/Walk For Sight Sunday

The Lions Club of Quincy will hold its second annual Run/Walk for Sight Sunday, June 6.

The race will take place at Pageant Field, Southern Artery, Quincy. Registration and pre-race entertainment will begin at 8 a.m.

The 1K Run/Walk for children will start at 10:30 a.m. and the 5K Run/Walk will begin at 11 a.m.

The Lions are honored to have Dave McCarthy running the race with his 5-year-old son, Gerald, who is sight impaired. McCarthy will run along side Quincy's own Uncle Sam. Uncle Sam will run the 5K course blindfolded.

Since 1925 Lions around the world have been known as the Knights for the Blind. All proceeds from the Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk for sight will be used to support eye research and provide eye care for those in need.

The public is welcome. Last year's race raised $15,000 for eye research and for those who cannot afford eye care.

The club's goal this year is to raise $25,000 by involving all members of the Quincy community, including youngsters.

A brand new Pentium II computer will be awarded to the elementary school whose children raise the most money for the event.

The computer is being donated by Lion member Raj Solaippan of Presidency Systems.

"We thought that offering a new computer was a great way to help the children who are helping us raise money for such an important cause," said Lions Club President Steven Mansfield. "It gives the children an incentive, while teaching them the value of community involvement."

Outstanding Season For Quincy Bullets

The Quincy Bullets had another outstanding season, according to Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers, who presented team members with citations in recognition of their success.

The players on Team 1 ended the season with a 14-2 record and won three gold medals out of four tournaments, according to Coach Bill Ketchen. At the state championship last month, the team won a silver medal, he said.

The players on Team 2, who play in Division III of the Special Olympics, won a gold medal. Previously, this team captured a gold medal last year and silver medals in 1996 and 1997.

Even the cheerleaders won special recognition in their competition. They were named most spirited in a tournament last March.

"A special commendation goes to Coach Bill Ketchen for his dedication," said Ayers. Ketchen has been involved in the program for the past 14 years.

Team 1 members are, alphabetically, Mike Caparotta, Elvis Fabello, Robert Fraser, Jason Hatch, Kim Hodges, Stephen Kearns, Mike Kennedy, Kim O'Connor, Mark Smith, Mark Wexler and Dexter Young. Smith has played with the team for 14 years.

Team 2 members are Steven Barrows, Gino Belabona, Jimmy Delgreco, Tracey Devonshire, Jimmy "The Pres" Gillis, Kevin Hanley, Donnie Keene, Billy Mahoney, John Mattson, Patrick Montuori, Britt Nelson, Alice O'Keefe, Robbie O'Keefe and Danny Picewick. Gillis has been on the team for 10 years.

Honored "Bullettes" cheerleaders were Coach Katy Pringle and Stephanie Bright, Angie Conlon, Sheila Curtin, Cathy MacDonald, Elaine McKeon and Erin Riley. The team coaches recognized were Tom Mannix, Brian Lomasney, Julie LaFleur, Henry Picewick and Meagen Kennedy.

Said Ketchen, who serves as program director, "I'm really proud to represent the Quincy Bullets Basketball Team, which has had six championship teams."

"We are so proud of you. Keep up the good work," Ayers told the group. "We hope to see you back here soon."

Quincy, North Represented At All-Star Game

Four local standout players have been named to the 1999 Old Colony League Baseball All Star Team.

The Old Colony All Stars competed against the Atlantic Coast All Stars Tuesday night at Adams Field.

Among those selected for the game were North Quincy's Rob Celata, Keith Doherty and Adam Goodrich, as well as Quincy's Dennis Palardy.

Celata, a junior, is a pitcher. Doherty, a sophomore, is a pitcher and Goodrich is a second baseman. Palardy, also a senior, is a pitcher.

North Quincy's Keith Doherty was one of two sophomores selected to the 22-player OCL squad.

'ALS Awareness Week' June 6-13 Proclaimed Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run At Veterans' Stadium June 12

In recognition of the second annual Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run for ALS, Mayor James Sheets has declared the week of June 6-13 as "ALS Awareness Week" in Quincy.

"I urge all citizens of this community to join us in supporting the Kennedy family effort to eradicate ALS forever," Sheets said in announcing the proclamation in his office.

The second annual Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run for ALS will be held Saturday, June 12 with an 11 a.m. start from Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Last year, hundreds of runners braved a driving rainstorm to race along the five-mile course through the city's streets and beachfront. Men and women, young and old, and familiar public figures, ran to honor the memory of Jimmy Kennedy, a Quincy native, husband and father who died in 1997 at age 31 from Lou Gehrig's Disease.

Kennedy was an academic and athletic standout at North Quincy High School and Northeastern University, a graduate of Georgetown Law School, and a practicing attorney before being stricken with ALS. His father, Christopher, Quincy school committeeman and former Dean of Students at Northeastern University, also died from ALS.

"ALS has claimed several resident residents of the City of Quincy, including two favorite sons who were members of the same prominent family," Sheets said. "Civic leader and Vice Chairman of the Quincy School Committee, Christopher Kennedy, and his youngest son, James, were both taken by this devastating illness," the mayor said.

"The family and friends of Christopher and James Kennedy are determined to aide the fight against ALS by supporting the Angel Fund for ALS and the Cecil B. Day Laboratory for Neuromuscular Research," Sheets added.

In 1998 race raised over $20,000 for the fight against the disease, Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis. It is best known as Lou Gehrig's Disease, named after the Yankee legend, whose death from the disease first brought it to the world's attention in 1938.

ALS is a progressive disease that attacks nerve cells called motor neurons, which control the movement of voluntary muscles. As these cells are destroyed, victims gradually lose the ability to stand, walk, speak, and swallow. The disease is invariably fatal.

ALS claims more than 5,000 victims every year, with approximately 13 new cases diagnosed each day. An estimated 300,000 Americans, who are alive and apparently well today, will die from ALS. In 90 percent of cases, victims have no family history of the disease.

Funds raised by this year's race will go directly to the Cecil B. Day Laboratory for Neuromuscular Research at Mass General Hospital in Boston.

The race is open to runners of all ages and abilities. There is also a 2.5-mile fitness walk in conjunction with the day's events for those who would like to show their support. There will also be activities for the whole family.

Last year's event was attended by over 500 runners with hundreds more spectators and supporters, including former Governor Michael Dukakis, Olympic Speedskater Eric Flaim and House Speaker Tom Finerman.

Boston Marathoner Bill Rodgers plans to participate in this year's event.

To make a contribution, sign up for the race or walk, or donate time or services, Race Directors Richard Kennedy (781-383-6008) or Martin Levenson (617-492-4040 ext. 385, e-mail: mlevenson@mac-gray.com).

Golden Print Posts 4 Wins, Morrisette, HN Victorious

Golden Print - 8 Quincy Fire - 3

The pitching of 13-year-old Ryan Feldhoff paced Golden Print to victory. Feldhoff scattered 5 hits and walked only 2. Matt German had 2 hits and scored 3 runs. Steve Pizzi, Pat Duff, Dan DiNardo and Peter Turowski each had 2 hits. Turowski had 2 RBI. Matt MacNeil and Frank Boudreau did a great job at second base.

Fire scored its runs in the fourth inning on two walks, an error and a monster double to left by Scott Markarian. Ryan Donahue's fly ball to left field was caught and a tagging Markarian was thrown out at the plate by Steve Pizzi. The next batter fanned to end the inning.

Dan Sheehan had two hits, Steve Graham and Neil Gavin had one each. Gavin and Brandon Sleeth played well defensively for Fire.

Golden Print - 7 Morrisette - 4

Two hits each by Matt German, Pat Duff, Dan DiNardo, Paul McAteer and Jeff Narbonne lead GP. DiNardo had 2 RBI. Paul McAteer pitched well for GP giving up six hits and fanning five Morrisette batters.

Paul Copson's hard single started Golden Print's scoring in the second inning scoring DiNardo. GP scored three runs in each of the third and sixth innings on timely hits by Pete Turowski, DiNardo, Ryan Feldhoff and Jeff Narbonne.

Golden Print's defense was led by John O'Connell.

For Morrisette, James LaFleur had two hits. Jack Liuzzo hit a double. George Phipps, Jim Olsen and Mike Maloney each had singles. Mike Maloney was the starting pitcher for Morrisette and fanned four. LaFleur helped turn a 6-4-3 double play and played excellent defense.

Golden Print - 13 Quincy Police - 7

John O'Connell's 2 singles and a homerun to deep right field led Golden Print. Josh Hersey started for Golden Print and pitched 5 strong innings. Matt German completed the game in relief helped by two double plays. Steve Pizzi had a triple and a single and played well in the field. Catcher Peter Turowski had three hits including a double. Pat Duff and Paul McAteer each had three singles. McAteer had 3 RBI.

For Quincy Police, Joe Fitzpatrick and Joe Rooney each had doubles. Chris Traietti had 2 hits. Mark Tucker pitched and had one hit. John Mateau and Mike Kenny each had a single. Derek Keizer and Ryan Hemphill did a good job in the field for the Police.

Golden Print - 7 Granite City - 6

Pat Duff drilled a base hit to right field breaking a 7th inning tie to give Golden Print an exciting win. The combined pitching of Paul McAteer and Ryan Feldhoff did an excellent job of holding Granite City to 7 hits and only 3 walks.

Golden Print's John O'Connell and Pat Duff had two hits each. Matt German, Steve Pizzi, Frank Boudreau and Jeff Narbonne had one hit each.

Wayne Moynihan pitched well for Granite

City and did an excellent job fielding his position to save several potential runs. He also had two hits. John Norton and Dave Germain each hit doubles. Jim Chiochio played well defensively for Granite City.

Morrisette - 11 Sons Of Italy - 4

Morrisette was led by Mike Maloney's pitching and hitting. Maloney had 11 strikeouts and no walks. Offensively he had 2 singles and a double. Bryan Pyer had 2 singles and 2 RBI, George Phipps had 2 singles, James LaFleur, Jim Johnson, Jackie Liuzzo, Eric O'Dea and Mike Cafano all had 1 hit and 1 RBI.

Fine defensive plays were turned in by Andy McAllister, Mike Cafano and Dave Armstrong.

Mike Tetreault led S.O.I. with a single, double and triple. Mike Ryan had 2 singles and Bob Muolli had a triple.

Morrisette - 10 Fire - 2

Colonial Federal - 6 Lions - 1

Colonial Federal's Daniel Reggianinni hit a solo homerun to right field in the fourth inning. Raymond Marchand fanned 5 while pitching the first 3 innings and helped his own cause with a triple, 2 stolen bases and 2 RBI. John Stanton pitched the last 3 innings recording 6 strikeouts and providing a run with 3 stolen bases. Drew Loud had a great outing for the Lions, striking out 11 in 6 innings. His solo homerun in the fourth to left centerfield provided the Lions with their only run. Parker Scott hit a hard double to right field and put in a strong defensive game on first base. Steve Kane hit safely recording a single and rookie Brain McQuinn's quick feet on base and a strong game at the plate kept Colonial on their toes. Bret Martinson turned in a fine defensive game at shortstop.

Jeff Green had a strong defensive game for Colonial on first base along with Reggianinni who made an outstanding play when he stopped a solid line drive by Steve Kane.

Colonial Federal - 3 Beacon - 0

Nicholas Malvesti pitched the first three innings for Colonial, fanning 8 Beacon Sporting Goods' batters. Raymond Marchand closed the game recording 7 strikeouts, leaving Beacon scoreless. Dan Sandonato hurled a fine game for Beacon, fanning 11 and helping his team with 2 solid singles.

Dave Djerf led the way for Colonial with a triple and a stolen base to score the first run. Daniel Reggianinni had a single and 1 RBI and Raymond Marchand also recorded a single. Malvesti had 2 singles and 1 RBI. Daniel Scribi, Kevin Dudgeon, Rob Deangelis and Jim Nichols all played fine defensive games for Colonial.

Joe Cafano hit safely for Beacon with 3 singles. Solid defensive performances for Beacon were turned in by Joe Cafano, Paul Noonan and Paul Lennon.

Beacon - 11 Lions - 0

Beacon Sporting Goods shut out Lions 11-0 behind good pitching from Paul Lennon (3 strikeouts) and Dean Sandonato (5 strikeouts) allowing only 2 hits. Paul Noonan, Paul Lennon, Joey Cafano had singles and Dean Sandonato went 3 for 3 with an out of the park homerun. Steve Maggio made 2 nice defensive plays throwing out runners from right field.

For the Lions club Drew Loud had 5 strikeouts. Parker Scott and Kane had singles. Patrick Graham played well defensively. South Shore Buick - 10 Elks - 4

Mike Arrufat got the win for South Shore Buick as he fanned 7. Pacing the offense were John Folino who belted a tape-measure homerun and a triple, and Paul Graham who had a double. John Ridge and Shawn Lynch also had multiple hit games.

In the field, Mike Griffin, David Arrufat and Ryan Dalton made key plays.

The Elks' Rich Schifone pitched well in defeat, fanning 3.

Athletics, White Sox Win 2 Each

ST. JOHN'S L.L.

The Athletics recently posted two wins in St. John's Little League action while the White Sox struck for two wins in the St. John's Farm League.

Athletics - 18 Mets - 8

The Athletics (sponsored by Impressions Plus Inc.) were led by Ryan Geraghty who had a single, double and triple; Brandon Ranalli (2 singles and a homerun), Steve Moltman (2 singles and a homerun), Steve Pricella (single, triple and homerun), Eddie Laura (double, triple), Jeff Walgreen (double, single), Justin Laura (2 singles) and Jason Laura (single).

Playing great defensively were Dan Nutley and John Nardone.

Pitching well for the A's were Ryan Geraghty and Steve Moltman.

Athletics - 12 Giants - 0

The Athletics' pitching tandem of Steve Pricella, Steve Moltman and Jason Laura shut down the Giants. Pricella had 9 strikeouts and contributed a double at the plate. Eddie Laura drove in 3 runs with a single and single. Steve Moltman had an RBI-single. Jason Laura hit a single to drive in Eddie Laura to score the first run. Jeff Walgreen and Justin Laura had singles.

White Sox - 18 Angels - 10

Sean Kaylalis of the White Sox (sponsored by S. Matarazzo Dentistry) pitched three shutout innings and Steve Kussman went 4 for 4 with a grand slam homerun and 10 RBIs against the Angels (Studio 1400). Kussman is hitting over .900 for the year with 19 hits in 21 at-bats with 7 homeruns. Catch John Sullivan was 3 for 3 and James Triglia added two more hits and pitched great.

Jennifer Grimmel and Kayla McGonagle did some great heads-up baserunning to improve the White Sox record to 7-1.

White Sox - 4 Cardinals - 3

The White Sox squeaked out a 4-3 victory on Steven Kussman's grand slam homerun and great pitching from Sean Kaylalis and Steve Kussman.

Catcher Donny Jackson finished off a relay to home plate with a tremendous tag to save the victory. Kevin Tyrone, Zac Tucker and Andrew Benton provided great defense on the field.

Local 2222 Wins, Ties

Local 2222 - 22

Locker Room - 3

Local 2222 defeated Locker Room 22-3 behind the brilliant pitching of Paul Farina, and lots of offensive and defensive help. Chris Tierney had 3 hits and Alex Tringale, who was solid a first base, had two hits. The play of the game came from Andrew Livingstone, who made a nice catch in deep left field.

Playing well for Locker Room were Tom Pasquantonio, who had 2 hits, and Collin Mooney who played a strong second base. Dave Casey showed a lot of courage when he suffered a head laceration diving for a ball, got up and made the play before getting attended to, and was taken by ambulance to the hospital.

Quincy P.A.L. - 5

Local 2222 battled Quincy P.A.L. to a 5-5 tie before the game was called due to darkness. In one of the best pitched games of the year, Paul Farina fanned 15 P.A.L. batters, while Domenic Poli struck out 12 Local 2222 batters.

Offensively, Anthony Dunner had 2 big walks for Local 2222.

The offense for P.A.L. came from John Grillo (2 hits) and Bob Harrington, who made a Mickey Mantle style running catch in centerfield, also had a hit.

Recreation Summer Camps Registration Starts June 8

The Quincy Recreation Department announces its popular summer sports camps and instructional workshop programs.

Camps implemented by the Recreation Department 16 years ago have become increasingly popular in offerings and participation.

"These camps are a real bargain and have been designed to give Quincy residents a low-cost alternative for youngsters who desire specialized instruction which is usually associated with high costing residential camps," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The week-long programs are under the direction of qualified coaches and teachers from the area, and will feature individual instruction with an approximate ratio of 1 to 10.

Registration begins Tuesday, June 8 and continues weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Recreation Department Office at 1 Merrymount Parkway. Enrollment is limited and taken on a first come, first serve basis.

Five Local Boxers Compete In Regionals At Lake Placid

By JIMMY FARRELL

Five local New England Junior Olympic boxing champions recently competed in Lake Placid, N.Y.

All five train at O'Malley's Gym in Quincy Square, soon to become the Quincy PAL.

Thirteen year old Chris Traietti, at 106 pounds and a St. Ann's eighth grader, represented team New England as did 14-year-old 95-pound champion of Quincy High John Daggett. Daggett has won 5 New England championships.

Brandon Milby, 13 and 155 pounds, attends Sterling and also traveled to Lake Placid. Joey Waldron, of South Boston, represented New England at 165 pounds. Vinny Traietti, the older brother of Chris, is 16 years old and he was New England's 178-pound representative. He has won eight New England championships and is ranked fifth in the U.S.

O'Malley's had four other champions but they were too young for regionals.

O'Malley's will hold an amateur show June 6 at the Sports Resort in Weymouth. North Quincy High students Joe Tormey and Steven King will fight on that card. National Champion Steven Vukosa will also appear on that show as well as two female bouts.

Professional boxing will come to the Quincy Armory on June 26. That card will be headlined by Quincy's Steve "The Fighting Tunnel Rat" Scigliano. For tickets and information call 786-9547.

Quincy Youth Football Registration June 12

Registration for Quincy Youth Football Cheerleading will be held Saturday, June 12 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

Registration is $55 per player/cheerleader. The age is 9-14 years old (14 years in middle school). Weight is 75-150 lbs. An original or certified birth certificate is required.

that the developer, Congress Group Ventures, was seeking a comprehensive permit "to hold it over our head as a threat to negotiate a settlement on the original Planned Unit Development."

When the city council, sitting as the special permit granting authority, rejected the Highpoint proposal to build 1,195 apartments last March, Congress Group Ventures' president, Dean Stratouly, appealed the decision to Land Court.

The city countersued in Norfolk Superior Court.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath was scheduled to meet with the councillors next Monday in an executive session to discuss the status of the lawsuits.

Cahill also disputed a comment Stratouly made to The Quincy Sun. "He said that $22 million worth of mitigation is out the door," Cahill said. "That's not his decision; that's the decision of the ZBA."

"There are environmental conditions, traffic mitigation, all kinds of conditions that [will be required] to make this project work," Cahill said.

Even before the final council vote last March, last minute behind-the-scenes negotiations between the developer and ward councillors suggested building only 780 units but providing a tax break to the developer in exchange for deeding more than half of the 75-acre site to the city for open space.

"That was a last-minute compromise that I wasn't party to," said Cahill, "but it's floating out there again."

"Whatever number the ZBA determines, only 25 percent will be designated as affordable housing. If the ZBA allows 1,000 units, only 250 units will have to be affordable."

"And," Cahill added, "it won't look like a project. The developer will have to build quality housing in order to attract high-end tenants who will be willing to pay $2,000 a month rent."

Cahill also differed from Stratouly's statement that Quincy is well below the threshold of low- and moderate-income housing. The state seeks a level of 10 percent of the housing stock in a community to be designated as affordable.

Cahill said he believes that about 9 percent of the city's housing stock is considered affordable, and once Quantum Gardens is built, that would add another 200 units to the low- to moderate-income category.

"The Zoning Board does not have to approve any more units than we actually need to put us at the 10 percent threshold. Quantum Gardens would push [the city's percentage] to 9.5 percent," he said, adding that ratio of affordable housing is 2 to 1 for elderly housing to family housing.

Even though the process for securing a comprehensive permit avoids seeking approval from the city council as the permit granting authority within a Planned Unit Development, the city councillors individually will have an opportunity to address the Zoning Board, said Cahill.

"As for the developer having property rights," said Cahill, Stratouly "bought the land, knowing it had a P.U.D. designation."

Lastly, Cahill took issue with Stratouly's remark that the councillors were thinking about what was politically expedient to fulfill their ambitions to get to the corner office.

"It's exactly the opposite," he said. "We were thinking of what was good for the city, what was in the best interest of the people who live in West Quincy."

"Obviously, I have taken a big hit, especially from the unions, but most of the community input has been favorable," he continued. "It was not an easy decision, and there is a price to pay."

"I have to go to court tomorrow," Cahill said Tuesday.

A hearing was scheduled yesterday before a clerk magistrate at Quincy District Court to determine whether a criminal complaint filed by the Building and Construction Trades Council should be issued against Cahill, alleging conflict of interest.

The Building and Construction Trades Council had claimed last October that Cahill had violated the state ethics law and filed a formal complaint with the State Ethics Commission.

The unions claimed he should not have voted on the development proposal because his parents and his sister-in-law own property abutting the proposed development.

"I just want to make sure people don't think it's a done deal," Cahill concluded. "We are keeping this process open."

"The Zoning Board has 30 days to schedule a hearing, but it could listen to arguments from now until Christmas. Once the hearing is closed, the Zoning Board has 40 days to vote on the application," Cahill said.

Cahill said he doubted the city's legal fees would exceed $250,000 but emphasized it was important for the city "to fight to make sure our rights are upheld so that a developer doesn't decide what's best for the city."

"Under the P.U.D. process, it is the council that decides what is the best type of development for a particular piece of land," he said, citing Marina Bay and the Wal-Mart property as two examples of P.U.D. projects.

At one time, the city attempted to take the property in tax title to protect the citizens. "This plot of land does not necessarily have to be open space," said Cahill.

"If it is developed in a thoughtful manner, it could be developed for housing, but not high-rise apartments numbering more than 1,200 or 1,400 units," he said.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

It has been well stated "that the pioneer is a creature not of time but of spirit." How do you rate as a pioneer?

There is as much room for the pioneer today as when our country was mostly a virgin wilderness... There isn't a town that does not need people of spirit to act - to cut down the dead wood of lethargy and indifference. To build as did the pioneers of old - homes for those who followed... There are still roads that need to be paved that new life and interest may flow into the community, making it a more desirable place in which to live...

Are you a pioneer in your own job? Have you gone as far as you can on your particular roadway of life - or would greater knowledge help you further? The tool of learning is yours for the taking. You have to want to use all the advantages within your reach if you are to move out into the unknown...

You can also pioneer in friendship. How narrow is your circle? Have you confined yourself to a few people - or have you gone beyond and in serving your fellow men learned to know them? It has been said that there is no form of pioneering that is richer in results than this... Look upon those with whom you come in contact as the pioneer did of the chance wayfarer who passed his way - as a welcome guest from whom much could be learned... True, it takes courage to be a pioneer. It means work and a willingness to learn and a spirit of helpfulness.

At Tobin Towers

Deware Funeral Home Presenting Free Senior Safety Program June 14

The Deware Funeral Home will present a comprehensive 2nd annual safety program for senior citizens June 14.

It will be presented by Robert Stuber, nationally recognized personal safety expert, at 10:30 a.m. at the Tobin Towers, 80 Clay St., Wollaston.

The one hour presentation is free and designed to prevent exploitation, abuse and other violations which threaten senior citizens.

Scott Deware of The Deware Funeral Home said the program is "filled with valuable tips" on personal safety, safety in the home and how to spot a scam. Sample lessons from the program will include home invasion tips, safe ATM use and how to identify telephone fraud.

Research indicates that seniors are prime targets for cons and scams, and they are frequent victims of assault and neglect Deware said.

"In 1997 alone, the National Center for Elder Abuse (NCEA) estimates that 2.1 million seniors were abused, neglected or exploited," said Stuber.

The SCI Smart & Safe Seniors program was created by Stuber, who also developed SCI Escape School, an internationally recognized child abduction prevention and evasion program. The Deware Funeral Home is affiliated with Service Corporation International (SCI).

"We partnered with Bob To Develop and underwrite this program to raise awareness of senior abuse and help reduce incidents of victimization," said Deware. "We support initiatives that improve the quality of life in Quincy."

The statistical evidence of senior abuse is startling. The NCEA reported a nationwide increase of 150 percent in state-reported senior citizen abuse over a 10-year period from 1986 to 1996.

"The types of abuse run the gamut from neglect to physical violence," said Stuber, "and more and more frequently, senior citizens are victims of fraud. This is particularly disturbing because a large number of the crimes against seniors could be avoided if senior citizens were simply made aware of the things they can do to protect themselves."

Stuber said that older Americans are easy targets because they sometimes become confused or distracted. "But others are targeted because they have considerable wealth."

Noting that 70 percent of the personal wealth belongs to adults 50 years and older, Stuber said that well-off, older people are prime targets.

"According to the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), older people are frequently singled out for telemarketing scams that cost consumers more than $40 billion a year," he said.

In a recent interview with the AARP, U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno said fraud against seniors is a very significant problem.

"I've seen the absolute and total devastation to a victim who at first thought 'This is legitimate. I'll take my chances,' and just got completely wiped out, all their life saving vanished."

Stuber, who has spoken about personal safety issues on national programs such as "Good Morning America" and "The Oprah Winfrey Show" said the success of the SCI Escape School inspired him to develop a program for seniors.

"After working with children through the SCI Escape School and seeing an increased number of reports on senior abuse, I realize there was a need for a similar program for senior citizens," Stuber said. "We have a formula that worked, so we built the SCI Smart & Safe Seniors program around the concepts and philosophy as the SCI Escape School."

SCI Smart & Safe Seniors also offers a free newsletter and tips brochure available at The Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Quincy.

Stuber is currently working on producing a book and videotape for the program.

CRITIC'S CORNER

LIMBO: Alaska is a land rich with possibilities and second chances. Against the backdrop of this vast, challenging wilderness, the movie begins the story of three people trying to reinvent themselves. It is up to the viewer, however, to finish it.

Set in the rugged islands of Southeastern Alaska, this is the story of Joe Guineau (David Duchovny), a fisherman traumatized by an accident at sea years earlier. Into Joe's land-locked life comes singer Donna de Angelo (Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio) and her disaffected daughter, Noodle (Vanessa Martinez). When Joe's fast-talking half-brother, Bobby (Casey Siemaszko), returns to town and asks Joe for a favor, the lives of the three characters are forever altered when an explosive event leaves them stranded on a remote island with little hope of being rescued.

But in LIMBO, the tale is cut short, the denouement left unfulfilled by the storyteller. The fate of these three lives is undecided, suspended in the harsh purgatory of America's last frontier.

This one is a don't-miss ENTERTAINMENT. An insurance investigator (Catherine Zeta-Jones) convinces her boss that only she can set the trap to catch legendary gentleman thief Robert MacDougal (Sean Connery), by posing as a master thief herself. As their mutual attraction - and distrust - grows, they plan a breathtaking heist on the eve of the millennium.

The action leaps off the screen in this one. And Connery proves he could easily still fill the shoes of James Bond. Zeta-Jones is breathtaking in her sensuality, tempered by her toughness.

While the plot is predictable, the movie works. He yourself to the nearest theater for this one!

Your Horoscope

by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Pure, unabated joy spills out of you. Enjoy the emotional high, and share it with anyone who seems to appreciate your euphoria.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Be civil and conciliatory toward others, even though you may be seething inwardly. Perhaps it's time to do some long overdue emotional house-keeping.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It is not possible to contain your volatile emotions totally, but it is possible to manage them. Spend time around people you can trust.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Determine the best way to expend your energy. You like to move at an extremely quick pace, but right now, you need to rest and rejuvenate.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Total strangers become your allies, and acquaintances become friends. You can achieve anything, as the whole world seems to be on your side.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Let other people attend to their own affairs; you need to focus on yourself. If you are dissatisfied with your emotional state, take this time to fix it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Let work-related concerns fade away for a while. Concentrate on friends, family and your home; you may need to catch up on a few things.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) If you wonder why people seem to be responding strangely to you, take a look at your behavior. You might be surprised by your own little quirks.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The center of attention has oriented itself on you. Although you didn't plan to be in the spotlight, there is no reason you can't enjoy it for a while.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Family members may show you your own limitations. They don't mean to hurt you, only to bring you back in touch with reality.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A well-spring of inner power has been tapped. You feel financially secure, well-loved and totally in command of your personal life.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Emotional currents run swiftly and are dangerously high at this time. Try to remain close to shore or you may be swept out of control.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK ... The quintessential romantic hero or heroine, you seem to move in a cloud of mystery and danger. People are drawn to you without quite knowing why - and sometimes against their will. The one who shows you how to find joy in simple things, may be the one you desire above all others.

sentatives Tuesday and again today (Thursday) to discuss their concerns.

Last month, representatives of the unions wrote to the mayor, asking to play a role in the drafting of a home rule petition to allow Quincy Hospital to affiliate with BMC.

The City Council is expected to act on a home rule petition by June 7.

Five different unions are employed at the hospital — District 925 and Local 285 of the Service Employees International Union (SEIU), the National Association of Government Employees, the Massachusetts Nurses Association and the Laborers' International Union.

The coalition has argued that city is legally obligated to honor union contracts at the hospital and the successor language of the contracts.

Sheets said Tuesday the new entity created by the affiliation would be allowed to unionize as it chooses.

If the affiliation does not occur, the hospital will close by Oct. 1, said Sheets. "We can't afford to keep it open."

To keep the hospital open for the next six years, Sheets estimated previously that $73 million will be needed for the hospital to become private and affiliate with BMC and be successful.

Damon Blaco of Quincy, a student at the University of Lowell College of Management, recently competed in a Free Enterprise Northeast Regional Exposition.

Blaco was part of a team of 11 UMass students who took third place honors in the competition with featured teams from other colleges in the region. The exposition matched their educational community outreach project against projects from seven other schools.

Blaco is a senior in business administration with an emphasis in marketing. His team prepared lessons and led discussions and group activities based on the Junior Achievement Middle School Program, which teaches concepts of accounting, economics, marketing, and finance.

Through weekly classroom visits at Lowell's Robinson School, Blaco's team helped the youngsters understand key factors in the economic system and the role of business in daily life.

Auxiliary Deputy Chief Pearson Retirement Banquet

The Quincy Auxiliary Police Association will host a retirement banquet for Auxiliary Sr. Deputy Chief Joseph Pearson on Saturday, June 12, from 7 p.m. to midnight at the George F. Bryan VFW Post, Broad St., Quincy.

Pearson retired in December after nearly 41 years of volunteer service to the City of Quincy as an auxiliary police officer. Quincy auxiliary police officers receive no pay for their services spent in uniform, at training, and attending meetings is entirely volunteer.

Pearson was sworn in to the Quincy Auxiliary Police Department on March 31, 1958 following his father's footsteps as a second generation auxiliary officer. He would see the department go through many changes over the next 40 years including ride alongs with Quincy police officers, organization of the early neighborhood crime watch program, and commercial security surveys.

The most recent change was admittance to the Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Councils Academy for Reserve Intermittent Police Officer of which Pearson was in the first class of Quincy auxiliary police officers to graduate in 1987. After many years of dedicated service and previous promotions, he was promoted to the rank of deputy director of Emergency Management in June of 1990 and senior deputy chief of auxiliary police in 1996.

The association is interested in contacting previous members of the Quincy Auxiliary Police Department, people who have served with Pearson on committees and organizations, and any members of the public who would be interested in helping us honor his years of service and commitment to volunteerism on June 12.

Tickets are available for a donation of $25 each by calling Auxiliary Captain Dale Solander at 617-773-1109. Tickets are on sale until June 4.

Deborah Nemetz VISION Volunteer

Deborah Nemetz of North Quincy recently began serving as a volunteer for VISION Community Services at the Massachusetts Association for the Blind (MAB).

She will be assisting a man, who is blind, with reading print materials such as mail, Magazines, and newspapers.

May 27, 1999

Application No.
MALHRO112-98

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS:

On or about June 4, 1999, the Quincy-Weymouth Consortium (Consortium) will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to release approximately $1,500,000 of Federal funds under HUD's Lead Based Paint Hazard Control Program to provide Lead Abatement assistance for Single/Multi-family units located in Quincy and Weymouth, Norfolk County, Massachusetts to benefit low-mod income households.

An environmental review for this project has been made by the Consortium and is available for public examination and copying at the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169.

The Consortium will undertake the project described above with funds from HUD. The Consortium is certifying to HUD that the Consortium and its lead community's Chief Executive Officer, in his official capacity, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the CITY OF QUINCY may use the HUD Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and other environmental responsibilities listed in 24 CFR Part 58. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following cases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the Chief Executive Officer or other officer of the Consortium; (b) that the Applicant's environmental review record for the projects indicated omission of a required decision finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process; or (c) another Federal agency has submitted written comments pursuant to Section 309 of the Clean Air Act or Section 102(c) of NEPA. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to HUD Office of Lead Hazard Control, 451 Seventh Street, SW Room P3206, Washington, DC 20410. Objections to this release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after 15 days from the date of request of funds listed above will be considered by HUD.

New Plans For $30-M Retirement Complex

At that time, TGE Investments, LLC, intended to manage the building which would be dedicated for Alzheimer patients while Leggat McCall Retirement Properties planned to develop the two other buildings which would provide independent living in one and assisted living in the other.

Harrington said TGE will partner with Commonwealth Communities instead to develop the two other buildings. "Leggat McCall Retirement Properties drew back from a lot of projects in Massachusetts, and as a result, TGE decided to go forward," he said.

Douglas B. Noble, principal of Commonwealth Communities, is developing Boylston Place, an assisted living facility in Chestnut Hill, Harrington said.

In addition, Noble is the owner of Presidential Nursing and Rehabilitation Center at 43 Old Colony Ave. As well as several other assisted living facilities, including Meadowbrook in Canton and the newer Heights Crossing in Brockton.

Under the amended plan, the building reserved for independent living would include 150 units. Previously, the special permit granting authority had approved 150 units, but the developer had reduced the number to 144 units.

In the Alzheimer building, 60 units had been approved last year, but the developer had reduced the number to 54. Now the proposal is to increase that number by two additional units.

The independent living or congregate facility would be a three-story wood-frame building with mansard roofs and dormers. Thirty-percent or 45 of the units would be studios, 90 one-bedroom units and 15 two-bedroom units.

In this building residents would be provided with three meals a day, weekly housekeeping and transportation to doctors' offices, shopping and houses of worship via the facility's own shuttle bus. This building also would include a large common dining room and a private dining room, a TV lounge, library and several smaller living room/lounge spaces.

The Alzheimer's facility would be a one-story wood-framed building to meet the special needs of 56 senior residents with dementia. Its appearance will resemble a New England country inn, with skylights to draw in additional sunlight.

As designed, the Life Care Facility would include 44 studios and 36 one-bedroom units, plus 58 long-term care suites, which would include 99 nursing beds. In addition, personal care would be provided to residents of the assisted living facility, such as bathing, dressing, medication monitoring and rehabilitation. The building itself will have a New England look, with dormered mansard roofs and scattered bay windows.

Despite Financial Problems At Hospital

City Gets 'A' Credit Rating

By MARILYN JACKSON

The city was scheduled to go to the bond market yesterday (Wednesday) for $18,750,000 in general obligation bonds.

City Auditor Robert Foy told the City Council Monday night he had just been informed that both Moody's and Standard and Poor have given Quincy an "A" rating, the same rating it has held for the past several years, "despite the problems at the hospital," said Foy.

"That's outstanding news," said Foy.

The 20-year borrowing will be used for three projects — $10 million for the new Clifford Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point; $7 million for the remodeling of the Point Webster School for a middle school, and $1.75 million for an overhaul of the city's water distribution system.

According to the bond prospectus, the Department of Education last September had authorized a 63 percent reimbursement for the construction and furnishing of the Marshall School. The project was financed with bond anticipation notes, which are due June 25.

The work on the Point Webster School is on the state's school building assistance priority list but has not yet been approved for reimbursement. The city hopes to receive approval in either 2001 or 2002, with reimbursement to follow a year later.

The prospectus also included information about Quincy Hospital's deficits for the past three years. At year's end Sept. 30, 1996, the deficit was about $2.8 million; in 1997, it was about $2.5 million, and for 1998, unaudited information anticipates a deficit in excess of $10 million.

The hospital has made its debt service payments but is not in compliance with a previous bond indenture agreement.

When the city entered a memorandum of understanding with Boston Medical Center last month for a partnering plan, Boston Medical Center indicated it would take over the operations of the hospital Oct. 1, 1999, in exchange for financial payments through fiscal year 2005 totaling in excess of $33 million. In addition, the city would assume the hospital's unfunded pension liability, which is estimated to total about $25 million.

Auditor Foy said that after these general obligation bonds are sold, the city will have a total debt of nearly $60 million, which translates to approximately $703 per person.

Prior to the new issue, the city's general outstanding bonds totaled $45.68 million as of June 30, 1998, or $538 per person.

In addition, the council has authorized borrowing an additional $13.7 million but has not issued that debt. More than half — $8.5 million — is earmarked for schools and $5.2 million is for water improvements.

Conflict Trial Could Be Moved

Cahill: 'I Will Be Vindicated'

By MARILYN JACKSON

Councillor-at-large Timothy Cahill vows to fight with all the strength he can muster the criminal complaint alleging he violated the state conflict-of-interest law when he participated and voted on the Highpoint apartment development proposal.

"I'll appeal. I will carry this as far as I have to," Cahill said. "I won't back down, regardless. Ultimately, I will be vindicated."

Last Friday, Attleboro District Court Clerk Magistrate Daniel Sullivan ruled there was sufficient information to issue a criminal complaint against Cahill. A hearing was held June 2.

The Building and Construction Trades Council had applied for the criminal complaint alleging conflict of interest. The council also filed a formal complaint with the State Ethics Commission.

The unions claimed he should not have voted on the development proposal because his parents and his sister-in-law own property abutting the proposed development.

Cahill said he learned of Sullivan's ruling Monday night, just as he had arrived for a City Council meeting

Furniture Store Coming

A Quincy business landmark, Barker's stationery and office supply store, will go out of business Aug. 1.

Owner Richard Barker underwent open heart surgery last March at Deaconess Hospital and subsequently suffered a stroke. He presently is recuperating at Meadowbrook Skilled Rehabilitation and Nursing Center in Canton.

Barker has leased 6,000 square feet on the first floor of the building to Woodcraft Furniture, according to Sean Kenealy of Key Realty. He said Woodcraft may lease additional space in an adjacent property in the future.

"I'm not surprised," said Barker's twin brother, Robert, who owns Quincy Typewriter Service.

"His business is like the typewriter business. It's going by the wayside. People used to go to a card shop. Now every drug store, supermarket, Jordan Marsh has cards. You can buy them any place."

"When he started the office supply business," that met a need in the community as well. "Now you can buy everything at office supply places, and they have cards."

Teachers Talks Resume

Talks were scheduled to resume yesterday (Wednesday) between the city's labor negotiators and the Quincy Education Association following a five-hour session Monday.

"The talks are continuing, and they are cordial," said Paul Phillips, QEA president.

"And, there is something substantial to talk about. Those are all good signs," he said.

"But I don't know if the talks will be completed in time," said Phillips.

The QEA is scheduled to meet Sunday night at the Sheraton Tara in Braintree.

"The year is ending. If there's a deal, we'll present it Sunday night," said Phillips. "Otherwise, we will present the last and best offer."

High school classes end June 24, while elementary school classes concluded

June 25. Teachers must attend school the following day before their year ends, said Phillips.

The 760-member Quincy Education Association overwhelmingly rejected the city's contract offer in late April after both sides had bargained for nearly 15 months. Talks resumed last month.

The teachers have been working without a contract

Casino Boats Question On City Election Ballot

By NANCY MANGANELLO
Residents will vote whether they are in favor of using any Quincy shoreline for the arrival and departure of gambling boats in a Nov. 2 non-binding referendum.
Councillor Daniel Raymond first proposed this question on the ballot two weeks ago.
"It not only affects my constituents, but any waterfront community in Quincy," Raymond said. He proposed the ballot question because he feels, although he is personally opposed to the idea, that the people of Quincy have the right to voice their opinions on this matter.

Harold opposed putting the question on the ballot because the city of Quincy and the state would have no authority over the boats because they would sail beyond the three-mile limit of the state waters. That would mean that the federal government would regulate the boats.
Harold said the town of Hull's debate on casino boats 15 years ago was divisive. He said that if casino gambling boats became a hot issue, it could result in the infusion of money into campaigns and get out of control.

Harold was also concerned about how the question could distort the upcoming election. He said important issues like the budget, schools, and Quincy Hospital would be overlooked if casino boats became the focus of the election.
Councillor Francis McCauley said that the casino boat question was not necessary. He said that he has seen no real interest in it around the city.

Comer Grand Marshal Flag Day Parade Ceremonies Saturday

The 48th annual Quincy Flag Day parade and celebration will be held Saturday evening, June 12.
This year's festivities will include the traditional parade, a flag-raising ceremony, and a fireworks display over Pageant Field. The events are sponsored by the City of Quincy, the Quincy Partnership, and the Koch Club.

Highlighting the parade and ceremony will be the participation of the Boston Crusaders Drum & Bugle Corps. The 120 member corps will be participation in the parade for the second consecutive year. They have performed in drum corps competitions nationally and internationally. This year, they will also perform at the flag-raising ceremony that follows the parade.

The parade will step-off at Coddington St. and Woodward Ave. at 7 p.m. and proceed up Coddington St. to Hancock St., north on Hancock Street to Merrymount Parkway and ending at the entrance to Pageant Field. The entire parade route will be decorated with American flags.

The parade will feature floats, bands, color guards, mounted units, antique vehicles, and 1,500 flag-waving youngsters. Special musical participants this year include: the Waltham Legion Post Band, Canton Legion Post Band, Boston City Band, Tutach Ard Pipe Band, Boston Gaelic Fire Brigade Pipe Band, Bourne High School Marching Cammen, New Bedford High School Marching Whalers, North Quincy High Marching Red Raiders, and the Quincy High School Marching Presidents.

Related Story On Page 28

"The Quincy Flag Day Parade has developed into one of the finest family-oriented events on the South Shore. I encourage people of all ages to come and enjoy the parade, the patriotic ceremony, and the dazzling fireworks display," said Thomas Koch, Chairman of the Flag Day Parade Committee.

Spectators can also expect to see the Cycling Murays, an array of floats, antique fire engines, various re-enactment color guards, and a host of other special entertainers.

The Grand Marshal for the parade will be John "Jake" Comer, past National Commander and State Commander of the American Legion. Comer will be marching with the Waltham Legion Post Band and a contingent of American Legion Color Guards from throughout the Commonwealth.

The Flag Day Parade Committee will once again honor those who have served to protect our flag and the freedoms it represents with the Veteran's Flag Display. This year, a float will carry the donated flags of deceased veterans. Each flag will have a ribbon attached with the name of the veteran. The Veteran's Flag Display is done in partnership with Keohane Funeral Homes.

Following the parade, a flag raising ceremony will be held at Pageant Field. The ceremony will begin at approximately 8 p.m. The ceremony will feature the Boston Crusaders, special presentation, and the raising of a giant version of Old Glory.

Following the ceremony, Atlas Pyrotechnics will conduct a twenty-minute fireworks display over Pageant Field and Black's Creek. The show will be simulcast to patriotic music on WJDA AM-1300 radio.

For those who cannot make it to the parade, Quincy Access Television will be carrying the parade.

For more information call the Quincy Park Department at 376-1251.

Quincy Point Business, Professional Group Formed To Promote Area

A group of business people and residents have formed the Quincy Point Business and Professional Association to promote the area and guide the revitalization of the Washington Street corridor, from the Fore River bridge to the Southern Artery.

A community meeting is tentatively scheduled next Wednesday or Thursday at St. Joseph's Parish Hall.

"This was a natural progression to form a business, professional residential association that could guide the future improvements of the Washington Street corridor," said Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

He said in 1996 he had campaigned on improving the commercial district and after he was elected, several Quincy Point business persons and residents first began to meet.

"The goal was to get a CARD (commercial area revitalization district) designation for Quincy Point. Quincy 2000 became involved and provided funding for a consultant, and we began to meet as a group of business owners and residents with the consultant and representatives of Quincy 2000" to plan for the area, Raymondi said.

The CARD designation frees up block grant money, he explained. "The city gets $2.3 million in block grants which in the past have been spent Downtown, in Wollaston, North Quincy.

"We wanted to position Quincy Point to be the next significant recipient of block grant funding for public works improvements," he said.

The planning department successfully filed an application for the designation, he said.

Two weeks ago the group of residents formally organized, establishing by-laws and electing officers.

"There never was an active business-resident association before for people who have an interest in the community to talk about ways to significantly improve the business climate and the quality of life," said Raymondi.

Tom O'Brien of O'Brien Hyundai was elected president. Other officers include William Walker of Harbor Express, Peter Collins of South Shore Savings Bank and Helen Garvey of Rockland Trust Company.

"I hope that the residents that live on Washington Street and the businesses can band together and see if we can improve the visibility and character of Washington Street, from the bridge to my dealership, bring more business into that section of Washington Street and clean it up a little bit," O'Brien said of his goals.

"When I came to Quincy Point 25 years ago, there were 12 or 15 bars" on that stretch of Washington Street.

"That has changed tremendously, the whole character of the street has changed," O'Brien said.

"I'm looking forward to [block grant] funds forthcoming, the street paving and taking down the wires."

O'Brien said he was "happy for the vote of confidence" his peers placed in him but suggested, "It is not a one-person job."

"To get the job done, we have to set an agenda and follow through. Broad participation will benefit everybody."

Raymondi said some of the improvements along Washington Street are targeted for this construction season. In addition, sidewalk and roadway improvements already are under way on Cleverly Court, Chubbuck Street, Watson Road, Watson Terrace and Broadway, he said, and trees will follow in the fall.

"I am pleased that the group is finally going to start to make an impact on Washington Street and am pleased to contribute $1,000 in seed money for the association to do mailings and get the word out about this important organization," he said.

He explained that the seed money comes from the Ward II mitigation fund established through contributions from projects on Falls Boulevard.

"It's a terrific nexus between the promotion of additional business and retail use along Washington Street" and the new development off Quincy Avenue, said Raymondi.

LaRaia Bitten By Dog

Animal Control Officer Donald Conboy has asked for a hearing on a dangerous dog after a Rottweiler on Beacon Street bit two people, including former mayor Joseph LaRaia, within the past six weeks.

Conboy said the dog and the owner apparently have moved out of their home.

LaRaia was bitten just above the right wrist June 2, while a Beacon Street woman was bitten May 1, said Conboy.

"I had taken a vacation day to do some work on a Quincy Point property and check on a tree that had fallen into a neighbor's yard.

"From the side door, the dog bolted out of the house and bit my right arm, just above the wrist," said LaRaia who was wearing a brace to protect the wound.

He said the EMTs transported him to Quincy Hospital where he spent two hours in the emergency room having his wound cleaned and his arm stitched.

"The wound was large, and I have a wick in it to drain. I'm in the healing process," said LaRaia who returned to work Monday.

"The dog had seen us go into the yard. He was barking," said LaRaia who was with a co-worker. I had just told him the tenant says that the dog doesn't bother anyone. He proved me wrong.

"The dog doesn't belong in the neighborhood. He's a threat to anyone in the area," said LaRaia.

Conboy said in the May 1 incident, the dog punctured the skin of the woman who was walking in the yard with a child. "Fortunately, the child was not attacked," he said.

Councillor Stephen Durkin said he would like the animal control officer to appear at the next council meeting to discuss policies and procedures involving vicious dogs.

MWRA Pipeline Work May Cause Discolored Water

MWRA announces it will be conducting routine pipeline maintenance in Quincy through June 11.

On Monday, the MWRA began work to replace a valve for a water pipe at the intersection of Furnace Brook Parkway and Copeland St. The work is being done after the morning traffic peak at 9 a.m. One lane of traffic will likely be reduced during work hours. Work may cause temporary discolored water and low water pressure on June 10, 11, and 12.

The MWRA said that while this discolored water poses no health hazard and is safe for consumption, residents may wish to store several gallons of water for drinking and cooking purposes. In addition residents should avoid washing white or light colored clothing in washing machines for this period of time.

For more information call MWRA Community Coordinator Michele Gillen or Ted Cosgrove at (617) 788-1170.

From Ho-Hum To Humdinger?

What started out looking like a ho-hum election year may get to be a real humdinger instead.

If Paul Harold decides to take on Jim Sheets it would be the first real mayor's race in a decade.

And it would open a council at-large seat and at least one and maybe two ward seats.

The last big mayoral battle was in 1989 with four major contenders fighting it out to succeed Frank McCauley who decided not to seek a fifth term.

Going into the preliminary election that year were Sheets, Peter O'Connell, Joseph LaRaia and Steve McGrath.

Coming out of it with the two nominations were Sheets and O'Connell. Sheets was the final winner.

He has had three free rides to re-election and token opposition since and is now seeking a sixth term.

A Sheets-Harold match-up would be the first biggie since 1989, a main bout that would certainly liven things up all summer long and bring the voters out in the fall.

It would also have a musical chair effect on other candidates.

If Harold runs for mayor it would open up his council at-large seat and at least one ward seat, maybe two.

Council President Peter Kolson would no doubt run at-large which would leave his Ward 1 seat open.

KOLSON
Ward 4 seat.

Other possible at-large candidates: former Councillors Charles McIntyre and Michael Cheney and David McGillicuddy who was runner-up two years ago.

But even if Harold decides not to run for mayor, it would still be a more interesting election year than expected with the spotlight trained on the city council.

There's a five-candidate field for an open seat in Ward 6 and challengers for the three council at-large seats and three ward seats.

Hoping to succeed Bruce Ayers who is vacating the Ward 6 seat now that he is a state representative are: Frank Hendry, Maryann Mahony, Brian McNamee, Joseph Newton and Jim Stamos.

A third challenger has nomination papers out for councillor at-large: Paul Holland, Jr. of Centre St. He joins Kevin Worley and Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg.

Three contenders, so far for Kolson's Ward 1 seat: Gretchen Grant, Greg Hanley and William Weed.

John Cain is challenging incumbent Patrick McDermott in Ward 3 and Ward 5 incumbent Steve Durkin has Arlene Goodman as an opponent.

HAROLD

SHEETS

Right now, the only two ward councillors without opposition are Raymondi and D'Amico.

Could be some more names in this year's election picture.

Potential candidates have until July 27 to take out and file nomination papers at the Election Department.

KEN MCPHEE, former North Quincy High School head football coach, now coordinator of security for the Quincy public schools, will be honored Sunday, June 27.

MCPHEE

The NQHS Football Alumni and NQHS Boosters are holding a dinner tribute that date at 4 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, Quarry St. (Social at 3 p.m.)

Tickets are $35 and may be had by calling 770-1776 or 328-4489. Deadline is June 14. No tickets will be available at the door.

McPhee was named to his new post by School Supt. Gene Creedon in February, bringing an outstanding 27-year coaching career to an end at North, 10 years as assistant and 17 as head coach.

As head coach, his teams won 92 games.

But it's not the wins that he is being honored for.

The committee notes it's for "his dedication, caring, and promotion of Pride, Excellence, Tradition and Good Sportsmanship that he has instilled in everyone he has come in contact with."

A deserving tribute to one of Quincy's real assets.

AND, COMMUNITY LEADER Tom Galvin reached the 60-year mark and friends surprised him with a party at the Common Market.

Among them: Bob Curry, Ed Keohane, Ron Zoolack, Tom Cataldo, John O'Connor, Bob Galligan, Joe Mannarino, Mike McFarland and Rich Barry.

Tom, who is vice president of Boston Gear, will be retiring from there after 43 years service at the end of the month.

After all that time he's wondering if he might be on automatic pilot and continue to turn up at Boston Gear after he leaves.

But, he's not retiring from the Quincy scene. He'll stay active in the community and will be joining his sons in their building and development company.

And Quincy Sun fans will be happy to hear that he will continue his popular "Scenes from Yesterday" postcards series.

Summerfest Concert Series Opens June 30

Quincy's Summerfest concert program enters its 17th consecutive year at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater June 30 and will continue through July and August, concluding Sept. 1.

Ten concerts are scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays at the amphitheater. If it rains, the concert will be performed Thursday.

Big Bands will perform during July, while popular combos will be featured in August. The schedule will open June 30 with Mjic, which plays a variety of popular tunes from the '60s, '70s and '80s. The other dates are:

July 7 — Silver Bullet Swing Band, a 16-piece Big Band.

July 14 — The Roy Scott Big Band, a 20-piece jazz orchestra, which plays favorites from the '30s and '40s as well as contemporary hits.

July 21 — Continentals — a 16-piece swing band featuring songs from the '40s.

July 28 — Roy Natile Big Band, which performs big band music of the past 60 years as well as some of today's jazz.

Aug. 4 — Razzmatazz, which performs classics from the '60s and '70s.

Aug. 11 — Reminiscents, who play classic hits from the '50s and '60s.

Aug. 18 — John Penny Band, one of the top country show bands in the nation, which performs both contemporary and traditional songs.

Aug. 25 — To be announced.

Sept. 1 — the Alumni Big Band, which performs jazz, swing, pop and show tunes.

Postponed concerts will be reported on WJDA and in the newspaper.

Millennium Book Topic At Adams Shore Library

"The Ends of Civilization: Taking Stock on the Eve of the Millennium" will hold its final session Wednesday, June 23 at 7 p.m. at the Adams Shore Branch Library, 519 Sea St.

The free program is open to the public. Registration is required.

The five-week series is a statewide reading and discussion program developed especially for the millennium by the Massachusetts

Foundation for the Humanities. The Thomas Crane Public Library is one of 27 libraries participating in this program.

The focus of the June 23 program is Francis Fukuyama's book, The End of History and the Last Man. Fukuyama's provocative book poses a series of questions about liberal democracy, humanity's struggle for recognition, and individual worth trade for the civilized comfort of self-protection.

Curry College professor David Fedo, who opened the series in May with The End of Education, will facilitate the program.

A copy of the book for this session is loaned by the MFH to each registered participant. For more information or to register contact Linda Beeler at the Thomas Crane Public Library at 617-376-1316.

Joanna Tam Wins Local Lions Club Poster Contest

Joanna Tam of Central Middle School was the first place winner in the local competition in International Peace Poster Contest sponsored by the Quincy Lions Club.

The annual contest emphasizes the importance of world peace to young people all over the world. The event has created considerable interest in the local area for a number of years and fosters the growth and character of our youth.

Besides winning the local competition, Tam placed second in the district competition from a field of 25 other students from around the region. Joanna's poster was among more than 300,000 entries submitted worldwide in the 11th annual Lions International Peace Poster Contest.

The Quincy Lions recently held a luncheon to recognize the middle school students who participated. Also invited to the luncheon were the students' parents, art teachers, and principals.

Other local students participating in the contest and recognized at the luncheon were:

Christine Gill of Sterling Middle School, Prasert Wnuatyukhan of Atlantic Middle School, and Evelyn McInnes of Broad Meadows Middle School. The Quincy Lions presented each student with a gift and a certificate of achievement for their participation.

Also, a $50 check was presented to the art teachers on behalf of the middle schools for use in the art department.

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

RUNNER'S NAILS

Marathoners and other long-distance runners who rack up a lot of miles on their feet may ultimately develop blackened, disfigured toenails. The discoloration is actually dried blood under the nail. Take, for example, a man training for a road race. The longer he continues his run, the more his feet swell, making the shoe tighter and tighter. With each step, the runner bangs his nail against the front of the shoe. From this repeated friction and banging of the foot, the nail actually rubs against its own nail bed. The bleeding, then, comes from the nail matrix, the cells from which new nail tissue grows. If the matrix is damaged severely, the dark and thickened nail may be permanent.

After any toenail injury, be sure to follow through with a professional diagnosis and treatment plan from your podiatrist. Early intervention can often speed healing and recovery time. And forewarned is forearmed - we'll also recommend ways to prevent toe nail or other foot problems from recurring. Don't suffer with any foot injury, condition, disease or other problem. Call on us instead at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy (617-472-3466).

PS: Your podiatrist may suggest an orthotic to help prevent recurrent trauma to toenails. As with any sport, see a professional fitter when you plan to buy your running shoes.

Rapi, Anchovy Sauce

Last week, after my husband prepared his favorite vegetable "broccoli rapi", there was quite a bit left over.

I used this to make an easy delicious topping for a favorite pasta. He likes angel hair, I like linguine. You can take your pick!

Rapi, anchovy sauce

2 cups or so of rapi (or plain broccoli if you prefer)

3 tablespoons olive oil

1 can of anchovies

2 cloves of garlic (chopped)
1/2 pound of angel hair (or other) grated romano or parmesan cheese
salt and pepper to taste

Boil the water and cook the pasta. While this is cooking, saute the garlic in hot oil. Add the anchovies and rapi. Add the cooked and drained pasta and blend together until heated through. Top with grated cheese and serve hot. We enjoyed it so much, I've made it again since.

Wollaston Students Raise $2,600 For Kosovo Children

The second and fifth graders at Wollaston School raised nearly $2,600 recently to benefit the children of Kosovo.

Throughout the day, a bottle and can drive, a bake and book sale, a plant sale and a chance table were held to raise money.

"We would like to thank the Wollaston School community and the many small businesses that donated many items that were sold or raffled," said Mary Griffith of the Wollaston School.

She said many others donated money, and one neighbor was particularly generous. "With the help of these people, we were able to make Caring for Kosovo Day a success," she said.

At Weddings And Other Occasions Saying It With Doves

By ELAINE NORTON

Picture the perfect day for a wedding.

The sun is shining. Flowers are in full bloom.

As a dazzling bride and groom walk out of the church to greet their guests, a dozen pristine white doves are released into the air, symbolizing love, peace, fidelity, prosperity and good luck for the newly married couple.

Is this something you only see in the movies? Just a dream? No, it's really happening, and it's happening right here in Quincy.

"Any girl would feel like Cinderella," says Charline Tinkham, owner of Quincy-based Doves Aflight, a dove release service for weddings, funerals, services or celebrations.

Releasing doves is particularly fitting for weddings because, according to Tinkham, "Once the doves mate, they mate for life. They are very devoted to each other."

Recently Tinkham and her doves provided the perfect touch at an Easter Sunrise Service in Caddy Park, Wollaston. After the Rev. Stan Johnson of First Presbyterian Church spoke of the biblical symbolism of doves, she released 12 doves into the air. The white birds circled above the park before flying back to their home near Fore River in Quincy Point.

Tinkham and her partner, Joe Ranieri, started Doves Aflight over a year ago. Both had very different reasons for starting the business. Tinkham, a gardener by profession and a bird lover by nature, felt it was a natural progression for her.

And Ranieri, who loves to raise and race homing pigeons, felt he could make a profit doing what he loves.

They combined their interests, and with only two pairs of doves, developed Doves Aflight. Tinkham does the marketing and releasing, and Ranieri is the primary caretaker of the birds.

"It has taken quite a while to get up enough

Save Gas and Money

CHARLINE TINKHAM releases one of her pristine white doves she provides for weddings, funerals and special services and celebrations.

doves," says Tinkham. "There were only six born in a year and a half."

"However, this is mating season, and some of the nests have eggs in them that will hatch shortly," she adds.

The doves, with their strong homing instinct, return immediately home after release, according to Tinkham. She has had only one bird not return since she started the release service.

"I'm sure a hawk got him," she says, explaining that there is always that danger. "Otherwise, he would have returned."

She also notes that the bond between two doves is so strong that it's almost better to release them separately. "If you release the male away from the female, it gives greater incentive for him to return."

Most homing doves travel from 25 to 40 miles per hour, according to Ranieri. Tinkham says the price they charge for dove release is dependent upon the distance from home the doves are released.

"We only do one release a day," she explains. "And we don't do it too late in the day. It wouldn't be fair; they need time to get home.

"If it's storming out, we don't release the birds," she continues. "If it's inclement weather, we refund the money."

Tinkham says she's gotten a lot of calls for dove releases in the year 2000.

In addition to releasing the doves, the company rents out a pair of white turtle doves in a circular white cage, which Tinkham decorates with netting and flowers to use as a centerpiece at weddings.

"They (doves) are just an elegant thing to have," states Tinkham.

She also says that since Doves Aflight has appeared on the web, they have received requests from Maine, Maryland and Georgia. For these people, she plans to put together a "dove kit," consisting of a pair of doves which can be released anywhere in the country.

Tinkham hopes the idea of dove release will catch on even more as time goes on. She says it's a heartwarming moment for her when the doves take off and everyone applauds.

"I'm glad I have a hobby I can share with others," she says smiling.

Hearing Set June 14 On Hospital Affiliation

The City Council will hold a special meeting at 7 p.m. Monday to discuss a home rule petition which would allow Quincy Hospital to become affiliated with Boston Medical Center.

Originally, the council had expected to discuss the proposal at its Monday night meeting, but at the request of Mayor James Sheets, the meeting was postponed for a week.

Council President Peter Kolson said the home rule petition drafted last week was withdrawn at the request of the mayor.

The mayor wants a memorandum of understanding with the unions to assure smooth sailing," said Kolson. A new home rule petition with additional details about the proposed affiliation will be drafted by the end of the week, he said.

Councillor-at-large Paul Harold reminded his peers that the council had agreed to hold a public hearing on the proposed affiliation.

Councillor Daniel Raymond added that the public employees should have a copy of the petition before the night of the hearing.

Kolson said the time line is to get the petition passed by June 21 so that it can be presented to the Legislature before it adjourns for the summer.

"If there are one or two issues outstanding, that can be indicated," said Kolson.

The home rule petition will include language authorizing the city to transfer all its assets related to the hospital to Boston Medical Center and to convey title to the hospital real estate or to lease it for up to 99 years.

Under the affiliation, Quincy Hospital would serve as a teaching hospital and training site for the Boston Medical Center residential training program.

The biggest concern among hospital employees is whether existing contracts with the city will be upheld by BMC. Employees fear that they might be able to keep their jobs but may have lose all their seniority.

While Executive Secretary John Keenan did not address that issue, he did the city councillors that no fire-fighters nor police officers would be laid off as a result of the hospital affiliation.

"There are no reductions in force contemplated," said Keenan. The fire department is funded at its present staffing level.

Councillor Michael D'Amico had proposed in the waning minutes of the city council to add two new fire lieutenants to the department to oversee the E-911 calls. He was rebuffed, however, by the council members who said other issues must be addressed first.

"I am mystified why we need more fire lieutenants," said Councillor-at-large Francis McCauley. "Given the fact we have other questions that have to be answered right now, such as the hospital, the teachers...

"It's unfair to raise expectations within the fire department and among the chief and the two potential lieutenants" to discuss this at this time, McCauley said.

Edith Volpe Nominated For Assisted Living Award

Edith Volpe, the first resident of Allerton House at Hancock Park in Quincy, was recently nominated for an award by the Massachusetts Assisted Living Facilities Association at its annual awards dinner.

Volpe, a resident at Allerton House at Hancock Park Assisted Living Community, was nominated for the "Resident Spirit Award." The award recognizes assisting living residents who exemplify the "heart and soul" of what assisted living is all about.

At age 84, Volpe remains a remarkably active and caring woman. Along with being a member of Allerton House at Hancock Park's Resident Advisory Committee, she finds time to be a friend to many of her neighbors at Allerton House by sorting mail and reading to those who have failing eyesight. She helps with administrative tasks, plans and hosts social tea, and organizes the Catholic Masses held at Allerton House.

In addition, Volpe contributes each week to the Quincy Historical Society.

MASS-ALFA is a non-profit association devoted to promoting the establishment and operation of quality assisted living residences in Massachusetts.

Are you ready for Y2K? Check this handy checklist!

Most of us sleep through the average New Year's Eve, but this year is one that might just be worth staying awake for. As the calendar turns from 12/31/99 to 01/01/00, we'll welcome a new era and find out — once and for all — how the Year 2000 changeover will turn out. The good news is that the closer we get, the more it looks like things are going to go pretty smoothly. Most computers — including ours! — seem to be in great shape. But a bit of advance preparation can't hurt. At the very least, you'll be ready for the next nor'easter — which could just hit on New Year's Day.

Avoid the last-minute rush!

- ☐ Have your fireplace cleaned now. Get wood delivered.
- ☐ Buy bottled water, batteries, a good flashlight, candles. Remember matches!
- ☐ Plan to have some cash on hand. (AARP suggests enough for a 3-day weekend.)
- ☐ Buy a few extras of your favorite canned foods... and a manual can-opener!
- ☐ Keep your prescriptions up-to-date and filled.
- ☐ Sign up for a debit card — access your accounts wherever you are.
- ☐ Have your gas grill cleaned. Get extra propane.
- ☐ Make sure you have a battery-operated clock-radio.
- ☐ Make friends with your neighbors!

In December

- ☐ Keep your car's gas tank filled.
- ☐ Back-up your computer. Unplug it on New Year's Eve.
- ☐ Get a few good books or magazines.
- ☐ Invest in a couple of new board games and a pack of cards.
- ☐ Arrange a buddy system with your friends.
- ☐ Plan a "Happy New Year!" breakfast for January 1st.

Once upon a time, we lived without computers. We even survived the Blizzard of '78! And working together, we'll all get through this New Year's Eve too. As long as the Bank has electricity, our ATMs will be here for you all New Year's weekend and we will be open our regular hours on Monday, January 3rd, 2000. In the meantime, if you have Y2K preparation suggestions, send them to us. Maybe you'll see them in an upcoming ad!

Raymondi Would Control Rent In Housing Built With State, US Loans

Councillor Daniel Raymondi has proposed drafting a home rule petition to regulate rent in housing constructed with state or federally sub-sidized loans.

"A public emergency exists with respect to the housing of a substantial number of persons living in these homes," Raymondi said.

There is a threat that many low income individuals and families residing in such housing, particularly the elderly or disabled, may be displaced because the period of time that regulated rents are in effect is nearing expiration, Raymondi said as he introduced his proposal.

"I don't want to be a killjoy," Councillor Paul Harold said, "but when rent control was abolished, home rule petitions were prohibited."

Councillor Francis McCauley said, "The last thing we need is rent control." McCauley said that rent control would cause landlords to abandon or not maintain their property.

The rent increase would affect 190 Senior Citizen tenants residing at Wollaston Manor at 91 Clay Street. At least two other facilities, Granite Place and Hancock Court, face similar potential rent increases.

Councillor Stephen Durkin says that seniors citizens living on a fixed or limited income deserve housing security. He acknowledged that affordable housing in Quincy and the Greater Boston area is already scarce.

Durkin asked the council to support House Bill #1548 and Senate Bill #567, which protect low and moderate income tenants and governmentally-involved housing.

The City Council voted unanimously to support the bills and will write a letter in support of the legislation to representative Robert M. Koczera and Senator Stephen C. Panagiotakos, co-chairmen of the joint committee on Housing and Urban Development.

Commander Shea Boulevard To Be Closed To Vehicular Traffic Between Sagamore Street and Hancock Street

Effective Monday, June 14

Beginning on Monday, June 14 at 7:00 a.m. and extending until 5:00 p.m. on Thursday, June 17, Commander Shea Boulevard will be closed to vehicular traffic between Sagamore Street and Hancock Street.

During this time, an electric utility manhole will be installed in Commander Shea Boulevard.

This same area of Commander Shea Boulevard once again will be closed to vehicular traffic between Sagamore Street and Hancock Street about one week later for four more days while electric cables are being installed in the street.

During these two periods of time, traffic will be detoured from Commander Shea Boulevard onto Sagamore Street, to Newbury Street, to East Squantum Street and to Hancock Street.

Commander Shea Boulevard will remain open to pedestrian traffic at all times.

The work in Commander Shea Boulevard on the manhole and the cables is part of a $25-million project to install two new underground electric cables between Dorchester and North Quincy.

New England Power Company is installing the new cables in order to maintain the reliability of the electric supply for the City of Quincy. The installation of the cables is scheduled to be completed by year end.

ress," said Robert Barker.

Barker's stationery business was launched in 1932 by their father, Edward Barker, who started in business with a typewriter sales and repair business. The first store was on the ground level on Granite Street. Later it moved to Maple Street, where the XO Trattoria presently is located.

"Then my father bought the building at 1 Maple Street," said Robert Barker. In 1939, Barker's introduced Hallmark Cards.

Barker's was located at the corner of Maple and Chestnut streets before it moved to 1459 Hancock St. 25 years ago. Those were the days when Remick's, Sheridan's the Lincoln and Enterprise stores dotted the Downtown, Robert Barker recalled.

Their father sold the business, and it was owned by two others before Richard Barker bought it. The other owners continued to run the stationery store under the Barker name.

Although Richard Barker is closing the business, he will continue to own the building and has plans to create an apartment for himself above the store. He also will install an elevator in the building, according to his brother.

Woodcraft Furniture owner Ali Alfageeh said he chose Quincy for a third store because there is no other place in the area which carries unfinished furniture. He operates two other stores, one in Allston on Harvard Avenue and one in Everett on Broadway. He started his business eight years ago in Somerville.

"Second," he said, "is the size of Quincy and the location, close to Boston. And it is in the center of the business area."

Alfageeh said he signed a lease to open Aug. 1 but probably would not open until the second week in August. His store also makes custom furniture. "Our saying is, 'If you can imagine it, we can make it.'"

Kenealy also said the owner of the former Patriot Ledger building at 13-19 Temple St. has entered a purchase-and-sale agreement with a group of investors.

Alain Chaecroune of South Shore Realty Investors bought the property several years ago after it had remained vacant for many years.

Kenealy declined to identify the prospective buyers while due diligence is being conducted. He said there is a potential tenant for the property who wants to lease 15,000 square feet for office space.

5 Commended For Efforts At Granite Workers Park

Five volunteers from the Granite Workers Memorial Park were commended at Monday night's City Council meeting for their continuing hard work and dedication in maintaining the beauty of the park.

Stephen Cantelli, Peter Antonellis, Alba Tocci, Barbara Persampieri and Linda Montillio each received a commendation from Councillor Michael D'Amico.

They were also presented with a $500 check from the City Council for the continual upkeep of the park.

"We love the work,"

Alba Tocci commented. She praised the students of the Lincoln-Hancock School for their dedication to the park. She said the children consider the park theirs, which is why there has been no incidents of vandalism at the park since it was dedicated in 1994.

Peter Kolson, president of the City Council, thanked the volunteers and asked them one question. How do they get their flowers to grow so high?

Alba Tocci replied simply, "We feed them with love."

Wollaston Beach Cleanup Ward 5 Topic Tonight

The Ward 5 Community Association will conduct its monthly meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School on Fenno St., Wollaston.

All are welcome and refreshments will be served.

The recently-released report of Mayor James Sheets' Wollaston Beach Task Force will be the topic. Ward 5 Community Association President Doug Gutro, a Task Force member, and Joan LeBlanc of The Boston Harbor Association will present the $6 million worth of recommendations outlined in the Task Force's report.

Guest speakers will include Task Force members, DPW Commissioner David Colton; Michelle Gillen, public affairs liaison for the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority; and representatives from the Metropolitan District Commission.

"This will be an opportunity for Quincy residents to hear the plan to improve water quality at Wollaston Beach," Gutro said.

"Residents have a right to know whether or not their city and state officials are committed to cleaning this beach."

Trooper Tom Duane will introduce himself to the community as the Massachusetts State Police officer patrolling the beach this summer.

The Ward 5 Community Association has worked with various city officials for the past three years to establish a collaborative group of agency representatives to study the water quality issues at Wollaston Beach. The association worked closely with Mayor Sheets and Ward 5 Councilor Stephen Durkin, chairman of the Task Force, to convene the Wollaston Beach Task Force.

"This plan will only make a difference if city and state officials, boaters, and residents all fulfill their obligations," Gutro added.

The association will host a variety of activities this summer along Wollaston Beach.

The association conducts an educational storm-drain stenciling campaign each summer. In cooperation with Tony's Clam Shop, the Association will co-sponsor this year's Wollaston Beach Sandcastle Contest. In addition, the second annual Wollaston Beach volleyball challenge is planned for August.

For more information on the Ward 5 Community Association and its upcoming events, call 328-7982.

Cahill: 'I Will Be Vindicated'

after attending graduation ceremonies for the class of 1999 at North Quincy High School.

"I was informed by Tom Kiley, but I didn't have an opportunity to talk to him about the specifics, other than the complaint had been issued."

The next step is an arraignment. "I assume if it is not this week, it probably will be next week," said Cahill.

One of the issues facing the office of District Attorney William Keating is whether a special counsel will be requested to prosecute the case. That also will determine whether the complaint will be heard in Norfolk County or another county. Cahill serves as county treasurer and head of the county's retirement board.

State law says that conviction of a violation of the state ethics law carries a two-year jail term or a $3,000 fine or both. The violation is a misdemeanor, not a felony.

Cahill did not testify during the court magistrate's hearing last week but said this week that he does not believe he violated the law.

Both the union and Highpoint developer Dean Stratouly allege that Cahill should not have participated in any discussions of the $200 million apartment complex because his parents and his sister-in-law own property near the site off Quarry Street.

Cahill said his parents' home is 125 feet away from the proposed development, on Packard's Lane, a dead-end street. "You cannot see the development. My sister-in-law's house abuts the property on Churchill Road which is off Common Street, a side street."

"My argument, in terms of financial interest, is that neither property will be impacted. You cannot see [the proposed development site] from where they are, and there will be no traffic impact," he said.

"The bottom line as far as I am concerned is that if they can prove I have a financial interest, they have to prove that influenced my vote. I voted based on how the city would be affected, the citizens of West Quincy would be affected," Cahill said.

He said he never has argued that the 75-acre site had to remain open space or be left as it was.

"And I'm not philosophically opposed to Planned Unit Development district projects," he said. In his 12 years as councillor, he voted in favor of all P.U.D.s but one, and after a compromise was introduced at Marina Bay, he voted for that project.

Cahill said the Highpoint proposal is similar to the one Ricciardi proposed 10 years ago which received approval for 975 units. Cahill voted on the project and his parents owned their Packard's Lane home then.

"It will be interesting if the State Ethics Commission rules before the criminal complaint is heard, especially if it rules in my favor, although I don't have tremendous confidence in how they are going to rule," he said.

Investigators from the commission have interviewed him, his mother, his sister-in-law, people at city hall and real estate agents during the past three weeks.

"For the most part the Ethics Commission is an administrative agency of the state, and it is their job to find something and keep digging until they find something," he said.

Cahill said to issue a criminal complaint requires only a limited amount of information, but the district attorney's office will have to find more evidence to prosecute the case.

"Stratouly doesn't care who he puts in an awkward situation," Cahill charged. "He cares about his profit, how he can beat the city. He doesn't care if he tears the city down as long as he gets to do what he wants to do."

"That's part of his strategy, to divide us at the city council. It's not just an attempt to intimidate me but to intimidate all city councillors, and in some cases, it is working."

"There are some who are afraid of what's happening and are talking about negotiating with him," Cahill said.

During Monday night one-and-a-half hour executive session, Kiley and City Solicitor Stephen McGrath updated the councillors about the lawsuits the city and the developer have filed against each other.

In addition, the councillors discussed whether the city should pay Cahill's legal fees in the criminal case. Cahill said at this point the councillors have made no decision and he would be represented by Kiley at his arraignment at which he will plead not guilty.

PAIN IN THE BALL OF THE FOOT

A common complaint that patients often have is pain under the ball of the foot, usually present while walking. There are several possible common causes that should be considered. These include bursitis (inflammation of a fluid-filled sac found near joints), capsulitis (inflammation of the capsule around joints), tendinitis, stress fractures, neuromas (benign nerve tumors between the toes), and structural (such as long and short metatarsals) and biomechanical factors. Diagnoses of these conditions are based on the doctor's experience and the help of diagnostic methods such as X-rays, CAT scans, Bone Scans, etc. If you are experiencing pain in the ball of the foot and it does not seem to be improving, consult a qualified Podiatrist who will be able to treat your condition medically or, if necessary, surgically.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Quincy College Sees Modest FY Surplus

Quincy College is predicting a modest surplus for the fiscal year ends June 30.

Dr. G. Jeremiah Ryan, college president, said the college's financial picture continues to brighten.

Last week, the auditing firm of Deloitte & Touche reported that for fiscal year 1998, the school sustained a "very miniscule" net loss of $3,570.

Reported revenues for that year were $9,620,771 and expenses, $9,266,304, providing an operating surplus of $356,467. But after a transfer of $358,037 for depreciation, the year ended with the net loss.

For the past three fiscal years, however, the college had experienced major losses, according to Ryan.

The financial turnaround has occurred because of a strong partnership between the executive staff of the college and the 12-member board of governors, said

JEREMIAH RYAN

Ryan who praised the board's finance and facilities committee's efforts.

"The members knew it would take some time to reverse the trends, and they kept the leadership on course. They encouraged us to make tough decision after tough decision."

In submitting their report, the auditors also made several recommendations to improve the financial and business systems of the college. Ryan said the college has been working on all those areas for more than a year and predicted the auditors would see substantial improvement when they conduct this year's audit. A public hearing on the college's proposed budget for fiscal year 2000 will be held at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 15, in the Sullivan Center at Saville Hall of the college.

Teacher Talks Resume

since Sept. 1.

Meanwhile, Quincy College announced last week that it had reached a tentative agreement with its professional staff association, the middle management of the college, for a two-year contract which would provide a 2 percent increase, retroactive to July 1, 1998, and a 3 percent increase effective July 1, 1999.

The contract language calls for a comprehensive employee evaluation system and funding of a professional development account to assist members in attaining college and graduate degrees related to their job responsibilities and positions.

"We have tentatively agreed to a financial package better than that reportedly offered by the mayor to the public school teachers," said Quincy College President G. Jeremiah Ryan.

William Hall, president of the Professional Staff Association, said the bargaining process was completed without acrimony or serious disagreement is fewer than 90 days. The association approved the contract at its meeting June 1, and the college's board of governors will take up the contract at its next meeting June 15, to be held at 4:30 p.m. in the Sullivan Center in Saville Hall.

A public hearing on the proposed FY 2000 budget of Quincy College will begin at 5:30 p.m. June 15.

Did you know...

- You have to be close to poverty level before applying for Medicaid benefits?
- You must apply in writing for Medicaid? Medicare pays only the first 100 days of Nursing Home expenses. After that, you must private pay yourself! With average nursing home cost of $6,000 - $8,000 per month, the average person's life savings could be wiped out in less than 2 years!!
- The $10,000 annual gift exclusion to children is not exempt from Medicaid qualifications.
- If you have a Revocable or Living Trust, and it is not funded, it will still pass through Probate.
- If you have a Revocable or Living Trust it does not protect you from Medicaid qualifications AT ALL!
- Joint Accounts with children do NOT protect you from Medicaid. They are usually a BIG mistake! If your children get sued, divorced, or go through bankruptcy, your accounts are at risk!
- The Estate Tax Unified Credit Exemption Equivalent only goes from $400,000 - $675,000 by the year 2001. It does not reach $1,000,000 until year 2006.

Senior Citizens Could Lose Close To Their Entire Life Savings And Put Their Homes In Jeopardy From Nursing Home Expenses/Medicaid Requirements/Estate Taxes/and Probate!

Radio Personality Richard Rubino is one of the most sought after speakers in the New England area today, and is considered the Leading Specialist on Estate and Medicaid Planning. He has published numerous articles on Asset Protection Strategies.

AT THIS WORKSHOP, YOU WILL LEARN:

- Current strategies available to protect your home from Nursing Home expenses.
- What the 36 & 60 - month "Waiting Period" really means. What legal strategies are available.
- What the criminal offense issue is all about with the Kennedy-Kassebaum Bill.
- How you can use Capital Gains Taxes To Help Your Asset Protection Strategies.
- The pros and cons of Irrevocable & Revocable Trusts - Are they right for you?

Chiropractic Update

WHAT TO DO ABOUT THAT BACK PAIN

Most people will experience some degree of back pain at one time or another in their lifetime. Experts point to the general trend in our society to do more and more sitting, coupled with a general decline in our level of physical fitness as possible causes. Regardless if the back pain is brought on by an accident, poor posture, straining while working around the house, or playing a sport, or by doing too much bending and lifting, there is a lot of confusion as to what to do for treatment.

There are some general recommendations that often prove helpful to patients suffering from lower back pain. In my practice, I strongly urge patients to apply ice immediately after injuring their lower back. The ice tends to reduce any swelling or inflammation while also serving as a natural pain reliever. People with lower back pain should avoid excessive sitting because the seated position dramatically increases the structural pressure of the lower back. The recommended posture is known as the fetal position, whereby the patient lies on his/her side with both knees brought up toward their chest. Excessive exercise, bending, twisting and/or lifting should be avoided, as these actions tend to aggravate an injured lower back.

While I have taken the liberty of offering some basic suggestions on the care of back pain, there is no substitute for a thorough evaluation and examination to correctly diagnose the cause of the problem. The doctor of chiropractic, with intensive training and knowledge of the spine, is eminently qualified to treat patients suffering from lower back pain.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Test May Help Identify Early Risk For Prostate Cancer

Prostate cancer can be a silent killer. The leading malignancy among men, prostate cancer trails only lung cancer in number of deaths caused.

And while most cases of early prostate cancer cause no symptoms at all, often the cancer has spread beyond the prostate by the time any symptoms become apparent. Because this slow-growing cancer is often curable in its early stages, early detection can be life saving.

A recent study suggests that checking men early for abnormal growths in the prostate gland called PIN, short for prostatic intraepithelial neoplasia, may help doctors identify health men who are at high risk of developing prostate cancer. The study, conducted among military veterans in Boston, found that older men with high-grade PIN have a 50-50 chance of developing prostate cancer. The study points to the importance of treating prostate cancer in its earliest stages.

"Prostate cancer tends to be a silent problem and early detection is key," said Jeffrey Dann, M.D., president of the Massachusetts Association of Practicing Urologists and member of the Massachusetts Medical Society. "If found early, prostate cancer is a very curable situation."

The prostate, a gland found only in men, is an organ located under the bladder, which surround the upper part of the urethra, the tube that carries urine and semen. In 1999, prostate cancer will account for an estimated 180,000 new cases and 37,000 deaths.

The most important preventive step men can take is to have regular screenings. Dr. Dann suggests that men age 45 and older, or younger men in a high-risk group should talk with their physicians about having a digital rectal exam of the prostate gland and a prostate-specific antigen (PSA) blood test every year.

High-risk groups include men with a family history of prostate cancer and African-American men. Prostate cancer is about twice as common among African-American men as it is among Caucasian men.

"Men between the ages of 45 and 50 should start having a PSA test and a digital rectal exam annually," said Dr. Dann. "These tests are not mutually exclusive so it's important to do both. Ten to fifteen percent of men have a normal prostate test and still have cancer."

"Many men mistakenly believe if they don't have any symptoms, they don't have a problem," said Dr. Dann. "When the cancer starts to get extensive or has spread beyond the prostate, symptoms like difficulty urinating, blood in the urine, and pain from the disease that spread to the bones will appear."

Dr. Dann encourages men to take the responsibility to make prostate cancer screening a part of their regular check-ups — by scheduling exams annually and discussing screening with their physicians, for example — because the earlier the detection, the more effective treatment will be.

Depending on a patient's age, stage of the cancer, and other medical conditions, surgery, radiation and cryosurgery, a freezing technique, are most common treatment options. Careful observation without immediate active treatment may be appropriate, particularly for older individuals who may have other medical problems.

For more information on prostate cancer, call the Massachusetts Health Promotion Clearinghouse at 617-536-5872 to order brochures on prostate cancer, free of charge.

RESTRAINED ENTHUSIASM

Parents and auto manufacturers you to be informed. For maintenance must work together to make vehicles as safe as possible. According to the latest statistics available to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, car accidents are one of the leading causes of death among children between the ages 1 and 14. The real tragedy is that many of these fatalities could be prevented if some basic safety precautions were observed. To begin with, no parent should forgo using child safety seats or seat belts by rationalizing that they are "just going a few blocks." The fact is that 75% of car crashes occur within 25 miles of the home. And, 54% of children under age 5 who were killed in vehicle crashes in 1997 were totally unrestrained.

The safety of our customers and their children is important to us here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO and we want and repairs, we are small enough to provide friendly, personalized service and large enough to have the most modern test equipment and more important, outstanding technicians. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. You can trust your auto repairs to us at 250 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). "A Place Where your Car Can Live Longer." Count on us for propane for grills, mobile homes and converted vehicles.

HINT: According to government officials, an estimated 312 children under age 5 who were involved in serious vehicular accidents in 1997 are alive today because they were correctly restrained in child-safety seats. Thousands more were spared serious injury.

Giving The Buyer Peace Of Mind On Home Inspections

By DANIEL A. GRABAUSSKAS

Imagine you just purchased the home of your dreams.

Your attractive 10-year old Colonial home has four bedrooms, a family room with a fireplace and spacious backyard. Life seems perfect. What you did not know was that beneath your home's beautiful exterior is an army of termites that caused extensive property damage. What recourse do you have?

The Massachusetts Legislature is considering legislation that would give homebuyers some needed peace of mind regarding the quality of home inspections. The legislation (Senate 351) was developed jointly and is supported by the Cellucci/Swift Administration and state Senator Cheryl Jacques, among others. As the Chair of Senate Post Audit and Oversight Committee, Senator Jacques issued a report entitled, "A Crack In The Foundation" which was the spark that led to the development of this important legislation. The bill would establish a fair licensure system requiring all home inspectors in the Commonwealth to meet basic professional standards. Home inspectors who are unable to meet such standards would no longer be able to practice their trade in Massachusetts under the proposed bill.

As the Director of the Office of Consumer Affairs and Business Regulation, I am keenly aware of the seriousness of this issue which deals with likely the largest single purchase consumers will make in their lives. Surveys have recently pointed out that more people in our state are homeowners than ever before in our history. And, as the housing market continues in boom times, this means that more and more consumers are sharing this common experience.

Not surprisingly, Massachusetts has some of the oldest housing stock in the country. For consumers this means a selection of some of the most charming, quaint, often historic homes from which to choose. On the flip side, however, this often practically translates into old roofs, antiquated electrical and plumbing systems, and well-established household pests. In the process of selecting a house and making an offer, consumers require solid information about the condition of the property. For this purpose, many people wisely take advantage of the ten-day window after an offer is accepted to have the home professionally inspected.

The nail-biting experience of walking through a house you wish to make your home is a key point in the process. Unfortunately, in the Commonwealth today, the quality of that home inspector—their background and training—is potentially not what you might expect. My own experiences have been good ones, but as my office informally surveyed various places that have received complaints, the results unfortunately are mixed at best. It makes sense that some common standards be applied. A false sense of security is no security at all. The home inspector is the consumers' advocate in the buying process. We think it makes sense to improve the consistency of the quality of these professionals.

The best option to promote such quality and professionalism is the establishment of a Board of Registration for Home Inspectors that would be responsible for the establishment of common standards for the licensure of home inspectors. The new board would be placed under the Division of Registration, an agency that already has vast experience in overseeing the daily activities of the Commonwealth's 33 Boards of Registration which together license over 525,000 professionals.

As the spring and summer home-buying and homebuilding seasons are upon us, the time to protect Massachusetts homeowners through professionalizing home inspectors is here and now.

At Veterans Memorial Stadium; 2 1/2 Mile Walk Starts At 9:30 Kennedy Run For ALS Set For 10 A.M. Saturday

The second annual Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run Saturday, June 12, will highlight ALS Awareness Week (June 6-13) in Quincy.

The five-mile road race will start promptly at 10 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium with registration at 8:30 a.m. and a 2 1/2-mile walkathon starting at 9:30 a.m.

The event memorializes Jimmy Kennedy, a Quincy native, who died in 1997 at the age of 31 of ALS (amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, also known as Lou Gehrig's disease).

Last year, hundreds of runners braved a driving rainstorm to race along the five-mile course through the city's streets and beachfront. Men and women, young and old, and familiar public figures, ran to honor the memory of Jimmy Kennedy, a Quincy native, husband and father who died in 1997 at age 31 from Lou Gehrig's Disease.

Kennedy was an academic and athletic standout at North Quincy High School and Northeastern University, a graduate of Georgetown Law School, and a practicing attorney before being stricken with ALS. His father, Christopher, Quincy school committeeman and former Dean of Students at Northeastern University, also died from ALS.

In 1998 race raised over $20,000 for the fight against the disease, Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis. It is best known as Lou Gehrig's Disease, named after the Yankee legend, whose death from the disease first brought it to the world's attention in 1938.

Funds raised by this year's race will go directly to the Cecil B. Day Laboratory for Neuromuscular Research at Mass General Hospital in Boston.

The race is open to runners of all ages and abilities. There is also a 2.5-mile fitness walk in conjunction with the day's events for those who would like to show their support. There will also be activities for the whole family.

To make a contribution, sign up for the race or walk, or donate time or services, Race Directors Richard Kennedy (781-383-6008) or Martin Levenson (617-492-4040 ext. 385, e-mail: mlevenson@mac-gray.com).

Quincy Tennis Club Clinic June 15

QUINCY TENNIS CLUB will offer a free junior tennis clinic Tuesday, June 15 from 1 to 3 p.m. for children ages 7-11. Rain date is Tuesday, June 22. The club is located at the rear of 17 1/2 Glendale Rd., Quincy Center. Children must be accompanied by an adult for registration and orientation. Children are asked to bring their own tennis racquet. The Quincy Tennis Club, which has an average junior membership of 130 children, has highly qualified instructors such as Dick Mount and Andy Bisconte and finishes the summer season with its own junior tournament. The club is also open all summer for individually scheduled adult tennis lessons.

Jill McInnis To Attend National Junior Hockey Camp

June 19-26 In Lake Placid, N.Y.

Jill McInnis, 15, of Plymouth, has been selected as a player for the 1999 Women's National Junior Camp for ice hockey.

McInnis will attend the camp to be held at the United States Olympic Training Center in Lake Placid, N.Y., June 19-26.

Jill is the daughter of Karen McInnis of Plymouth and Jack McInnis of Quincy. She was one of five forwards and two defensemen from Massachusetts selected for the camp.

A defenseman, Jill is a freshman at Tabor Academy in Marion, Mass. Besides ice hockey, she also plays soccer and softball.

The camp is a forerunner for the U.S. women's national team and the U.S. women's Olympic team.

JILL MCINNIS

Ex-Patriot John Hannah To Appear At Network Plus Benefit Road Race Sunday

Former New England Patriot John Hannah will be on hand for the seventh annual Network Plus 5K road race Sunday, June 13, for the benefit of the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Greater Boston.

The race will get off at 9 a.m. at the Network Plus headquarters at 234 Copeland St., West Quincy, and proceed to East Milton Square, then onto Adams Street and Furnace Brook Parkway back to Network Plus.

Registration is $12 per runner until the day before the race (June 12) and goes up to $15 for each contestant who signs up at 8 a.m. the day of the race.

Awards and prizes will be given to the first male and female runners in all age groups and the first 250 registrants will receive an official race T-shirt.

JOHN HANNAH, the former New England Patriot, will make an appearance at the Network Plus road race for the Make-A-Wish Foundation in Quincy Saturday.

The Network Plus race raised $30,000 for the last year and the foundation's goal this year is $40,000.

James LaFluer Pitches Perfect Game For Morrisette

James LaFluer pitched a perfect game as Morrisette defeated Local 2-0 in recent Babe Ruth baseball action.

LaFluer fanned 13 enroute to his masterful performance. Mark Lopez drove in the winning run and made a fine defensive play on a line drive off the bat of John Fidalgo. Dave Armstrong contributed with a single.

Local pitcher Ben Bell gave up only 2 hits and had 12 strikeouts in his own fine pitching performance.

Lead by strong pitching performances by Phil McGillicuddy and Walter Perry, Barry's Deli posted wins over Houghs Neck and Sons of Italy in recent Babe Ruth baseball action.

McGillicuddy's two-run homerun in the sixth inning secured his first pitching victory of the season in a 7-1 victory over Houghs Neck. McGillicuddy struck out six and walked only one in going the complete seven innings. Barry's defense was also paced by Ryan Rogers (double, 2 runs scored) and Walter Perry (2 hits, 2 RBI and one run scored). First baseman Nick Leger and second baseman Jordan Virtue anchored the defense for Barry's which turned three double plays.

BABE RUTH

Virtue's two-triple effort highlighted Barry's 17-hit attack in a victory over Sons of Italy. Also contributing to the offense were Rogers (3 hits, 4 runs scored), Charlie Vidoli (2 hits, 2 runs scored), Perry (2 doubles, single, 4 RBI), P.J. Villanueva (double, 2 runs scored) and Bill Cosgrove (2 hits, 2 runs scored). Perry pitched the complete game, fanning five.

Pitching Paves Way For Three Wollaston Victories

Pitchers Brian Deptula, T. J. Bell and Patrick Dolbear hurred the Wollaston Babe Ruth Seniors to three victories over the weekend.

Bell pitched a complete game, striking out 14, enroute to a 9-0 blanking of Weymouth.

Billy O'Toole went 3-for-3, including a double and three RBIs, and Patrick Dolbear and Matt Reggiannini each had a triple and two RBIs.

Paul Markarian starred in the field with a backhand stop in the hole at shortstop and a long throw to first to get the runner by a step.

Wollaston players stole five bases.

Deptula fanned 15 in a 5-2 decision over Norwood.

Two Pauls, Markarian and Carney, were the batting stars. Markarian went 3-for-3, with a double and three runs scored. Carney was 2-for-2 with one RBI.

Frank McNamara, Bill O'Toole and Mike McCarthy were the defensive stars for Wollaston, which added eight stolen bases to its total.

Patrick Dolbear was both batting and pitching star in the 8-3 win over South Boston.

He mowed the Southie hitters down with 12 strike outs and got two hits in three trips, including a triple, and scored three runs.

Paul Markarian had a two-run single in Wollaston's four run first inning.

Billy O'Toole also drove in two runs with a single and Brian Deptula had two RBIs.

Brian Radell, Frank McNamara, Brian Deptula and Steve Ryan were cited for their excellent defense.

The team stole six bases.

Anthony DiBona, Eric Still Combine For No-Hitter

Twins 7
White Sox 0

Anthony DiBona and Eric Still combined to pitch a no-hitter as the Twins (sponsored by the Elm Oil Company) bested the White Sox (S. Matarazzo Dentistry) 7-0.

It was only the second loss of the season (both by the Twins) for the White Sox, who entered the game in second place, a game behind their undefeated adversaries.

Still preserved the no-hitter with a spectacular play on a hot shot off the bat of Steve Kussman.

Members off the White Sox wish to thank Shaw's and those supporters of their canning drive.

White Sox 13
Tigers 2

Steve Kussman and Sean Kaylalis hit home runs and pitched the White Sox to a 13-2 decision over the Tigers (Star Realty).

The strong bats of Christopher Civitarese and Michael Ramponi also contributed to the win.

Zac Tucker, Kayla McGonagle, Jennifer Grimmel and Andrew Beaton all scored runs.

Danny Jackson and John Sullivan were excellent catchers.

Great-Grandson Of Mayor MacIntosh Awarded Swimming Scholarship

The great-grandson of onetime Quincy Mayor and City Councillor David MacIntosh is making a name for himself — but not in politics.

David Paul of Holden, Mass., formerly of Quincy, has signed a letter of intent to accept a swimming scholarship to Ohio State University.

He is the son of Richard and Nancy (MacIntosh) Paul. She is the daughter of David MacIntosh, who served as mayor during the Plan E years in Quincy.

David is currently completing his senior year at St. Peter-Marian High School in Worcester and has spent the last 10 years swimming for Coach Don Lemieux's Greenwood memorial Swim Club in Gardner.

He holds many records in the Worcester County Swim

League, among them the 200 free style for 11-12 year old boys and the 200 yard free style for 13-14 year old boys.

Last December, he participated in the U. S. Open at Texas A & M and the Bowdoin Invitational Meet at Brunswick, Maine, where he won the High Point Trophy while winning the 100-yard free style and the 200-yard free style.

He'll be a welcome addition to Coach Bill Wadley's Buckeye swim team, which competes in the top-flight Big Ten Conference.

Hot Jaehnig Club Wins 4; Burgin-Platner-Hurley's Justin Thorley 'K' Leader

Jaehnig Chiropractic Club has been as hot as the weather lately as they have reeled off four victories to improve to 12-1 and first place in the Quincy Junior Baseball League.

The Jaehnig Club defeated an improving Elks Club 6-2 as 10-year-old Matt Jaehnig reared a save, pitching 3 strong innings. He also knocked in the winning run with a sacrifice fly to deep right field.

Jonathon O'Connor was the winning pitcher, while Chris Marinelli (2 hits, 2 RBI), Dave Jaehnig, John Fitzgerald and Matt Tobin each hit safely.

Steve Sullivan (belted a long homerun), Coleman McDonough, and Mike Faherty had the hits for the Elks while David Oronite robbed two sure hits in the outfield.

Jonathon Allen smacked a two-run single and scored three times to lead the Chiropractic Club to an 18-4 win over Keohane's. He also struck out 2 batters in his pitching debut. Jim Garrigan, Robbie Dolbec and Matt Jaehnig had 2 hits each. Dave Jaehnig smacked a grand slam, double and a single for 6 RBI, Chris Marinelli had two hits including a mammoth homer, John Fitzgerald was 4 for 4. Matt Tobin picked up the pitching victory and helped his own cause with a double and a triple.

Nick DiVico, Mark Kisel, Jon Pelletier and Marty Rogers were bright lights for Keohane's.

Dave Jaehnig started the game against Lions by retiring the first 10 batters he faced and settled for a 3-hit, 8 strikeout effort over 5 innings as Chiropractic Club won, 11-2. Jaehnig helped his own cause with a single and 2 runs scored. John Fitzgerald continued to swing a hot bat as he had 2 key hits, a bases-loaded triple and a 2-run single. Mo Al Khatib returned from the injured list to crack 3 hits while his brother Nick smacked a long double. The victors broke open a tight pitches duel by scoring 8 runs in the 5th inning helped by hits from Kevin Donovan, Jon O'Connor and Matt Tobin.

Jim Garrigan made a super running catch in centerfield to keep the Lions scoreless in the early innings.

Parker and Alex Scott, Stephen Kane and Drew Loud hit safely for Lions. Loud pitched a strong game until tiring in the 5th inning.

Jaehnig Club needed a comeback effort to defeat a joying and coming Kiwanis squad by a score of 13-4. Mo Al Khatib's fourth inning moonshot over the trees at Shea Stadium tied the score at 3-3 and sparked the Chiro Club as they scored 11 runs in the 4th and 5th innings. John Fitzgerald had 3 hits, 3 RBI

JUNIOR LEAGUE

(double and triple), and Dave Jaehnig, Chris Marinelli and Kevin Donovan had 2 hits apiece. Jon O'Connor and Matt Tobin knocked in 2 runs each with sharp singles. O'Connor got the win to improve to 4-0.

Mike O'Mahoney pitched a strong 6th inning with 2 strikeouts to record an impressive save.

Andy Patton (2 hits), Mike O'Mahoney (double), Brian Feeney, and Mike McPherson hit for Kiwanis and 10-year-old Mike Garland had an outstanding pitching effort before tiring in the fourth inning. He also knocked in the lead-run with a shot to leftfield.

In other action, Beacon Sporting Goods posted three victories to improve its record to 9-2-1.

Great pitching paved the way for a win over the Elks. Paul Lennon and Dean Sandomato each fanned eight batters while allowing only 3 hits. Sandomato smashed 2 homeruns out of the park. Joey Cafano had 2 hits, Steve Bythrow, Robert Baker, Paul Lennon and Matt Rhode had hits for Beacon. David Guerrieo played well defensively.

Good pitching was again the key in Beacon's win over South Shore Buick. Paul Lennon (5 strikeouts) and Dean Sandomato (8 strikeouts) combined for a 4-hitter. Paul Noonan, Paul Lennon, Dean Sandomato and Evan Harrington had multiple hit games. Joey Cafano had a single. Steve Maggio, Steve Bythrow, Robert Baker and Joe Morris played well defensively.

Beacon downed Burke behind great pitching from Paul Lennon (6 strikeouts) and Dean Sandomato (6 strikeouts). Dean Sandomato hit a homerun out of the park. Joey Cafano and Steve Maggio had a hit apiece. Joe Morris, Michael Gillespie and David Guerrieo played well defensively.

Kiwanis - 18
Police - 6

Billy Dwyer fanned 12 batters and scattered six hits for his second win of the year as Quincy Kiwanis Club defeated Police, 18-6 in recent Junior League youth baseball action.

Leading the 19-hit attack for Kiwanis was Dewey Donovan (3 singles, 1 double), Mike O'Mahoney (tremendous homerun, triple single), Andrew Patton (2 singles, 1 double), Nikk Falbo (2 singles, 1 double), Dennis Layden (triple, single), and Billy Dwyer (single, double). Also contributing hits were Mike Garland, Jared Tucker and Brian Feeney.

Mike O'Mahoney made several great plays at third base.

For Police, John Kurpeski had a single and triple;

Corey Wayne had a double and single, Billy Glennon had a single and Kevin Richardson. Dennis Migaldi and Eric Kenney played well defensively. Mike Crifo pitched well for Police in relief. Kevin Richardson was strong behind the plate.

Burgin Platner Hurley 11
Colonial Federal 2

Justin Thorley struck out 13 to run his league-leading total to 73 for six games as Burgin Platner Hurley topped Colonial Federal, 11-2, in a battle of the Junior League's top teams.

Thorley also chipped in two doubles and a single, Tony Pepdjonvic had a homer, a double and single and Bobby Newcomb went four-for-four with a quartet of singles.

Pat Malone, Tom Ross, James Fitzpatrick, Kevin Adams and Anthony Gildbody had hits for the victors. South Shore Buick 6
Lions 1

Mike Arrufat struck out six and reliever John Folino fanned five more to lead South Shore Buick to a 6-1 win over the Lions.

Dave Graham had a big two-run double and Matt Haskins came through with a pair of safeties. Mike Griffin and Dave Arrufat contributed fielding gems.

Burgin Platner Hurley 9
Burke 6

Bobby Newcomb had a pair of safeties, James Fitzpatrick a double and Pat Malone a single as Burgin Platner Hurley rode over Burke, 9-6.

Tony Pepdjonvic fanned eight on the mound and Tom Ross and Danny McAllister played well in the field.

Colonial Federal 4
South Shore Buick 2

John Stanton and Raymond Marchand pitched and batted Colonial Federal to a 4-2 victory over South Shore Buick, the two-time defending city champions.

Stanton struck out seven in the three innings he worked and belted out a solid double. Marchand contributed two strikeouts and two singles.

Daniel Reggiannini had two doubles, Dave Djerf two singles and Mike Giordani and Nicholas Malvesti one single each.

Chris Rooney, Matt Giordani and James Nichols turned in fine defense.

John Folino pitched all six innings for South Shore Buick and added a single to his team's attack. Kyle Costa had an RBI triple.

Matt Haskins, John Ridge and Dave Ararat played well in the field for Buick.

Concourse Advisory Meeting June 17

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will meet Thursday, June 17 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor conference room, City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St.

The agenda will include section 2 issues pertaining to that phase of the multi-million dollar roadway connector linking the east side of Hancock St. with Revere Rd., Mechanic and Elm Sts.

with McGrath Highway and the Southern Artery to Route 3A.

CAC Chairman David Ezickson said the CAC has had three meetings and a walk over with city and state officials involving several issues pertaining to the area. Ezickson noted the CAC has also spent hours studying and discussing the 25 percent engineering design plans as submitted by Earth Tech Officials.

Major issues remaining are land or property taking, parking, directional flow of traffic, pedestrian safety, and traffic calming.

He urged members to come prepared for a full work session and to make final recommendations on issues of concern. When 75 percent engineering design plans are next presented to CAC it becomes increasingly difficult for changes to be made.

Geoff Hennessy To Receive Koch Youth Service Award

Quincy Track Club Director Geoff Hennessy is this year's recipient of the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award, announces the Koch Club and Quincy Flag Day Parade Committee.

Hennessy will be presented the award at the flag-raising ceremony that will follow Saturday's Flag Day Parade.

Hennessy has been involved with the Quincy Track Club throughout its 25-year existence. He has served as director of the Quincy Track Club since 1976.

"Geoff Hennessy has made a significant commitment to the youth of our city," said Thomas Koch, director of the Koch Club and chairman of the Flag Day Parade Committee. "He has given countless time and effort to see that every child that seeks a recreational opportunity can find one with the Quincy Track Club."

"His program emphasizes participation and instruction and we are proud to recognize him with this award," Koch said.

Hennessy oversees the largest youth track club in the country. The Quincy Track Club lists more than 570 members and more than 800 children will participate in the Quincy Track Club programs this season. Enrollment in the Quincy Track Club has increased steadily since its inception.

Hennessy and his wife, Marguerite, have two daughters, Suzanne, 6, and Rebecca, 3.

"This is a great honor. I have a wonderful staff that has helped make this award possible," Hennessy said. "I am proud to be mentioned alongside the past winners of this award and I thank the Koch Club and the Flag Day Parade Committee for the honor."

The Flag Day Parade will begin Saturday at 7 p.m. Following the parade, there will be a ceremony at Pageant Field, commencing around 8 p.m. After the ceremony, there will be a fireworks display over Black's Creek.

Summer Scene Starts July 6

Quincy Public Schools announces a new summer program for incoming third, fourth, and fifth graders.

Made possible by a grant from the Massachusetts Department of Education, Summer Scene's goal is to give students who may be at risk for falling behind in the classroom four weeks of intensive reading and writing instruction. Students who meet the guidelines of the grant for low test scores and identified needs will be accepted into the program.

Summer Scene will draw on artists, storytellers and the rich history and resources of the City for its educational inspiration. Quincy Historical Society, the USS Salem, the Thomas Crane Library, the Quincy shoreline and marshes, and the granite industry will all be part of the learning experience.

"We are committed to serving students identified as being at risk," said, School Supt. Eugene W. Creodon. "Sometimes students need just a little extra help to succeed in the classroom. Summer Scene can make all the difference in your child's educational life. Students return to the classroom ready to learn-ready to move ahead."

Summer Scene runs Mondays through Thursdays, beginning July 6 and ending July 30. Program hours are 9 a.m. to 12:30. Summer Scene will take place at the Clifford Marshall Elementary School. Transportation is provided from all elementary schools to the Marshall School. Scene is free for all students who are accepted into the program. Students must apply by June 18 to be considered for the program. For more information, contact your child's elementary school principal.

Arrangements by the Levine-Briss Funeral Home in Randolph.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

"Get someone else to blow your horn and the sound will carry twice as far." -Will Rogers
"He who praises everybody, praises nobody." -Samuel Johnson

"I can live for two months on a good compliment." -Mark Twain

"Sweet is the scene where genial friendship plays the pleasing game of interchanging praise." -Oliver Wendell Holmes

It has been said that expressing appreciation is a lost art... If so, it should be rediscovered... Have you ever noticed how quickly animals respond to praise and appreciation?

This is true of people. A word of praise and appreciation makes us feel good, lifts our spirits and gives us the urge to do better. Have you ever thought how important this is? A word of praise or appreciation will make anyone's day!

When was the last time you praised someone? When was the last time you expressed appreciation for something someone did for you?

Incidentally, we would like to take this time to thank the readers who have taken the time to comment by phone or letter on the thoughts that are presented here... They are greatly appreciated...

Herbert Chew, 91 Owned Hing Kee Laundry

A funeral service for Herbert Chew, 91, of San Francisco, Calif., formerly of Quincy, former owner and operator of the Hing Kee Laundry in Quincy, was held May 29 in San Francisco.

Mr. Chew died May 16 in San Francisco after a long illness.

During his illness he was cared for by his devoted daughter, Victoria Mui of San Francisco.

Born in Lee Village, China, he married his wife, Gam Yoke Lee, in China in 1928. Mrs. Chew died in San Francisco in 1997.

In 1929, Mr. Chew immigrated alone from China to help his father at his laundry in Quincy. He returned to China in 1937 and the next year, Mr. Chew brought his wife and young son, Poy, to Quincy.

During the course of the voyage, Mrs. Chew gave birth to a daughter, Victoria Mui of San Francisco, who was born on Queen Victoria's birthday.

The family settled in Quincy and operated Hing Kee Laundry on Saville Street until it closed in 1969.

During World War II, he worked at the Quincy shipyard while Mrs. Chew ran the laundry alone while raising four small children.

In 1958, Mr. and Mrs. Chew brought a home in Braintree and lived there until moving to California in 1988.

While on the West Coast, the Chews kept in touch with news from Quincy by reading The Quincy Sun.

During his retirement in Massachusetts, he helped out at his son's businesses.

In California, Mr. Chew enjoyed reading, walking downtown in San Francisco and visiting with family and friends.

Besides his daughter Victoria, he is survived by two sons, David Chew of Quincy and Hanson and Robert Chew of Malden, eight grandchildren including Helen Chew of Squantum, Pauline Antoine of Rockland, Dr. Paul Chew of Lawrenceville, N.J.; and six great-grandchildren.

He was also the father of the late Poy Chew of Norwell.

Donations may be made to charity of choice.

ANSWERS TO CROSSWORD

TRIVIA TEST

by Aaron E. Tucker

- What was the name of the wonderful young actress who portrayed "Bernice" in the motion picture, "Hope Floats," starring Sandra Bullock and Harry Connick, Jr.?
- What Hollywood actress has competed off-screen as an accomplished horsewoman under the name of Martha McDonald?
- How did actress Polly Bergen begin her career in show business?
- As a young aspiring actress, how did Lucille Ball support herself while trying to make it big in Broadway?
- How did actress Yvonne De Carlo start her career show business?
- Who is the most famous female actress in American history to be born in Kalamazoo, N.D. on September 30, 1931?
- Can you name the last motion picture the reclusive Greta Garbo starred in, in 1941?
- Where was Judy Garland born on June 10, 1922?

TRIVIA ANSWERS

1. Mae Whitman.
2. "Two-Faced Woman"; 3. Grand Rapids, Michigan; 4. "Two-Faced Woman"; 5. As a waitress at a restaurant; 6. As a model; 7. "The Bachelor"; 8. The Bronx, N.Y.; 9. She was born in the 1973 hit film, "Ladies First," best known for her role as a blonde.

CRITIC'S CORNER

THE MUMMY: Brendan Fraser stars as soldier-of-fortune Rick O'Connell. It's the 1920s, and Rick is on an adventure in Egypt. He's been recruited by a zealous Egyptologist named Evelyn (Rachel Weisz) to help her find a rare Book of the Dead. It's rumored to be buried in the ruins of a place called Hamunaptra, which is located in the desert outside Cairo. It is the tomb of the high priest Imhotep, the poor hapless soul who was buried alive (with a curse on his tomb!) when he was caught fooling around with the pharaoh's wife.

The curse warns that if anyone brings Imhotep back from the dead (and, of course, he will become a conquistador and go on a murderous rampage; unparalleled in human history. Worse, he'll bring 10 plagues to rain on Egypt. As noted before, the special effects are phenomenal, thanks to digital enhancement. However, anyone with a phobia for bugs should be forewarned. Much is made of some giant cockroach-like creatures which feast on human flesh. You'll find yourself squirming in your seat when these guys come on the scene!

Fraser is a likable rogue who owes much of his performance to Harrison Ford in "Raiders of the Lost Ark." However, it all works. The sets are fabulous, bouncing back and forth between modern (1920s) Egypt and 1719 B.C., when Imhotep was actually alive.

This one's rated PG-13. However, parents with especially impressionable children may want to skip this one. All in all, though, this is one romp of a horror/adventure film.

Your Horoscope

by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An unusually honest exchange with a friend or co-worker may bring up issues which are painful or confusing. Do not despair, the things you hear will ultimately help clarify future plans.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An important choice may be yours to make but take care that you don't turn what could be a compromise into an all-or-nothing situation. Try to take the needs of others into account.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) An associate may have hidden motives, or some small but puzzling error in your work could crop up; make sure to check your work carefully and try not to depend on others.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Take a chance at this time, and it's likely to pay off, but playing the lottery or quitting your job is not the path to success. Instead, starting an ambitious new project is the key to your future.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Stay calm and bite back any angry comments you're tempted to make; disputes threaten at work and home but can be avoided with care, tact and a generous dose of Leo charm.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You may have more in common with someone in your life than you thought; though this person may appear different, even distant, you share common goals and dreams.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Time spent clearing away irksome details or attending to errands will serve you well, especially if taking care of these tasks keeps you out of the way of someone who may be spoiling for a fight.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Has life ever been so fun? Workday blues can't get you down. You're full of high spirits and ready to have fun. Get out of the office and socialize with friends.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Someone important in your life is finding it impossible to say no to you; make sure that what you're asking for is really deserved. At work, this is the time to ask for that raise.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A well-meaning slip of the tongue or something else you say may have consequences you didn't intend. Make sure you communicate clearly, particularly at work.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Someone in your family may be causing you friction and giving you a headache. Learn from the example of the willow tree which bends with every wind.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You feel refreshed, energized and ready to move ahead on projects which may have been stalled for a while. Don't miss this chance to change your life in ways you only dared imagine before.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: You are an extremely loyal friend and lover, thus people often confide in you. Your tendency to put your own needs on the back burner sometimes gets in the way of accomplishing long-term goals. Others consider you highly sensitive and emotional.

Raymond disagreed. He said he has received from "extremely reliable sources" that there are individuals out there who are interested in the gambling boats. He also said the Quincy Point community was a site mentioned.

"Even though it is not yet public," Raymond said, "I have the obligation to act on behalf of my constituents."

Raymond said previously that he has concerns if casino boats dock in Quincy. "They would attract a wrong element," he said. "We want to lower the crime rate—not raise it." He also voiced concerns about parking and traffic problems in the area as well as nighttime noise.

A similar proposal on gambling boats at Marina Bay was made last year but was discouraged by Mayor James A. Sheets. "The mayor said, 'You will not do that in my city,'" Raymond said.

The council voted 6-3 to put the question on the ballot. Harold, McCauley, and Councillor Bruce Ayers opposed the idea.

Bank Of Canton Offering Investment Services

The Bank of Canton has added investment services to its menu, announces Bank of Canton President James Egan.

Brian Allsop of Infinex Financial Group will help customers select and purchase stocks, annuities, bonds and mutual funds at the Bank's Canton and Quincy Banking Center offices. "This arrangement allows the Bank of Canton to expand its financial services, without sacrificing the individual attention for which the Bank has been known since 1835," Allsop said.

"Increasingly, our customers are looking forward to retirement as well as being keenly interested in avoiding unnecessary taxes or probate. The Bank of Canton is meeting that need by offering options that go beyond the traditional bank accounts," Egan said.

Previously, Allsop served as investment specialist for the Fleet Financial Group (FIS Securities) for three years. Prior to that, he was a personal and corporate financial planner with Joel Cherande & Associates, and a financial advisor with Bay Financial Associates.

A candidate for certified financial planner and chartered financial consultant, Allsop is a registered representative, NASD Series 6, 63 and 7 License. He also health and life insurance licensed in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

For more information, call Allsop at (781) 828-1690 ext. 3116.

Ayers, White Differ Over Code Enforcement

Councillor Bruce Ayers called into question the lack of enforcement of building code ordinances Monday night after several of his constituents complained about inaction on the part of the assistant inspectors.

Building Inspector Walter White defended his staff by saying that he has changed the way in which he handles complaints. Before, every building inspector had a chance to respond to a complaint. Now a particular inspector is assigned a geographical sector and is responsible for an overview of that area.

White estimated that his department receives approximately two complaints per week. Once a complaint is taken, the inspector investigates the house or building, White explained. A letter is then sent to the violator stating the penalties and they are given a time frame in which to make changes.

Out of a population of 86,000, White said only two cases are currently in court.

Ayers complained that the process takes too long and that not enough cases are in court.

Ayers cited a case about an illegal fence which obstructed the view of traffic on Quincy Shore Drive. Ayers claimed that the building inspector never followed up on the case.

Ayers said after the meeting that the matter was resolved through the public works department.

Ayers said that the constituents have to call the ward councillors to get action from the inspector. He said the people of Quincy pay taxes so the building inspector can do his work and that they deserve to have their tax dollars spent wisely.

Councillor Michael D'Amico said, "there are dilapidated, run-down buildings throughout Quincy. There is one in my ward," he said.

"We have to be very clear we are going to enforce the ordinances and zoning codes in South Quincy," D'Amico said. "The neighbors are laughing that the city never enforces the ordinances, so why now?"

Councillor Paul Harold wanted to know what resources the building inspector needed to enforce zoning violations and wanted to work with the department to see that the necessary changes were made.

Councillor Daniel Raymond agreed that the ordinances needed to be reviewed. He said when a landlord in Quincy Point complained about the parking on his street, White investigated and discovered that the landlord had too many units in his building. As a result one apartment was eliminated and two or three cars were no longer parking on the street.

Union Action Buys Hospital

By MARILYN JACKSON

The City Council will vote on a home rule petition next Monday to turn over Quincy Hospital to Boston Medical Center as of Sept. 30, 1999.

The home rule petition, overwhelmingly supported Monday night by more than 100 hospital employees, is just one piece of a comprehensive package Mayor James Sheets and a 23-member committee have been working on for the past year to partner with a major medical facility in an effort to keep 282-bed acute care hospital open.

Before the affiliation can be completed, the home rule petition must be approved by the state Legislature and the governor.

Still to be accomplished is securing funding from various state and federal agencies which would facilitate the proposed affiliation. Previously, Sheets had estimated the city would need about $12 million from the state and more than $40 million from the federal government. A late-filed amendment in the state budget seeking those funds was defeated in the waning hours of debate.

It was only at 1 p.m. Monday that a memorandum of understanding was signed by city officials and various representatives of the five unions at the hospital, said Kevin Madden, the city's personnel director and a former assistant city solicitor. Throughout last weekend, nearly round-the-clock discussions were held to hammer out the memorandum of understanding which will make the affiliation.

After 16 Months Negotiations

Teachers Win Hefty Salary Increase Package

By MARILYN JACKSON

After 16 months of negotiations, Quincy teachers overwhelmingly ratified a wage proposal Sunday that will increase the starting salary for a new teacher with only a bachelor's degree to about $29,292 as of Jan. 1, 2002.

As of Sept. 1, 1997, the starting salary was $25,272.

In a 538-77 vote at the Sheraton Tara in Braintree, the teachers accepted a 2 percent retroactive pay increase as of Sept. 12, 1998, and approved a three-year contract which will increase their salaries in four increments.

A 4 percent increase will go into effect Sept. 1, 1999; another 4 percent increase will go into effect Sept. 1, 2000; a 3 percent increase will go into effect Sept. 1, 2001, followed by a 2 percent increase halfway through the school year, sometime around Jan. 1, 2002.

The school committee was expected to approve the wage proposal at its meeting last night (Wednesday).

"It was quite a shift" from the last ratification vote, when teachers resoundingly defeated an April 27 proposal, said Quincy Education Association President Paul Phillips.

That proposal was similar to a wage package offered to other city unions — 0-2-0-3-0-4 over a three-year period, which meant 0 percent for the first 6 months, followed by 2 percent for the remainder of the first year; 0 percent at the start of the second year, followed by 3 percent at six months; 0 percent at the

Headed Agency 25 Years

Rosemary Wahlberg Retiring As QCAP Executive Director

By TOM HENSHAW

When Rosemary Wahlberg took over as executive director of Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., in 1973, the private, non-profit agency had a staff of 14 and a budget not much larger.

That was in 1973 and the organization that helps low and moderate income families to improve the quality of their lives was barely eight years old.

Now, it has a staff of 150 and an annual budget of more than $14 million.

And it's losing Rosemary Wahlberg.

Wahlberg, who is 68 years old, told the QCAP Board of Directors last Thursday that she is retiring Sept. 1 after 26 years of service to families and children of Quincy and the South Shore.

At various times during the past 26 years, she was also a director of the Quincy Housing Authority, a trustee of Quincy College, a charter member of South Shore Day Care and a member of the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers.

During all this time, she and her husband, Archie, raised a personal family of their own that included seven children and has grown into an extended family of 21 grandchildren.

Right now Wahlberg and her husband plan to remain at the house on Southern Artery in retirement while Rosemary goes back to school.

Stop & Shop Gets Southern Artery Extension

By MARILYN JACKSON

Stop and Shop has been granted another six-month extension on its proposal to build a strip mall on Southern Artery, adjacent to the proposed CVS store and the Souther Tide Mill.

Attorney David Mahoney explained to the City Council last week that Twiss Realty Trust, which holds the property for Stop and Shop, had a purchase-and-sale agreement with Avalon Bay Communities, subject to its receiving a go-ahead from the state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, and although the agreement has expired, it is continuing to work with the company. The land, a 7.5-acre site on the Town River, is the former Duane property, and a portion of it is considered as a designated port area.

Last week William McLaughlin of Avalon Bay Communities told the city councilors that he has not received a written determination from the Division of Waterways that the proposed apartment complex complies with Chapter 91 state regulations. However, he said Ben Lynch of the Waterways Division said Avalon Bay's proposal "meets the letter of the law."

Once he secures the determination in writing, Avalon Bay is prepared to move forward and file a new Planned Unit Development (P.U.D.) application which would allow housing. "We have reconfigured our plans," McLaughlin continued. Originally, Avalon Bay planned to build between 125 and 150 low-rise apartments on the land which is presently zoned for retail use.

McLaughlin said after the meeting that the new plans call for constructing a single building, closer to Southern Artery, which would contain between 150 and 175 units.

Mahoney added after the meeting that although Stop & Shop has no plans to develop that land because it plans to expand its present site across the street, other entities have expressed an interest in buying the property for retail purposes.

McLaughlin said Avalon Bay's proposal would be more compatible to the area. In the new design, Avalon Bay Communities would like to direct funds it would have been required to spend for a proposed lobster shack and fishing pier at the end of Field Street to amenities at the Souther Tide Mill.

Councillor-at-large Paul Harold, who also is interested in the historic aspects of the property, said he wanted to be sure there is public access and that the waterfront of Town River would be designed for maximum use.

McLaughlin concurred. "We are trying to get the residential use out of the designated port area," he said, adding that Avalon would look to the city for direction in providing access to the historic Souther Tide Mill next door.

Asked whether there is access from the water at the former Duane property, McLaughlin said there is a deep water launch there.

At Councillor Daniel Raymond's request, the councilors expressed favorable interest in the housing proposal.

"We don't want to mess up an opportunity to do something down there, particularly next door," said Council President Peter Kolson.

"We're working to make sure that area is done right," he added, noting that CVS is planning to build a store adjacent to the Duane property and deed the balance of the unused land, which includes the tide mill, to a non-profit corporation which will establish a visitors' center there to celebrate Quincy's shipping, granite and lumber industries.

Adams Monument Rededication July 17

A rededication ceremony at the John Adams and John Quincy Adams Monument, Southern Artery and Furnace Brook Parkway will be held Saturday, July 17, at 11 a.m.

The event, which is open to the public, is being held by the 101st Infantry Veterans Association and the Boston Chapter of the Yankee Division Veterans Association, (YDVA) which adopted the site 10 years ago as part of Quincy's Adopt-An-Island Program.

The Honor Guard from the George Bryan VFW Post in Quincy will participate in the ceremony. City and state officials have also been invited to attend.

Members of the 101st and YDVA are requested to wear their organizational headgear. Following the program, a collation will be held at the 101st and YDVA headquarters at 70 Victory Rd., Dorchester.

Pay Hikes Proposed For Department Heads, Mayoral Appointees

The ordinance committee of the city council has been presented with a salary schedule for department heads and mayoral appointees which will increase their pay by 2 percent July 1 and again by 3 percent Jan. 1, 2000.

A 4 percent raise would go into effect Jan. 1, 2001, if the schedule is approved as proposed.

The mayor's staff will not receive a pay raise July 1, but they are targeted for a 3 percent raise Jan. 1 like their counterparts and a 4 percent increase a year later.

Last year, the mayor sent an appropriation requesting salary adjustments for the executive secretary to the mayor, the administrative assistant to the mayor and the assistant to the mayor as well as his secretary and his receptionist in anticipation of the extra workload which would be required in finding an affiliation for Quincy Hospital, explained Executive Secretary John Keenan.

Once that work was completed, the salaries would revert to their earlier levels. Those salaries have not returned to the previous levels and, as a result, there would be no raises for those staff people July 1, he said.

The salaries of the fire chief and the police chief will bump up to $82,742 annually as of July 1 while the salaries of the city auditor, public works commissioner and director of data processing will increase to $72,157.

The next highest salaries as of July 1 will be the director of parking and traffic and the director of building and construction at $71,021; director of planning and community development at $66,475; director of inspection services at $66,300.

Those are followed by city solicitor at $62,498; personnel director and treasurer-collector at $61,930 — which reflects a nearly 6 percent increase from the present salary of $58,488 for treasurer-collector; city clerk, health commissioner, library director, city engineer and director of parks, forestry and cemeteries at $59,658, and purchasing director and recreation director at

The salary schedule also includes a new position in the data processing department of communications director, with a salary as of July 1 budgeted at $47,214. Keenan explained that presently that work is being performed by an outside contractor.

In addition, a worker's compensation coordinator job has been proposed with a salary of $38,067. Keenan said that position is still in the talking stage and is proposed for handling hospital-related matters.

Also, a position in the law department which is classified as principal clerk/worker's compensation has been upgraded to the same as that of secretary to the city solicitor which, as of July 1, would carry a salary of $34,421. The salary schedule as submitted for publication included no pay increase as of Jan. 1, 2001 for the assistant to the mayor. However, Keenan said that was an error. That position would carry a salary of $49,618 as of Jan. 1, 2001, he said.

Cahill's Lawyer Moves For Complaint Dismissal

The lawyer for Councilor-at-large Timothy Cahill will ask that a criminal complaint alleging a violation of the state's conflict-of-interest law be dismissed. The complaint, brought by the Building and Construction Trades Council of Quincy and the South Shore, alleged that Cahill should not have participated in the discussions or vote of the proposed $200 million Highpoint apartment complex because his sister-in-law and his parents own property near the proposed site off Quarry Street.

Cahill's attorney, Thomas Kiley, who also is defending the city in a lawsuit brought by Highpoint developer Dean Stratouly, will argue that the state Supreme Judicial Court has ruled

Rosemary Eyes Political Career

There may be a political career ahead for Rosemary Wahlberg who is stepping down in September as executive director of the Quincy Community Action Program.

Whether it starts this year, depends.

Depends on Paul Harold and Peter Kolson.

If Harold decides to challenge Jim Sheets for mayor he, of course, would have to give up his city council at-large seat.

And Kolson would be pretty certain to run for the Harold seat which would open up his Ward 1 seat.

Enter, Rosemary.

"I would give serious consideration to running," she acknowledges. "But only if Peter runs at-large.

"I am one of his biggest boosters and have been for a long time."

She would be a formidable candidate with her deep roots in Ward 1. She has lived in the ward 42 years -- 14 of them in public housing in Germantown before moving to her present home in the Ward 1 section of Southern Artery where she lives with her husband, Archie. (Archie, by the way, would make a pretty good campaign manager.)

She was the Germantown Center service director before joining the Quincy Community Action Program 26 years ago and a founder of the Manet Health Center in Houghs Neck.

She served 15 years on the Quincy Housing Authority, 13 as chairman. And on the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers, appointed by then Mayor Francis McCauley.

As executive director of QCAP for a quarter century, the program has grown from 14 staff members and a budget of $94,000 to 150 staff members and a $14 million operating budget.

The Community Care for Kids program extends from the Neponset Bridge to the Bourne Bridge and all the communities in between.

QCAP, a private non-profit agency, helps hundreds of families in the low to moderate income bracket.

Her career has been helping people in need. She's been a people's person all her life.

"I really think I could help the community as a member of the city council," she says.

She says she has had an "incredibly great relationship" with the QCAP Board of Directors.

"But I feel the time has come to retire and start a new phase of my life," she says.

She's a young looking 68, mother of seven and grandmother of 21.

"If I could only get them all back into Ward 1," she laughs. "That would be a great vote bloc."

And, if Harold and Kolson decide to stay put and run for re-election?

"Well," she says, "I will be involved in programs that help people."

And, thinking of a possible political run in 2001. Maybe at-large.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER John Gillis will be honored at a reception Tuesday, June 22, 6 to 9 p.m. at the Granite Rail, Cottage Ave., Quincy Center.

Tickets are $25 and will be available at the door.

Gillis, former long-time Quincy city clerk, is one of Quincy's all-time popular political figures.

But, no, he won't be running for mayor or city council this year.

GILLIS

ATTY. PAUL HUNT, also known to many as Quincy's "Mr. Legionnaire," attended the 50th anniversary reunion of his Harvard College Class of 1949 last week.

He and classmates marched in the commencement parade and got a big hand from this year's graduates.

"I think they might have been applauding us for last- ing so long," Hunt laughs. "But it was nice."

Hunt is a past commander of the Morrisette Legion post, Norfolk County and Massachusetts department.

And he's still staying active in Legion matters as state department judge advocate and National Representative from Massachusetts on Veterans Preferences.

Right now he's working on resolutions to come before the state department convention in Springfield this week.

CITY HALL'S "Candy Man" is expanding.

Bill Draicchio of the Board of Registrars, has now doubled the number of candy jars he keeps in the city clerk's office.

He had 12. Now there are 25. All are filled with such goodies as gumdrops, M & M's, licorice, mints, chocolates, tootsie rolls, etc.

And, he has also added a basket of lollipops.

Draicchio buys the stuff himself and invites city hall employees and visitors to dig in.

The city clerk's office is now the undisputed most popular department in City Hall.

A Tribute To Kate Gaughan And Teens

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Saturday, May 29, Kate Gaughan, a young woman from Quincy was killed in a tragic accident. Although just 18 years old, Kate's life touch many people. Beloved by family, friends and peers alike, Kate will be greatly missed by all.

For several days those who loved her turned to God in their pain. In this period hundreds of teenagers from Kate's high school, Notre Dame Academy in Hingham, North Quincy and Quincy High School, along with other area schools came together to show their love and concern. On the day of her funeral at St. Ann Church in Quincy hundreds of them showed up to remember Kate in prayer.

These young people acted in ways beyond their years. They displayed their care for Kate's family and one another in positive and helpful ways. The teen years are a very challenging time with many issues. The actions of these young people were a credit to themselves and their families. Out of the depths of this tragic accident came an opportunity for young people to rise to the occasion and they did in an outstanding manner. This display was something that all who work with teenagers should be proud.

Memorial Day Parade Should Be Canceled

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

For the last 10 years, there have been very few people turning out to review the veterans who are able to participate in the Memorial Day parade. Therefore, I believe that the parade should be cancelled with the emphasis concentrated on Veteran's Day, Nov. 11 of each year. Some towns do celebrate Memorial Day but not Veteran's Day. One of those towns is Canton. In fact Veteran's Day has never been celebrated in that town.

Memorial Day was once celebrated as Decoration Day where families went to lay flowers on their families graves.

I, for, one being a World War II combat veteran now recognize the futility of holding two parades that are sparsely attended.

Animal Shelter Should Be Named For John McDuff

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was happy to learn about plans to improve the Quincy animal shelter, but was surprised that a few individuals want to name it for Mayor Sheets. I like our mayor, but I'm sure he'll receive many more significant honors in the years ahead.

In my opinion the shelter should be named for the man most responsible for raising our awareness of animal welfare issues in our city, Quincy Animal League president, John H. McDuff.

Mr. McDuff founded the League 20 years ago and pushed through a bill on Beacon Hill exempting Quincy from pound seizure for experimentation. More recently he led the fight to ban circus animals in Quincy. Mr. McDuff, in fact, was the driving force behind the building of our present shelter replacing the shack formerly there.

For his work on behalf of animals the Quincy Citizens Association named him Man of the Year in 1987, and in 1995 the MSPCA named him Human Hero of the Year. Now it's time for the city of Quincy to honor him for 20 years of dedication. No one deserves the honor more, and I bet Mayor Sheets would be the first to agree. How about it, Mayor?

Shopping Carts And Assumptions

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

There has been an assumption that where there is such a large concentration of Asian people in the North Quincy are of Stop & Shop, therefore, the majority of people using these carts to transport groceries and personal belongings must be Asian. I live and drive in this area on a daily basis and have on many occasions observed many non-Asians using these carts.

All through history here have been disastrous consequences when one group starts pointing the finger and accusing another groups with assumptions that have not always had a factual basis.

The carts are the property of Stop & Shop, it is a Stop & Shop issue that needs to be addressed and resolved by Stop & Shop.

Workers Threaten To Picket State Democratic Convention

By PAUL HAROLD

James Drew, president of Local 1242 of the State, County and Municipal Workers' Union, threatened to picket the state Democratic Convention at the Boston Arena next week to protest appointments and promotions at the Nut Island sewerage treatment plant.

He said that the workers were being "persecuted" and that "political hacks" were given the choice jobs.

Drew said he advised Governor Furcolo of the threatened pickets with the hope that he would intervene to correct the situation.

10,000 VIEW ELKS' FLAG DAY PARADE

Ten thousand people lined the parade route along Hancock St. for the Elks' annual Flag Day Parade. Some 1,300 marched in the parade that included 600 musicians.

Congressman James Burke was the orator at ceremonies that followed in the lodge's main room. He presented Exalted Ruler Edwin LaCroix a new 50-star flag, replacing the 49-star flag he presented last year. He new star represented the newest state of Hawaii.

DELLA CHIESA RUMORED AS CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE

The rumor circulating at the state Republican convention this week was that Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa would be a candidate to challenge Congressman James Burke in the Thirteenth District.

Convention observers said that Della Chiesa would only run if John Volpe headed the ticket as the nominee for governor. With Volpe's nomination secured, the question remained as to Della Chiesa's intentions.

Meanwhile, Quincy resident, William Jenness, was already a candidate for the GOP congressional nomination.

Fish Burgers

A nice change from the usual hamburger, over the weekend we also had fish burgers. The were made with fresh fish with a little help.

They are delicious with salad or tucked inside a crusty bun with a little mayonnaise and some crisp romaine. They can be cooked in a frying pan with a little olive oil or outside on the grill. We have a griddle, so it's a little easier flipping them back and forth.

Fish Burgers

1 pound skinned fish or salmon filets (uncooked)

1 egg beaten

1 small onion (chopped)

1/4 cup bread crumbs (I used seasoned)

1 teaspoon fresh parsley (minced)

2 tablespoons favorite grated cheese (optional)

salt and pepper to taste

Coating

corn flake crumbs, crushed corn flakes or bread crumbs

1 egg

Wash and pat fish dry and cut into cubes.

In a bowl, mix the onion, fish, egg, bread crumbs, parsley, grated cheese, salt and pepper and mix until blended and mixture holds together.

Shape fish mixture into burgers, each about an inch thick. Brush with egg mixture and coat with the crumbs. At this point, you can either cook them in about 3 tablespoons oil until sizzling and hot, or you can place them in a lightly greased griddle and grill until done. Serve with a favorite sauce or fresh lemon.

(P.S. They are better if refrigerated for a short time before cooking.)

Dr. William Frates Receives James McIntyre Award

Dr. William Frates, MD, as long-time radiologist at Quincy Hospital and a board member of the Quincy Hospital Health & Education Foundation, recently received the James R. McIntyre Award that recognizes individuals who contribute their time and talents to make Quincy a better community.

Dr. Frates received the award, presented by Sheila McIntyre, wife of the late James R. McIntyre and their son Charles, during Law

Day celebration at Quincy District Court.

Dr. Frates has been a great proponent of Quincy and Quincy Hospital since he joined the hospital staff part time in 1965 and on a full time basis in 1967. He provided distinguished service to Quincy Hospital Radiology Department until his retirement in 1994. During his tenure at the hospital, he served in leadership positions for the medical staff and has been instrumental in fundraising activities for the hospital through his career and following his retirement.

Dr. Frates received his medical degree from the Tufts University School of Medicine and completed his residencies at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York and New England Medical Center in Boston. He is certified by the American Board of Radiology and is a Clinical Instructor in Radiology at Tufts University School of Medicine.

Quincy Kiwanis Awards $3,000 In Scholarships

In keeping with their long tradition, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy has presented a $1,000 scholarship to each of three outstanding graduates of the Quincy Public Schools.

Honored at a recent Kiwanis luncheon were scholarship recipients Amber Anderson, a Quincy High School graduate who will attend Northeastern University; Kimberly Lockhead, a North Quincy High School graduate who will attend Boston University; and Michael Lencki, a Quincy High School graduate who will attend Northeastern University. Also honored were the parents of each student.

The scholarship winners were selected from a wide field of candidates by the club's Scholarship Committee, co-chaired by Suzanne Daniel-Dreyfus and Carol Lee Griffin. Other committee members include Anthony Agnitti and William Lucey.

Also present at the luncheon were the Scholarship Chairpersons Dr. Linda Wilson from Quincy High School and John Perkins from North Quincy High School. Each thanked the group for assisting Quincy students in attending college.

Robert Bosworth, Kiwanis president, extended best wishes to the students and their parents on behalf of the Kiwanis Club.

Dr. William Frates Receives James McIntyre Award

Dr. William Frates, MD, as long-time radiologist at Quincy Hospital and a board member of the Quincy Hospital Health & Education Foundation, recently received the James R. McIntyre Award that recognizes individuals who contribute their time and talents to make Quincy a better community.

Dr. Frates received the award, presented by Sheila McIntyre, wife of the late James R. McIntyre and their son Charles, during Law

Day celebration at Quincy District Court.

Dr. Frates has been a great proponent of Quincy and Quincy Hospital since he joined the hospital staff part time in 1965 and on a full time basis in 1967. He provided distinguished service to Quincy Hospital Radiology Department until his retirement in 1994. During his tenure at the hospital, he served in leadership positions for the medical staff and has been instrumental in fundraising activities for the hospital through his career and following his retirement.

Dr. Frates received his medical degree from the Tufts University School of Medicine and completed his residencies at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York and New England Medical Center in Boston. He is certified by the American Board of Radiology and is a Clinical Instructor in Radiology at Tufts University School of Medicine.

Quincy Kiwanis Awards $3,000 In Scholarships

In keeping with their long tradition, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy has presented a $1,000 scholarship to each of three outstanding graduates of the Quincy Public Schools.

Honored at a recent Kiwanis luncheon were scholarship recipients Amber Anderson, a Quincy High School graduate who will attend Northeastern University; Kimberly Lockhead, a North Quincy High School graduate who will attend Boston University; and Michael Lencki, a Quincy High School graduate who will attend Northeastern University. Also honored were the parents of each student.

The scholarship winners were selected from a wide field of candidates by the club's Scholarship Committee, co-chaired by Suzanne Daniel-Dreyfus and Carol Lee Griffin. Other committee members include Anthony Agnitti and William Lucey.

Also present at the luncheon were the Scholarship Chairpersons Dr. Linda Wilson from Quincy High School and John Perkins from North Quincy High School. Each thanked the group for assisting Quincy students in attending college.

Robert Bosworth, Kiwanis president, extended best wishes to the students and their parents on behalf of the Kiwanis Club.

Quincy Hospital Distributing 'File Of Life' To Seniors

Quincy Hospital is distributing a free "File of Life" refrigerator magnet containing vital emergency medical information.

The magnet is particularly helpful for seniors living alone and may be had by contacting the hospital's Public Relations Department.

Local emergency crews, such as ambulance, fire and police, can simply look for the "File of Life" magnet containing important medical information when responding to an emergency. The file includes cards the patient fills out containing information such as medications, allergies, medical conditions, and general information such as name, social security number, physician, next of kin, and health care proxy.

Call (617) 376-4016 to obtain a free File of Life magnet or for information about other services the hospital offers.

President-First Lady Lecture Series At Adams Mansion Site presented at 7 p.m. June 25.

Maura Pierce, producer of history programs on C-Span, will be the first speaker Monday. She will discuss "Two Centuries of Presidential Partners: Insights Gathered from C-Span's Series 'American Presidents: Life Portraits.'"

Natalie S. Bober, author of an award winning work on Abigail Smith Adams, will discuss "John and Abigail Adams: Partners in All the Joys and Sorrows" Tuesday. A book signing will follow the lecture.

Joan Challin, renowned biographer of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, will discuss Louisa Catherine Johnson Adams June 23. Her talk will focus on "The miseducation of Mrs. Adams."

Richard Norton Smith, director of the Gerald R. Ford Library and Museum and critically acclaimed biographer of George Washington, will discuss "George and Martha Washington: The First 'First Couple'" June 24. A book signing will follow his lecture.

The final morning lecture will deal with "The Balance of Power in Presidential Marriages." Carl Sferenza Anthony, author of three critically acclaimed works about First Ladies, will be the speaker. A book signing will follow.

On Friday evening, June 25, renowned performers William and Sue Wills will portray John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa Catherine Adams, in a program about "Presidents and Their First Ladies."

All the programs are free, and complimentary refreshments will be served one-half hour before each program. For more information, call (617) 770-1175.

Also, three special Fourth of July programs will be held on the holiday, to re-enact the passage of the Declaration of Independence by the Continental Congress July 4, 1776.

Members of the audience will assume the roles of delegates to the Continental Congress and represent their colonies in a debate that will determine the fate of a nation.

Led by John Adams, the debate becomes heated before the final vote is called. Afterward, each delegate signs his or her name to the document, rings the Liberty Bell and receives a copy of the Declaration of Independence. Afterward, slices of Liberty Cake will be served.

Participants must telephone the Adams National Historic Park Visitor Center in advance at (617) 770-1175 to reserve a place.

Performances will be held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Carriage House. A candlelight parade will follow the evening performance. It will leave the Old House on Adams Street and end at the United First Parish Church. The Declaration of Independence will be read aloud, and bells will toll freedom throughout the land.

THE AGING OF AMERICA

This country is on the cusp of an aging boom which will see the number of Americans over the age of sixty-five double early in the next century. To add to the impact and interest in this unprecedented phenomenon, the Baby Boom generation, which has so far garnered much of the attention of our youth-oriented culture, is about to enter the stage of life known as "later life" (age 50 and beyond). Will the misconceptions that many people presently harbor about aging and old age accompany them into the new millennium? It is challenging enough to keep up with our maturing citizens as they virtually re-define themselves in nearly every way imaginable. The purpose of this column in the weeks and months ahead is to inform the young, old and those in between about all aspects of growing older, a topic that we all hold in common. Our aging population is currently poised to enter its own "new frontier." Join them.

Hello! Our names are Laura Andrus and Joan F. Wright and we would like to welcome you to our column. In the weeks ahead we will be bringing helpful information to seniors on how to ensure and maintain your well-being as you meet the challenges that face us all as we all get older. Marina Place is a senior living residence featuring service-enriched independent and assisted living. Designed for those who want convenience, a stimulating environment and personal assistance now or in the future, we offer 110 private apartments. For more information, call us at 617-770-3264 (Four Sea-Port Drive).

Marina Place is offering an Educational Seminar on June 24 at 7p.m. featuring Cynthia W. Coe on Long Term Care Financing, Lawrence G. Hoyle, Esq. on Elder Law, & Nancy Goldberg Seigal, MSW on Senior Housing. Please call 617-770-3264 to reserve a seat.

McGillicuddy Running For Council At-Large

David McGillicuddy, runner-up in the city council race two years ago, will make another bid for one of the three seats this year.

"Absolutely," he replied when asked by The Sun Tuesday if he was going to run. "I will make an official announcement shortly."

He has nomination papers in circulation.

McGillicuddy made his political debut in 1997 running for the council on a platform of "common sense with a business approach to local government."

McGillicuddy, who lives on Elmwood Ave. with his wife, Linda, is a retired New England/NYNEX external affairs executive who specialized in community relations and problems.

He holds degrees from the University of Massachusetts in management and community planning. He is presently a consultant dealing with management crises.

"Many whom I've spoken to are upset and puzzled that with such a strong economy Quincy appears to be about to fall on financial disaster," McGillicuddy said.

He said he has found that in talking with residents they are concerned about a number of issues. Among them, he said:

The Quincy Hospital, Highpoint development, the Fore River shipyard, teacher contracts, and the rising tax rate.

McGillicuddy said the city council's handling of the Highpoint development demonstrated a lack of leadership that is about to place the city in financial remise.

He said that unless a compromise is reached with the developer the city faces high costs to clean up the site and defend the council's vote.

"We will lose traffic and other mitigation and get strapped with an affordable housing project," he said. "Affordable housing of this magnitude will force us to build another school that we can't afford."

McGillicuddy said he believes the city is quickly reaching a financial crisis.

"At our current rate of bonding city projects, suing developers, paying for the Quincy Hospital bailout and giving away tax money to the shipyard this city is heading for major financial trouble. If we don't do something soon, Quincy will not be an affordable place to live for many of us in the future."

Cahill's Lawyer Moves For Dismissal

previously that criminal charges should not be brought in such ethics cases.

Last week, Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin set a July 8 date for a pretrial conference.

Plymouth County assistant district attorney Martha Covner has been assigned to prosecute the case so that the Norfolk County district attorney, William Keating, will not have to deal with a matter involving another county official. Cahill, a city councillor for the past 12 years, also serves as Norfolk County treasurer.

Cahill was arraigned on the single charge June 2 after a special clerk-magistrate found there was sufficient evidence to issue a complaint. The misdemeanor carries a penalty of two years in jail or a $3,000 fine or both.

Thomas MacKay, president of the Building and Construction Trades Council, had brought the complaint May 19.

The union also filed a similar complaint with the state Ethics Commission last October, alleging that Cahill consistently participated and voted on matters regarding Highpoint between September 1998 and March 1999, during which time members of his family owned property that abuts the Highpoint property that was the subject matter of Quincy council action.

Investigators from the commission have interviewed Cahill, his mother, his sister-in-law, people at city hall and real estate agents during the past month, according to Cahill, but no ruling has yet been made.

The union had supported the Highpoint project and had estimated the development would create about 2,000 jobs.

More than a year ago developer Stratouly had applied for a special permit to develop the site off Quarry Street, which is zoned for a Planned Unit Development. The council, sitting as the special permit granting authority, voted 7 to 1 against the project.

Last month, Stratouly submitted a similar proposal to build 1,641 apartments, this time seeking a comprehensive permit from the city's Zoning Board of Appeals. A hearing is scheduled June 22.

Recycling Sweepstakes Concludes Friday; Grand Prize Drawing June 23

Quincy's Blue Bin Instant Win Recycling Weekly Sweepstakes concludes Friday setting up the $1,000 grand prize drawing next week.

Each weekday since April 26, one household was randomly chosen to win a $100 cash prize. In addition, five neighbors of each daily winner were randomly entered into a $1,000 grand prize drawing to be held next Wednesday, June 23 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chamber at City Hall.

Entrants into the grand prize drawing will be notified this week by mail. They must be present at the June 23rd drawing to win.

Mayor James Sheets, City Council President Peter Kolson, and DPW Commissioner David Colton will preside at the grand prize drawing.

The reason for the sweepstakes is to promote recycling in Quincy, said Sally Owen, chairperson of the Quincy Recycling Commission.

"Those of us on the commission are the last people to suggest that you should only recycle in order to win a cash prize. But we think the sweepstakes is a fun idea to get people interested," Owen said, noting Quincy's recycling participation has been graded "B" by the state.

"Some communities get an 'A' and we want to be on that list. The city of Brockton found that a sweepstakes program got more people to participate and that is why we are doing it here."

DPW Commissioner David Colton said the sweepstakes is educating the public about the real reasons to recycle.

"First, it's good for the environment. We can save precious natural resources by making products from recycled material rather than from raw materials. We can also reduce our dependence on landfills and incinerators. Taxpayers should be aware that every ton of recycled material saves the city $50 in waste hauling costs," Colton said.

Since the Blue Bin Instant Win program began in April, the DPW has distributed more than 1000 new bins.

"Because of the program's mailing and advertising, people who needed a new bin have called us looking for information about the program and how to get a bin. We are probably giving out three times more bins than usual," said Rosemary Nolan of the DPW.

Residents who want to know if they have been entered into the grand prize drawing should call the Recycling Hotline at 770-BINS. Residents who need a blue bin or information about how to properly recycle should also call that number.

The Blue Bin Instant Win program is funded primarily by the City of Quincy and the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection.

The following businesses have donated money for cash prizes:

Caryn's Corner, Law Office of Cosgrove, Eisenberg, and Kiley; CVS; East Coast Petroleum; Law Office of Fleming, Barrett and Phelan; Law Office of Graeber and Davis; Inkspot, Meredith and Grew, Osco-Granite St. and North Quincy; The Quincy Sun; Roche Brothers, Roseann's; Mayor James Sheets, Star Market, Stop and Shop, and WJDA.

Assistance has also been provided by MassRecycle and the Recycling Initiative Campaign.

McNamee Withdraws From Ward 6 Race

Brian McNamee surprised the local political scene this week by withdrawing from the Ward 6 city council race.

McNamee, a 42-year old accountant and Billings Rd. resident, gave "family considerations" as the reason for his decision. He did not elaborate.

He indicated he would remain neutral during the campaign.

His departure reduces the field of candidates in Ward 6 to four:

Maryann Mahony of Hummock Rd., Joseph Newton, Glover Ave., and James Stamos, of Sonoma Rd. have officially declared their candidacies. Frank Hendry of Huckins

Ave. has taken out nomination papers.

McNamee edged Newton by 11 votes in the preliminary election two years ago and then lost to incumbent Bruce Ayers by 1000 votes in the final election.

This year he was the first official candidate and got off to an early campaign start.

The Ward 6 seat is being vacated by Ayers who now is state representative.

CALCANEODYNIA

Calcaneodynia is the name for a medical condition responsible for a dull, aching pain in the area of the Achilles tendon where it joins the heel bone. This is not uncommon among adolescents, most often occurring in both boys and girls between the ages of eight and fourteen. The pain is the result of inflammation of the Achilles tendon at the point where it attaches to the bone. The pain seems to be coming "right from the heel bone" (its common description), and most diagnoses are made based on this symptom. There may also be some tenderness in the Achilles tendon itself. Pain generally is intensified by weight bearing, bending the foot back, or squeezing the area.

At some point in their lives, most people suffer from some kind of foot disorder - from tendon and muscle pain to nerve disorders, from blisters and corns, to hammer toes and bunions. Whatever the state of your feet, your podiatrist can treat your problem to restore your comfort and ease of movement and recommend followup action you can take at home. For family foot care, please call our office at 617-472-3466, located at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy.

PS: Adolescent calcaneodynia may affect only one foot or both simultaneously. Heel lifts often help.

Six More Quincy Residents Find $100 in the Trash

Take a good look at what's in your trash can. Because chances are you'll find all kinds of recyclable materials that could help you win $100, maybe even $1,000, in the Blue-Bin Instant Win Program going on now through JUNE 18th. In addition to a $100 daily winner, five households will be selected each weekday to participate in a $1,000 Grand Prize Drawing. The $1,000 Grand Prize Drawing is Wednesday, June 23rd at 7:00 PM in the City Council Chamber of old City Hall. Households eligible for this drawing will be notified this week. Watch your mail and keep on recycling! To qualify, just look for the instructions on the Blue-Bin Instant Win sticker you received in the mail, or call 770-BINS to learn how to enter.

City Council Has Questions For RCN

Representatives of RCN Corp., the cable company which was granted a provisional license to provide multi-media services in competition with Media One, failed to keep a meeting date with the city council's oversight committee last week.

And several councillors had a few questions to ask. Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond charged that cable trucks seen in Quincy bore out-of-state license plate numbers and questioned whether these workers were non-union employees.

"Non-union, out-of-state workers don't have the same benefits of retirement, insurance, coming out of their pay."

"Is there anything we can do to ensure any work done on poles within the city is completed by union workers?" Raymond asked. "It was done in Boston," he added.

Councillor-at-large Paul Harold, who is chairman of the oversight committee, said RCN executive Thomas Steel called late Monday afternoon to inform him he could not attend the meeting.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico asked whether RCN is in violation of its existing contract with the city and wondered whether the city's contract could be amended to spell out that only union workers could be used RCN's wiring of the city.

Raymond proposed that the matter be further investigated not only by the oversight committee but by the mayor as well.

Added Councillor-at-large Francis McCauley: "I'm in favor of sending this to the oversight committee but RCN never shows up."

"I'm not crazy about telling who they can hire and not hire," but this might prompt them to meet with the councillors, he said. "Councillor Harold has gone to great lengths to get these people here," scheduling meetings three or four times, McCauley said.

REAL ESTATE

Conway Offering Education Program For License Renewal

The 'Conway Country' School of Real Estate will offer a two-day continuing-education program for real estate licensees Wednesday, June 16 and Thursday, June 17 at the Ramada Inn in Rockland.

The two-day event is open to all of the state's licensed real estate agents—whether active or inactive—and is believed to be the first of its kind since the requirement for 12 hours of continuing-education credits was established by state.

"We are very pleased to be offering these courses for our own agents and for our colleagues," Chairman Jack Conway said in announcing the program. "A solid education is a very important part of providing good service to our customers, and we are hopeful that many agents will take advantage of this unique opportunity."

The classes, which run from 9 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. June 16 and 9:30 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. on June 17 will cover fair-housing policies, agency representation, financing and environmental law, among other subjects. Participants may choose any or all of the six courses being offered to fulfill their license-renewal requirements, according to Director of Education Norman LaRocque, and would make reservations in advance.

For more information and a registration form, call the school at (781) 826-0088. The cost is $10 per credit hour.

The 'Conway Country' School of Real Estate is a division of Norwell-based Jack Conway and Company, which is the largest independently owned real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents in 36 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Second 'Neat Neighbors' Contest Now Underway

Mayor James Sheets and the Quincy Park Department announce nominations are being accepted for Quincy's second annual "Neat Neighbors" contest.

Nominations will be open through Labor Day.

The Neat Neighbors contest is to recognize those people who maintain their yards and properties in the spirit of a Cleaner, Greener Quincy. Any residential homeowner is eligible for the contest.

Those who wish to nominate a friend or neighbor may do so by filling out a nomination form at their local community center. Forms can also be obtained by contacting the Quincy Park Department at 376-1254.

Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments, said, "We are happy to recognize those homeowners who help improve the aesthetics of their entire neighborhoods by putting an incredible amount of time and effort into beautifying their properties."

"We hope to award those people who already maintain their yards and also encourage others to help do their part to make a cleaner, greener Quincy."

Last year, 25 people received prizes that included rhododendrons, holly bushes, and weeping pussy willow trees. More than 150 people were recognized with Honorable Mention and received packages of tulip bulbs.

The Neat Neighbors contest is an extension of Sheets' efforts to expand the city's Cleaner, Greener Quincy program. Along with the city-wide cleanup program, the city has added a "Yard Care Conference" and the Neat Neighbors contest to help residents in the effort to maintain their yards and properties.

Realtors Awards Reception

The South Shore Association of Realtors will hold its annual Awards Reception Tuesday, June 22 from 5:15 to 8:30 p.m. at the Summer House at Marina Bay, 333 Victory Rd. Quincy.

The 1999 Realtor of the Year and Affiliate of the Year will be honored at the Reception.

Advice For Safe Summer Outings

We New Englanders like to make the most of our summertime weather. And there's nothing like a picnic at the beach to take full advantage of a lovely summer's day.

The physicians of the Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital Network offers a few common sense tips to help ensure a safe and enjoyable outing for you and your family.

Sun Safety

• Protect yourself and your children from sunburn; apply a sunscreen with a SPE of at least 15 to all exposed areas of your body before going outdoors. Check with your pediatrician for the correct SPF for your kids. Generally, they should wear at least a SPF 30. Reapply sunscreen at least every two hours while you are outside, more often for children, who are apt to be running around and will sweat more than the average adult.

• Wear a wide-brimmed hat and, when you are not in the water, wear tightly woven, light-colored cotton clothes. Suggest that your children wear their T-shirts over their bathing suit, even when they are playing the water.

• Try to minimize exposure to harmful rays by avoiding the sun between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., when rays are strongest.

• Replenish fluids lost through sweating by drinking water or soft drinks, not alcohol. Make sure your children take frequent drinks of water.

Food Safety

• Make sure your cooler keeps food at a temperature of 40 degrees F or less. If you can't be sure that food will be kept cool enough to prevent bacterial growth, take along food choices that are "picnic-safe." For instance, food experts say vacuum-packed luncheon meats are safer than deli-sliced products because they undergo less handling and fewer temperature changes.

• Other good food choices for picnics include fruits, peanut butter, cheese, jams, jellies, and potato salad made with mayonnaise, because the acidic mayonnaise helps prevent bacterial growth.

• Seafood, on the other hand, is not such a good choice for picnics, since germs in seafood leave behind a toxin that can make you sick even if the fish is cooked.

• On the way to the beach, keep the cooler inside the car, not in the trunk. And, keep it in the shade once you reach your destination, replenishing the ice often.

• Plan ahead. Take along only as much food as you think will be eaten; you won't have to worry about leftovers and spoilage.

Water Safety

• Swim only in supervised areas. Supervise young children in or near any body of water. A child can drown in as little as one inch of water.

• Always swim with a buddy; never swim alone, because even the most experienced swimmer can get a cramp or swim off course.

• Know your limits and stay within them. Don't try to keep up with a more skilled swimmer. And keep an eye on swimmers who may be weaker than you.

• Obey the NO DIVING signs. These signs always indicate that an area is unsafe for headfirst entries. Even if there are no posted signs, it's always better to walk into a swimming area that you have never visited.

• Drinking and swimming don't mix. Alcohol impairs judgment, as well as your balance and coordination.

• Wait a while before you swim after eating. In general, you don't have to wait an hour after eating before swimming safely; but, if you have eaten a large meal, it is wise to digest well before doing any kind of strenuous exercise, including swimming.

• Know what to do in bad weather. NEVER stay in the water during a storm! As soon as you see signs of an approaching storm, get out of the water, seek shelter in a building, and stay there!

Seconds Save Lives In Emergencies

(NAPS)—Do you know what to do in an emergency? The few minutes after an injury occurs or at the onset of a medical crisis are frequently the most important.

"The key is knowing what to do, remaining calm, and making a decision to act," said Dr. Kathleen Clem, M.D., of the American College of Emergency Physicians. "You can make a difference in critical moments by remembering four important steps: prevent, prepare, recognize, act."

Prevent emergencies. Regular exercise and medical check-ups will help protect your health and identify whether you're at risk for life-threatening conditions. Follow your doctor's advice to reduce any risk factors dangerous to your health.

Prepare for emergencies. After doing everything you can to prevent emergencies, the next step is to prepare for one. Some basic steps are:

- Keep well-stocked first-aid kits at home, at work, and in your car.
- Learn how to recognize emergency warning signs.
- Organize family medical information. Make lists of medications (and dosages) taken by you and your family; include allergies.
- Identify and eliminate safety hazards in your home.
- Take a first-aid class.
- Post emergency numbers near the telephone.

Learn to recognize life-threatening emergencies. Not every cut needs stitches, nor does every burn require advanced medical treatment. If you think someone could suffer significant harm or die unless prompt care is received, that situation is an emergency, and call 9-1-1 or the local hospital for help. Get help fast when the following warning signs are seen:

- Chest pain lasting 2 minutes or more.
- Uncontrolled bleeding.
- Sudden or severe pain.
- Coughing or vomiting blood.

• Difficulty breathing, shortness of breath.

• Sudden dizziness, weakness, or change in vision.

• Severe or persistent vomiting or diarrhea.

• Change in mental status (e.g., confusion, difficulty arousing).

Know the provisions of your health insurance coverage.

Decide to act. Be ready, willing, and able to help someone until emergency services arrive. Action can mean anything from calling paramedics, applying direct pressure on a wound, performing CPR, or splinting an injury. Never perform a medical procedure if you're unsure about how to do it.

• Do not move anyone involved in a car accident, serious fall, or found unconscious unless he or she is in immediate danger of further injury.

• Do not give the victim anything to eat or drink.

• Protect the victim by keeping him or her covered.

• If the victim is bleeding, apply a clean cloth or sterile bandage. If possible, elevate the injury and apply direct pressure on the wound.

• If the victim is not breathing or does not have a pulse, begin rescue breathing or CPR.

To receive a free Home Organizer for Medical Emergencies, call 1-800-446-9776. STRESS FRACTURES Stress fractures, also known as "March Fractures," received their name because they were common in the military due to the repetitive motion of marching during training.

Very often a person will present to the Podiatrist's office with pain, redness and swelling localized to a specific area in the foot with no history of trauma. A common finding is that the patient has started exercising or has increased current activities where there is significant amounts of weight bearing. X-rays are usually unremarkable.

A stress fracture is a weakening of the bone as opposed to an actual break in the bone. Left untreated, it can progress to a fracture. X-ray changes usually lag two to three weeks behind the initial presentation of the stress fracture. This is why at initial presentation there are usually no changes on the X-rays. Repeat X-rays done three weeks later will show the stress fracture most of the time.

If you are experiencing pain or symptoms similar to those described above, contact a qualified podiatrist. It is important to treat stress fractures as continued activities can lead to an actual break in the bone.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Attracts 277 Runners, Walkers Lions Club Race Raises $20,000 For Eye Aid

By CHRIS POISSON

Last year's first annual Quincy Lions Club 5K Run/Walk for Sight was a success in its debut. And the second time around was no different.

Approximately 400 people showed up to Pageant Field, Southern Artery, Quincy June 6 to watch the 277 runners and walkers. The race raised about $20,000 for eye research and for those who are in need of eye care, a $5,000 increase from last year's total.

South Shore Savings Bank was the primary sponsor for the race.

"Both races were very successful," said Lions Club President Steve Mansfield. "We had a lot of corporate sponsors and individual donations."

One reason for the enlarged proceeds was the Lions Club turned to the youngsters of the Quincy community. Two elementary schools were honored for their efforts. Merry-mount, which raised the most money and Beechwood Knoll School, which had the most runners, received new Pentium II computers, donated by Lion member Raj Solaiappan of Presidency Systems.

"It went very well," said Lions Club Race Chairman Tom Zukauskas. "We visited all 11 elementary schools to get the children involved. And two got new computers."

Ahmed Sharifnoor of East Boston, competing in the men's 12-18 age group, was the overall winner of the 5K run, finishing in 16:48. Gayle Laing of Braintree, competing in the women's 19-39 age group, was the top women's runner, placing first in 20:37.

Last year's top runner, Adelmo Couto of Cambridge, ran to a third-place finish.

David Allen of Hull (3:44) was the top boys' runner in the kid's 1K run and Nicole Affannato of Weymouth (3:52) was the overall girls' winner.

In the men's 60-69 age group, Dorchester's Don Murray was first (22:02), while Quincy's Don Fay (32:13) and Uncle Sam Rounseville (35:08) came in at second and third, respectively. Rounseville ran blindfolded for the second year in a row emphasizing the Lions Club's mission to assist the blind and visually impaired.

East Weymouth's Art Doine (18:56) won the men's 50-59 age group as Jim Mac Sweeney of Canton (22:07) and Robert Rantuccio of North Quincy (22:10) rounded out the top three. Quincy's Michael Moran (25:51) finished fourth and Dorchester's Mickey Finn (27:36) fifth.

In the men's 40-49 age group, Scott Newkirk of Scituate placed first in 19:22. Quincy's Mark Costello (19:45) was second, followed by Whitman's

Swimming Lessons At Lincoln-Hancock Pool

Quincy Recreation Department will conduct registration for instructional swimming lessons, which are conducted at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

The Department has made significant changes in the 1999 Class Program and long time participants are requested to review registration and scheduling information for procedures that are different from previous years.

There will be two summer swim sessions with classes taught Monday through Thursday for a July session or an August session.

The July session will start July 6 and end July 27. The August session will start July 28 and end Aug. 20.

Instruction is for children age six and over who are Quincy residents. The lessons are taught by Red Cross trained instructors.

Registration is limited and done on a first come first served basis at the Water St. entrance to the pool according to the following: Registration for July session is on Tuesday, June 22: Level I/II at 9 a.m.; Level III at 10 a.m.; Level IV at 10:45 a.m.; Level V at 11:15 a.m.; Level VI at 11:45 a.m. Registration for the August session on Wednesday, June 23: Level I/II 9 a.m.; Level III at 10 a.m.; Level IV at 10:45 a.m.; Level V at 11:15 a.m.; Level VI at 11:45 a.m. Guard Start at 11:45 a.m.

Lifeguard training is a summer long course offered Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Registration will be conducted at 11:45 a.m. on Wednesday, June 23. There is a $75 Red Cross fee for the course.

The Quincy Recreation department will not accept preregistration or phone registrations. Assured placement in the class, days

Advance Swim Testing

Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an advance testing program in preparation for registration for its summer instructional swimming program at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Children are registered for lessons according to their swimming ability. The testing program is for Quincy residents unfamiliar with the swim program or for a child who may have had additional instruction during the winter.

and times, or choice should be done at the above dates and times. Post registration is accepted on first come, spaces available basis.

For more information, call Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1-FUN.

The Schedule for testing is Friday, June 18 from 6 to 8 p.m. The boasting and sailing pre-requisite swim test will also be offered during the same time period.

Pool Lessons are open to Quincy residents over age 6 who have a current pool participation card, issued by the Quincy Recreation Department.

For more information, call 376-1-FUN. The normal recreation swimming schedule will be canceled during testing hours.

Watson Hurls Houghs Neck To Pair Of Victories

It was Tim Watson week in the Babe Ruth League.

The 13-year-old Houghs Neck pitcher threw a four-hitter at the Quincy Police to win his first victory of the season, 5-2.

Then, as a catcher, he stroked his second home run of the year and drove in three runs in a 12-11 win over the Local team, 12-11.

Houghs Neck won its third straight, and ran its record to 7-5, with an 18-4 victory over Morrisette. The Neckers had 16 hits, including Greg McGinness' second home run.

Houghs Neck led 11-6 after the third inning but the lads had to score a run in the last of the seventh inning to pull out the decision.

David Benn and Keith Austin had two hits each and Austin picked up the win on the mound with an inning of shutout relief.

McGinness also had a homer and three RBIs against the Police. Benn and Bryan Thornton each had two hits.

Benn and Mike Feetham had three hits apiece in the Morrisette game and

BABE RUTH

McGinness, Thornton and Austin two hits each.

Thornton pitched a sharp game, allowing just five hits and striking out six in the six innings he worked. Fire Department 3 Elks 2

The Elks suffered their first defeat of the season as the Fire Department's Brandon Sleeth went the distance in the box and fanned nine.

Starter Pat Bregoli struck out nine and had three hits at the plate. The Elks scored their two runs in the last inning.

Elks 9 Fire Department 3

Bregoli toiled for six innings in 90-degree temperatures as the Elks avenged the earlier beating at the hands of the Fire Department.

The Elks used a six-run first inning on six consecutive hits to ice the game.

Dan Duggan's double was the big blow while John Kozak drove in two runs and Steve Reardon, Chris Ham and T. K. Kelly also had RBIs.

Elks 7 Granite City 3

Justin Hall pitched and batted the Elks to victory over Granite City.

He had four hits, including two doubles, and pitched a complete game, striking out nine.

Reardon had two hits for the Elks.

Elks 10 Morrisette 4

Brian O'Hanly notched his second win of the year, striking out 10 and collecting three hits.

Reardon also had three hits and Duggan continued his torrid hitting streak with two safeties and two RBIs.

Elks 8 Police 1

Ham limited the Elks to two infield hits and struck out seven en route to the win. He also netted an RBI double.

Duggan had two hits and drove in two runs while Hall scored three times.

Thorley Wins 7th For Burgin-Platner-Hurley

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Justin Thorley chalked up his seventh win of the season and jumped his league-leading strikeout total to 83 as his Burgin Platner Hurley teammates trounced the Kiwanis Club, 7-3.

He also helped his cause with a double and a single.

Tony Pepdjanovic had a triple and a double and Pat Malone a double and a single as the Burgin Platner Hurley club teed off at the plate.

Bobby Newcomb had three singles, Matt Boyle a triple and two RBIs, Jimmy Fitzpatrick a double and two RBIs and Tom Ross a single.

Mike Browne, Brendan Cornell and Anthony Gilbody played well in the field.

South Shore Buick 12 Keohane's 3

Starter John Folino struck out nine and reliever John Ridge pitched shutout ball for two innings.

Paul Graham, who scored four times, and John Folino had more than one hit for South Shore Buick and Mike Griffin and Matt Connors had extra base hits.

Defensive stars were Mike Arrufat, who threw out a Keohane's runner at the plate, and Griffin, who threw out a runner at second base.

Kiwanis 21 Rotary 2

Billy O'Dwyer pitched a three hitter and struck out 10 and contributed two hits as the Kiwanis Club came up with nine runs in the fourth inning.

Six players had two or more hits, including Andy Patton with a home run and a single, Mike Garland, Mike O'Mahoney, Nick Puopolo, Clark Layden all with two singles.

Nick Falbo, Mike MacPherson and Teddy Finnegan also had hits.

Finnegan and Chris Batson had great games in the field.

Burgin Platner Hurley 10 Quincy Police 7

Thorley led the Burgin Platner Hurley hitters with a single and a double and Newcomb also had two hits.

Ross added a double and Boyle, Malone, Mike Powers, Ryan Collyer chipped in with singles.

Kiwanis 9 Lions 8

Nick Puopolo led the attack with a homer, two doubles and a single and drove in five runs as the Kiwanis Club came from behind in the last two innings.

Mike Garland and Nick Falbo each had two hits and Mike MacPherson and Brian Feeney one apiece.

Garland, Mike Batson and Teddy Finnegan were the defensive stars for Kiwanis.

Brett Martinson had two hits and pitched a great game for the Lions.

Keohane's 4 Elks 3

Jonathan Pelletier scattered six hits and struck out 11 as Keohane's came up with two runs in the final inning to win.

The team got timely hitting from Mark Kiesel, Marty Rogers and Pelletier and alert base-running by Joe Renkin, Mike O'Neil and Rogers.

Joe Bodkin, Eric Adler and O'Neil contributed fielding gems.

For the Elks, Greg Jenkins gave up one run and three hits in the three innings he pitched. He struck out six.

A home run by Steve Sullivan and some headsup baserunning by John Orlando accounted for their three runs.

Boyd, Clifford Spectacular In Yellow Cab Victory

Justin Boyd and Brendan Clifford provided spectacular offense as Yellow Cab best Kenny's Lock, 22-2, in Triple A League play.

Boyd led off two triples and two single and drove in five runs and Clifford doubled, tripled and knocked in six runs.

Also keeping the meter running for Yellow Cab were Rob Mann, who scored three runs, and Brennan, who had two singles and two RBIs.

Clifford also set the opposition down with three hits.

For Kenny's Lock, Dan

TRIPLE A

Ivy and Jason Thomas had hits and Jake Smith tripled home two runs.

Dennis Rackauskas pitched three strong innings. CNA 11 Local 2222 8

Steve O'Neil homered and doubled in three trips to the plate and threw out two runners in the field as CNA snapped its losing streak.

Steve Graham came on in relief of Jeff Hague in the second inning and struck out eight in his first pitching assignment.

Harman Losi had three hits and scored three times. Justin Petkus had two hits and scored a run. Ricky Likas walked and scored and had a putout at third. Andrew Creadon had a double.

Joe Verrochi, Kyle Kosta, M. Puleo and Sean Tobin had strong games in the field.

For Local 2222, M. Palmer had a triple and Rob Gardner and S. Carlyle also had hits.

Bell, Deptula Win 2 For Wollaston Sr. Babe Ruth

The Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth team racked up two more victories, beating Parkway of West Roxbury, 6-1, behind T. J. Bell and Braintree, 7-2, behind Brian Deptula.

Wollaston is now in first place in South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League with a record of 5-0.

Bell struck out 12 of the Parkway hitters and Deptula fanned six and went two-for-two, stole a base and knocked in a run against Braintree.

Paul Markarian had two hits in three trips to the plate, scored two runs and stole three bases. Dave Centrella had a triple.

Pat Dolbear. Billy O'Toole, Joe MacRitchie and Deptula were the defensive stars.

Recreation Department Hosting Hershey Track, Field Program

Quincy Recreation will sponsor the Hershey National Track and Field Youth Program by hosting a community meet, open to all boys and girls ages 9-14.

The local meet will be the first step in a competition, which could result in a local athlete advancing to the National Championship in Hershey Park, Pennsylvania. New England champions are awarded an all expense paid trip by Hershey Chocolate, the national sponsor.

The program is open to youngsters ages 9-14. Participants are not required to have previous track experience or be a member of a community track program.

The meet is also open to participants from surrounding communities.

Participants must provide the sponsoring agency with proof of age before they will be allowed to compete. There are no entry fees. Spikes and starting blocks are prohibited.

Registration for the Quincy meet will be held Tuesday, June 22 at 5:30 p.m. for boys and Wednesday, June 23 at 5:30 p.m. for girls, at Veterans' Memorial Stadium, on Hancock St. Meets will begin at 6 p.m.

Registration will be held the day of the meet, the age of the participant shall be his/her age as of Dec. 31, 1999. Both boys and girls will compete in three categories: 9-10, 11-12, and 13-14.

Those youngsters currently 8 years old, but who will turn 9 years old before Dec. 31, may compete in the 9-10 age group. Youngster currently 14 years old, who will turn 15 before Dec. 31 are not eligible.

The events are as follows:

Age 9-10 Boys and Girls: 50 yard Dash, 100 yard Dash, 200 yard Dash, 4 X 100 yard Relay, Standing Long Jump, and Softball Throw.

Age 11-12 Boys and Girls: 100 yard Dash, 200 yard Dash, 400 yard Dash, 800 yard Dash, 4 X 100 yard Relay, Standing Long Jump, and Softball Throw.

Age 13-14 Boys and Girls: 100 yard Dash, 200 yard Dash, 400 yard Dash, 800 yard Run, 4 X 100 yard Relay, Standing Long Jump, and Softball Throw.

Each participant may compete in up to three events, if three events are chosen, one event is required to be a field event.

"The philosophy of this program is to stimulate participation of all eligible children, it is in no way to be construed as an All-Star program," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "This event is run in cooperation with the National Recreation and Park Association and the President's Council on physical Fitness and Sport. Our own Olympic Bronze Medal Winner, Karen Cashman, was a five year National Championship Participant starting in the Quincy Competition. I encourage our residents to take advantage of this excellent program."

Members of the Quincy Track Club will assist in conducting local meets.

Rachel Sorenson's Pitching Paces Everlasting Engraving

Everlasting Engraving went up against Wisialko and came away with a 9-7 win in recent Mary Pratt Softball League action.

Thirteen-year-old Rachel Sorensen halted Wisialko's winning streak with an outstanding pitching performance, scattering three hits over seven innings.

Everlasting's offense was sparked by Susan Spring with a triple and single. Hits were also delivered by Susan Lynch, Maria McGinness and Merry Power. Excellent defensive plays were made by Ashley Nee at short, Liz Campbell at third and Courtney Rand at second base who turned a double play.

Courtney Allen had a flawless game behind the plate, including cutting down a base runner attempting to steal home.

YOUTH SOFTBALL

Wisialko's pitcher Lisa Schifone gave up only 7 runs in 5 innings. The defensive play of the night was made by Wisialko's third baseman Mary Power. She had an unassisted triple play with the bases loaded in the fourth inning.

In other action, Everlasting Engraving defeated Wiz Kidz in a slugfest, 26-19, to give them their second win of the young season.

Leading the charge for Everlasting was Courtney Allen, Liz Campbell, Susan Spring, and Maria McGinness, each with three hits. Rachel Sorensen, Ashley Nee, Christine Perry, and Jessica Smialek each had two hits, including a double by Jessica.

Winning pitcher was Courtney Rand followed in relief by Rachael Sorensen who fanned six out of the eight batters she faced.

Excellent defensive plays were made by Courtney Barton at second base, Erin Linnane in left field, and Jackie Tower in right.

Wiz Kidz bats were also hot. Leading their team in offense was Sheila Lynch, Lisa Turowski, and C. Quinn who had three hits including a double. Pitching for the Wiz Kidz was Sheila Lynch and an effective relief performance was turned in by Alyssa Hawksley.

A Thought For The Week

A child sees his Dad as a one-of-a-kind personality. He may be rich or poor, ambitious or otherwise, but like a mother, he, too, is a special person.

SCOTT DEWARE Father's Day, like Mother's Day, is a sentimental day founded in American custom. For some it is just another sales promotion event to ring up sales in gifts of ties, shirts, pajamas or other items including sentimental and funny cards.

It has been claimed Most Dads frown on the ransom of gifts advertised for Father's Day. Perhaps this is true. But one thing is certain. Most Dads have no distorted notions of importance and prefer not to be lavished with loot from loved ones just because it is Father's Day. Actually, it seems most Dads would really prefer a "Family Day" celebration, not a special Father's Day event. We hope all fathers who read this share the happiness of a "Family Day" on Father's Day...

tion more financially attractive to BMC.

It specifies a 10 percent cut in labor costs — payroll and benefits for the hospital's 1,180 employees — and a $1 million reduction in health insurance costs through changes in benefits and/or an increase in employee premium contributions.

And, it includes language that will encourage long-time hospital employees to consider retirement. Two years can be added to each hospital employee's length of service and/or age to enhance his/her retirement allowance, and for a fee any current hospital employee may buy up to three years of creditable service.

Those who elect the retirement enhancements will be allowed to participate in the city's health insurance program for retirees after that person leaves from employment of the new entity.

Quincy Hospital Director Jeff Doran said the memorandum also states that all Quincy hospital employees will continue at no less than their current base rate of pay or at a comparable position.

The memorandum states that all parties shall publicly and privately support all legislative efforts, including the home rule petition, to accomplish the affiliation.

"There are still some elements that need to be solidified, and this week we'll have an opportunity to finalize the home rule petition," Doran said.

While most everyone spoke in favor of keeping Quincy Hospital open, even at additional taxpayer cost, one resident, Patrick Conroy, who works at BMC and is a member of the Mass. Nurses Association, urged the councillors not to "give away taxpayers' property."

He also questioned why the federal and state governments were willing to contribute to a private entity, such as BMC, but were not willing to support a public hospital. "It doesn't make sense," he said.

He added that the memorandum the city executes with BMC should include language that specifies that the hospital property would revert to the city should BMC or its entities dissolve.

Looking at the number of Greater Boston hospitals entering mergers and affiliations, he suggested that not all five major teaching hospitals in Boston will exist in another decade and Quincy should protect its assets.

Monday night's three-hour meeting was a positive endorsement by the hospital unions — SEIU District 925, SEIU L1285, Mass. Laborers L364, the Mass. Nurses Association and NAGE/SEIU — who crowded the city council chambers and spilled into the outside hallway.

"This is a very exciting moment," said Wendy McGill, bargaining agent for SEIU 925. "But it is not without pain for the workers at Quincy Hospital."

She said the memorandum of understanding "saves jobs, saves the hospital and saves contracts. Quincy Hospital will continue as a private entity with the same services."

"You should be proud of [the hospital employees]. They've made huge sacrifices, personal economic sacrifices, but they [still] have a job."

"The hospital has had brighter days," said McGill, who participated in negotiations when the city two years ago when it had considered affiliating with Carney Hospital. Carney has since affiliated with Caritas Christi Health Care System.

"We have been sweating for the last couple of weeks," McGill continued. "We know Quincy needs to be part of something larger to maximize services."

Ellen Hafer, director of the Manet Community Health Center, said that Quincy Hospital is a "regional player for the uninsured, for those who are turned away from other doors."

People need health care; they continue to have a right to it, she said, urging the councillors to maintain their resolve in affiliating with BMC. "Our physicians are committed to make this work...and assure access," she said.

The health center, which Quincy Hospital supported 20 years ago when it was first founded, has grown to include 10 physicians, said Hafer. "The hospital is an integral part of our service."

Hospital Director Doran said Monday night's meeting was another milestone in the history of Quincy Hospital, founded in 1890 as a non-profit community organization.

"We wrestled with many complex issues," he said, but at all times, all sides were respectful and willing to listen. "Failure was not going to be an option," he said.

The health care industry has changed dramatically in the past 10 years, more so in the past four or five years, he said. Quincy Hospital, as an acute care hospital, faced unrelenting pressures.

But the goal was to maintain its commitment, its level of service and its staff and workforce as well as address the hospital's debt and pension liabilities, he said.

Quincy will still have a voice in the management of the hospital, Doran continued, noting that the proposed board of directors of the new entity would include four mayoral appointees, four members of the Quincy hospital staff and six members of the BMC staff as well as the dean of the Boston University School of Medicine or his designee and the new chief executive officer.

Doran said Quincy Hospital shares a common philosophy with BMC, and the affiliation would be able to preserve the hospital's commitment to serve the South Shore.

Further, the affiliation would continue and strengthen already existing links to BMC and to its tertiary services. Last year, BMC began providing emergency room services and cardiac care at Quincy.

In addition, BMC's Health Net program to address the health care needs of the uninsured and underinsured would be expanded into Quincy, he said. BMC also is participating in a nationally-recognized geriatric outreach program, he said, an important point in Quincy where the city's elderly comprise between 25 and 30 percent of the population.

From a business point of view, he said, Quincy Hospital is a significant economic force in the city and is the city's fifth largest employer.

And from a financial point of view, he continued, "We all remain optimistic the mayor will succeed in securing state and federal funding."

Paul Drew, vice president of network development at BMC, said Monday night he viewed the affiliation as a real partnership in providing health care to the community.

Drew noted that the BMC was created in 1996 through a merger of Boston City Hospital and University Hospital and, as a result, was aware of concerns among the councillors and mayor.

"BMC is a major academic medical center in Boston and values the delivery of primary care services... We understand neighborhoods' needs," noting that last year, there were one million visits at various health centers throughout the city.

Teaching and education is an important part of BMC as well, and the affiliation would provide additional opportunities to recruit faculty, staff and board-certified physicians to the Quincy facility.

"On the research side, the B.U. School of Medicine participates in many projects, including the Framingham heart study, launched more than 20 years ago," Drew said.

"And, we are the most unionized hospital" in the city, he said.

Dr. Daniel Chia-Sen Lee, president of the Quincy Hospital's board of managers, said he appreciates how important the hospital is to the community.

"We all will have to give something, the workers, the staff... We are willing to sacrifice to keep the hospital afloat and become strong in the future."

"Imagine what it would be like without Quincy Hospital," he said. "The nearest hospital would be one-half hour, one hour away. Those minutes could mean the difference between life and death."

Lee continued: "I do not believe there is a right to health care, but there is a reasonable expectation to comprehensive health care, and I would be willing to do my part," he said. Applause greeted his remarks.

Another physician, Paul Konowitz, who is vice president of the Quincy medical staff, said he has privileges at five area hospitals and sees the challenges each hospital faces.

"Quincy is not unique. That's where strategic planning comes into play," noting that Carney is affiliated with Caritas, South Shore with Children's Hospital.

"Quincy in affiliation with BMC has great potential for the hospital, the staff, the patients to move into the future... We are 100 percent behind a partnership with BMC. We are all committed to keep [Quincy] open and provide excellent care."

"My patients want it to stay open," Konowitz said.

Former Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley, who now is a councillor-at-large, began Monday night's hearing with a recollection of when he was passing over the gavel to Sheets.

"At 10 a.m. Jan. 2, 1990, I turned the administration over to Mayor Sheets and left a laundry list for the incoming mayor."

"The ninth and last item was: Explore an affiliation with one of the large hospitals in the Boston Area."

"Nine years, five months and 12 days later, we are on the verge of implementing such a recommendation," McCauley quipped.

Dozens of persons, including John Noonan, chairman of the Council on Aging, spoke in favor of the home rule petition.

Noonan said his affiliation with Quincy Hospital when he was born there in 1920. His sister was born there two years earlier. In addition, his children were born at Quincy Hospital, and they have pursued careers in the field of health care.

Another milestone at Quincy Hospital occurred in 1920. That was the year that the city appropriated $38,500 for the hospital, then a private charitable institution, which ended its year with an unexpended balance of $3,235.99.

When the state passed "anti-aid" legislation, the city no longer could support the hospital, and in 1920, the city began proceedings to take over the facility as a community hospital, Noonan said.

In concluding his remarks, he said, "Boston Medical Center may have a lot to offer the city of Quincy, but Quincy Hospital has a lot to offer BMC."

CRITIC'S CORNER

A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM: This latest big-screen rendition of one of Shakespeare's best comedies doesn't disappoint. Director Michael Hoffman moves the play from Shakespeare's Elizabethan England to 19th century Tuscany. It's a good move. The language can still work without any "modernizing."

If you don't know the story, the king and queen of the fairies, Oberon (Rupert Everett) and Titania (Michelle Pfeiffer) are engaged in a mighty battle. Angriest Oberon casts a spell on the sleeping Titania: When she wakes up, she will fall in love with the first thing that she sees.

The impish Puck (Stanley Tucci) decides to play a trick. In the nearby forest, a troupe of actors is rehearsing a play. At the heart of the troupe is hammy Bottom (Kevin Kline), who seems to think the whole play revolves around him. Puck turns Bottom into a jackass - literally. Titania then awakes, sets her eyes on Bottom, and becomes instantly smitten.

What really struck me was Kline's performance. He manages to give a very human dimension to his character. Behind all the hammy acting and the seeming obsession with himself, we see a lost and lonely human being whose only worth seems to be in play-acting. Thus, he's quite a sympathetic character.

The comedy, of course, works really well here. And, while it's got some nudity and sexual innuendo, it's a great way to introduce teens to the works of Shakespeare. I highly recommend it.

Your Horoscope

by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Debate becomes pointless, since you can clearly see both sides of the issue. This is definitely a time when it's best to agree to disagree on certain points.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Ancient issues need to be properly addressed before you can expect to move further. While you may not relish the task, you'll be glad that you took it on.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Finding a new passion to pursue will help take your mind off the things you cannot change. A friend lifts your mood with a delightful surprise.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Leo's Moon offers Moon Children the opportunity to find pleasant results in love, in money or on the job, whichever suits you best. Take a chance this week, and it will pay off.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Immerse yourself in sensory experiences, and do not look too far below the surface. You'll feel more ready for serious matters after a little mindless relaxation.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Playing the game of one-upmanship is invariably guaranteed to backfire. Try to be a little less critical in your judgments of others.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) When faced with a dilemma, the best thing you can do is be flexible about the outcome. Some surprising solutions are right around the corner. SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Others would happily agree with ever you say - if you ever stopped talking. Don't get so caught up in your own grand plans that you ignore what's directly in front of SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Find at least a small way to reward yourself for a job extremely well done. It's a particularly great time to combine the joys of preparing food and entertaining friends.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The substance of an attractive person matches up to his or her image. Show your appreciation for their generosity accordingly.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Clean up a big mess, even if you weren't the one who made it. Everyone will work better in a calm and organized environment.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Debate becomes pointless, since you can clearly see both sides of the issue. This is definitely a time when it's best to agree to disagree on certain points.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: While your shrewd nature serves you well in terms of your career, when it comes to personal relationships, you tend to outsmart yourself. Nevertheless, people generally forgive you for these lapses, as you are also charming, witty and insightful.

Rosemary Wahlberg Retiring As QCAP Executive Director

opportunities to go school after you're over a certain age," she said. "I can audit courses in history, English, poetry and anything relating to politics."

She and Archie have been members of the Ward 1 Democratic Committee since 1976 and the first couple to win the committee's "Person of the Year Award," in 1997.

Rosemary was an elected delegate to the Democratic National Convention that nominated Gov. Michael Dukakis for president in 1988.

But throughout her varied career, the critical field of family housing has remained Wahlberg's first love. QCAP directors in 1993 committed the agency to developing, owning and managing affordable housing.

"The high point of the 26 years," she said, "came when we were able to purchase and rehabilitate housing for people who couldn't afford to live here."

"The board knew that the best way to respond to the housing crisis was to build permanent affordable housing in Quincy and Weymouth in partnership with QCAP."

"For me, personally, I am most proud of these accomplishments at QCAP. For most of my career I have worked to make sure everyone has access to safe, affordable housing."

As a result of Wahlberg's drive, QCAP owns 36 housing unit outright and manages eight other, counsels first time homebuyers, seeks out for housing for the homeless and counsels tenant-landlord disputes.

Her work at QCAP has earned her a Distinguished Citizen Award from the city and a Citizen of the Year Award from the South Coalition for Human Rights, both in 1981, and an honorary degree from Quincy College.

QCAP also runs a fuel assistance program, a Head Start program for 3 and 4-year olds, a child referral agency for 20 towns from Quincy to Plymouth and is lead agency for child care programs in Quincy and Braintree.

There is also the Southwest Community Center, where those in need can go for emergency food supplies and those adults who speak other languages can learn to get along in English.

Wahlberg's devotion to housing even cost her a job on the Quincy Hospital's Board of Managers, to which she was appointed by Mayor Frank McCauley in 1981. She lasted four years.

"It was a time-consuming job," she said. "Housing was my first love and I couldn't do a good job at both."

Dinner parties at the Wahlberg home on Southern Artery present some seating problems.

One son, Eugene, is management as assistant to the president of the Thomas O'Connor Company while another son, Daniel, is labor as a member of the plumbers union.

Another son is a lawyer, a daughter is a Braintree school teacher; another daughter works for South Shore Elder Care Services and yet another daughter is a housewife raising four kids.

The QCAP Board of Directors has not yet gotten around the naming a successor but the qualifications are sure to be a lot different from the day in 1973 when Rosemary Wahlberg stepped into the post.

"When I took the job, all I had was common sense and a year of experience," she said. "Joanne Condon was my fiscal director."

"Now the fiscal director is a CPA with a master's degree and the associate director is also a CPA with 16 years experience."

And the newcomer will have the assistance and counsel of the one person who pioneered it all — Rosemary Wahlberg herself.

"Of course, I'll go on working on behalf of solving those problems which continue to face families and children," she said.

Rhyme 'N Reason To Celebrate Madeline's Birthday June 23-24

Rhyme 'n Reason, 12533 Hancock St., Quincy Center, will host a birthday celebration in honor of author Ludwig Bemelman's Madeline storybook character.

Parties in honor of the publication of the first Madeline book will be held Wednesday, June 23 at 4 p.m. and Thursday, June 24 at 4 p.m.

Cost is a $10 donation to K.I.D.S. (Kids In Distressed Situations), a national charity of retailers and manufacturers of children's products committed to helping children in need.

Attendees will receive a photograph with Madeline and will make a Madeline-related craft. There will also be a birthday cake and party games.

Reservations are required. Call 472-9500.

Madeline was first published on Sept. 5, 1939. Over 2,000 parties have been scheduled nationwide in honor the publication of the first Madeline book. More than 9 million copies of Madeline books have been sold in the 60 years since her creation.

NOTICE OF AN ACTIVITY AND USE LIMITATION

BERNAZZANI ELEMENTARY SCHOOL
701 FURNACE BROOK PARKWAY
QUINCY, MA 02169
RELEASE TRACKING NUMBER 3-4578

Pursuant to the Massachusetts Contingency Plan (310 CMR 40.1073), a Notice of Activity and Use Limitation on the above disposal site has been recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 13367 Page 533 on April 12, 1999.

The Notice of Activity and Use Limitations will limit the following site activities and uses of the above property:

1. Development on the Site for residential use or for the cultivation of crops for consumptive use;
2. Activities and/or uses which would render the currently inaccessible petroleum-contaminated soil located beneath the pavement and/or located three feet below the ground surface in the unpaved portions within the designated AUL area accessible;
3. Activities and/or uses which may cause physical or chemical deterioration, breakage, or structural damage to the pavement in the designated AUL area;
4. Relocation of the petroleum contaminated soil from its current inaccessible location beneath the paved area to an unpaved location within the designated AUL area and/or any activities, which result in permanent removal, damage or disturbance of the pavement, are prohibited. Relocation of the contaminated soil located three feet below grade to a location less than three feet below the ground surface within the designated AUL area are prohibited. Subsurface activities which involve the removal, damage, and/or disturbance of the pavement and/or which may render the contaminated soil presently located three feet below grade accessible are also prohibited without prior development and implementation of appropriate Soil Management and Health and Safety Plans in accordance with the Obligations and Conditions set forth below and in the Notice of AUL, and must include the immediate repair and/or replacement of the pavement with a comparable barrier and/or maintenance of the three foot clean soil cover within the designated AUL area.

Any person interested in obtaining additional information or reviewing the Notice of Activity and Use Limitation and the Response Action Outcome (RAO) may contact Mr. James Wilson of Quincy Public Schools at 107 Woodward Avenue, Quincy, MA, 617-984-8786. 6/17/99

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT HOME PROGRAM

NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST A RELEASE OF GRANT FUNDS

City of Quincy 1305 Hancock Street Quincy, MA 02169 376-1362	Town of Weymouth 75 Middle Street Weymouth, MA 01289 335-2000, ext. 331	Notice: Issued: June 15, 1999 Expires: June 22, 1999 Application Grant Number: M-99-DC-25-0214

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS:

On or about June 22, 1999 the City of Quincy and the Town of Weymouth will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release Federal HOME funds under the National Affordable Housing Act of 1990 (PL 101-625) (as amended) for the following projects:

- A. First Time Homebuyers - Quincy - $30,000 Weymouth - $88,741
Assist income-eligible buyers with below-market interest rate mortgages, down-payment assistance, and a portion of closing costs. Available for properties purchased in the City of Quincy and the Town of Weymouth.
- B. Moderate Rehabilitation - Quincy - $151,059
Assist income-eligible homeowners to access moderate rehabilitation loans and grants. Available for properties located in the City of Quincy for income-eligible residents.
- C. Community Housing Development Organization (CHDO's) and Rental Acquisition/Rehabilitation - Quincy - $246,182 Weymouth - $95,955
Acquisition and support of rental housing projects and moderate or substantial rehabilitation of existing structures for multi-family rental use.

The reason for the decision not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement are as follows:

The projects qualify for categorical exclusion under 24 CFR 58.35. Environmental reviews for these projects have been conducted by the City of Quincy and are available for public examination and copying at the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169.

RELEASE OF GRANT FUNDS

The City of Quincy and the Town of Weymouth will undertake the project described above with HOME funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The City of Quincy and the Town of Weymouth are certifying to HUD that the City of Quincy and the Town of Weymouth consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the City of Quincy and the Town of Weymouth may use the HOME funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) of 1969 and other environmental responsibilities listed in 24 CFR Part 58. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the Chief Executive Officer or other officer of the City of Quincy and the Weymouth Board of Selectmen, (b) that the City of Quincy and the Town of Weymouth Environmental Review Record for the projects indicated omission of a required decision finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process, or (c) another Federal agency has submitted written comments pursuant to Section 309 of the Clean Air Act or Section 102(c) of NEPA. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to HUD, Boston Federal Office Building, 10 Causeway St., Boston, MA 02222-1092. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after 15 days from the date of request for funds listed above will be considered by HUD.

start of the third year, followed by 4 percent at six months.

The previous proposal would not have given a pay raise as of Sept. 1, 1998, but would have given the 2 percent increase as of March 1, 1999.

"We were happy to see the direction [negotiations] went," Phillips said this week. The new financial proposals "showed that the city was headed in the right direction and showed the kind of respect" the teachers wanted, he said.

"We are not going to catch up to our neighbors," said Phillips, referring to the salaries of teachers in Braintree and Milton, "but by the end of the contract we may be ahead of Weymouth."

As of Sept. 1, 1998, the salary of a Weymouth teacher with only a bachelor's degree was $28,380 while in Braintree it was $26,654. In Milton, the starting salary was $26,860. Under the new Quincy contract, the salary as of Sept. 1, 1998, would increase to $25,778.

As a concession, the teachers agreed to let the school system have a bigger say in professional development, a key issue under the Education Reform Act.

"They can control what issues we work on," said Phillips. "They will give us a schedule of what subjects are going to be discussed during after-school meetings; the teachers will prepare for those meetings and then determine when the various aspects of the subject matter will be incorporated into the classroom."

This will ensure consistency among the schools and at each grade level, he explained.

All teachers have to be recertified, he added, but the teachers will determine what graduate courses they will take.

As a retirement incentive, teachers who have been in the Quincy system for at least 20 years will have an option to receive a balloon payment of longevity of three years in exchange for giving up future longevity stipends and a sick leave buyback. For teachers, they can buy back 30 days of unused sick days, he said.

Phillips said the new plan could boost teacher pay at retirement. Close to one third of the teaching staff is expected to retire within the next 10 years.

Although only the teachers were voting on the contract, other units within the bargaining group, such as assistant principals and other staff, attended the Sunday meeting. Negotiations will continue for those two units as well as for the teaching staff at Quincy College.

Phillips said he expected to attend the school committee meeting but was scheduled to attend a rally at Boston Common late yesterday afternoon.

"It's 'Ask A Teacher' campaign," said Phillips, sponsored by the Massachusetts Teachers Association and the Mass. Federation of Teachers.

He said teachers should be asked what are their ideas about what education reform should consist of.

The demonstration also was called to lobby against a bill proposed by state Rep. Harold Lane of Holden which would gut collective bargaining.

Cites Money As Main Reason Harold Decides Not To Run For Mayor

There won't be a Sheets-Harold battle for mayor this year.

City Councillor Paul Harold has decided to seek re-election instead and took out nomination papers Tuesday.

It ended weeks of speculation that he would challenge incumbent James Sheets who is seeking a sixth term.

Harold would have been Sheets' first major challenger since the latter was elected mayor in 1989. Sheets has run three times unopposed and token opposition since.

Harold said in a statement Tuesday that the main reason for not running this year was money.

Harold said his committee conducted a 30-day exploratory campaign to measure his chances of winning the mayor's office.

"We looked at it from a personal, political and finanacial basis," he said. "The bottom line was money.

PAUL HAROLD

"An impressive number of people and a significant number of unions pledged their endorsements and support, but to run an issues-based campaign would have required raising an average of $1,000 a day from now till November.

"A fund-raising demand of such magnitude would have limited my ability to campaign person-to-person and would have restricted my efforts to articulate the issues such as the hospital, city spending, the shipyard and Squantum Gardens, just to mention a few.

Harold hinted of a future mayoral run.

"I'd like to thank the hundreds of people who came forward to offer their help and support, encouragement and advice," he said.

"We'll have to take another look at the mayor's office in the not too distant future."

He said that at this time he could best serve the people as Councillor-at-large and asked for the support of voters in the fall elections.

With him Tuesday as he took out nomination papers for Councillor-at-large were his campaign committee manager Michael Linnane, treasurer Paul Bregoli and Frank Myette a long-time supporter.

$35 Million Still Needed Hospital Affiliation Moves Ahead

By MARILYN JACKSON

The city of Quincy filed a home rule petition with the state legislature Tuesday to allow the transfer of the 282-bed acute care Quincy Hospital to a non-profit organization affiliated with Boston Medical Center.

"Today is the moment of truth," said Councillor-at-large Francis X. McCauley Monday night, who served on a 23-member task force for more than a year to find an appropriate health care partner to keep the 108-year-old hospital in operation.

The transaction must be completed by Sept. 30, when the federal fiscal year ends. Quincy still needs state and federal funding to complete the deal.

After a two-and-a-half-hour discussion Monday night with hospital director Jeffrey Doran, personnel director Kevin Madden and bond counsel Richard Moche, the councillors asserted their own authority and added some more language to the 15-page document. The home rule petition also incorporates a memorandum of understanding between all parties, spelling out job protection and other provisions for the five unions at the hospital.

The new language, requested by Councillor-at-large Paul Harold, added the requirement of a two-thirds council vote, in addition to the mayor's approval, for the transfer of the hospital property — the huge medical center at 114 Whitwell St. as well as the house across the street used for administrative purposes.

Kolson Seeks $1 Million Bond Issue For Sidewalks Repair

By NANCY MANGANELLO

City Council President Peter Kolson proposed a resolution at Monday night's City Council meeting authorizing a $1 million emergency bond issue to fix city sidewalks.

Kolson said that he met with mayor James Sheets last Friday and that he agreed to back the bond issue if the council supported it.

The mayor said Tuesday he had not decided on whether bonding or increasing the budget for sidewalk repairs. He also said that another option was to do nothing.

The bond issue would spread out the cost of the repairs over several years with accumulating interest. Kolson believes that his resolution would make Quincy a "better city and a better place to live."

Councillor-at-Large

Francis McCauley agreed that the sidewalks needed to be addressed, but he didn't want it added to the city's increasing debt from the school project and the hospital.

"I don't think it's prudent to be borrowing money," McCauley said. He argued that the amount of debt in the city's annual budget has increased from 4.2 percent in FY 97 to 5.7 percent in FY 2000.

McCauley proposed his own resolution which asks the mayor to submit an appropriation order to the City Council in the amount of $300,000, instead of a $1 million bond. He wants the money to be charged to the revenue of FY 2000. That would leave the money out of the city's increasing debt.

Kolson's proposal was amended after Councillor Daniel Raymond's mo-

Renovation Work Starts

A Face-Lift For The Wollaston Theater

ON HAND AS renovation work began this week on the Wollaston Theater were, from left, Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino, board member Michael McFarland, board Chairman Don Uvanitte, architect Jane Estella-Minias, Artios Associates; Walter White, Quincy director of Inspectional Services; Tom Galvin, Quincy 2000 board member and Economic Development Coordinator Michael Rie.

The aging 73-year-old Wollaston Theater is getting a needed face-lift.

Work began this week on restoring the marquee and exterior repairs at the last of Quincy's old-time movie houses located at 10-18 Beale St.

The $60,000 project includes rehanging of the poster case, and repairs to the front entrance area as well as repairing and repainting the four storefronts that flank the theater.

Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, the public-private economic partnership that is providing much of the needed financing for the project said:

"The deterioration of the theater's marquee has been an eyesore for years and we are pleased to be party to this restoration project.

"When completed, the building renovation will complement the improvements already made in the Wollaston Business District."

The restoration of the marquee includes replacing the illuminated sign boxes that sit behind the letter tracks to advertise the upcoming movies. Also being reinstalled is the neon "Wollaston Theater" lettering that used to adorn the top of the marquee and the decorative neon on the marquee nose.

"There have been at least three completely different marquee styles along the theater's entrance over the years," said Economic Development Coordinator Michael Rie. "The new marquee will look identical to how the existing marquee looked when it was installed in the 1960s."

Built in 1926, the Wollaston Theater is Quincy's last movie house that dates back to the vaudeville days.

It was built as a 1,259-seat legitimate theater at a cost of $90,000. The original owner was W.W. Wilson, a Wollaston realtor. In 1932, he sold it to contractor Edward H. Sears who had constructed the building.

Between 1930 and 1935, the building was converted to a movie theater. The Sears family retained ownership until the late 1970s when they sold it to present owner, Arthur Chandler.

Chandler has been replastering and repainting the huge ceiling in connection with the exterior project.

"The restoration of the theater was one of our earliest objectives," said Quincy 2000 board member Tom Galvin. "We've lost so many historic theaters in Quincy over the years. It's good to see Quincy 2000 involved in preserving the last of them."

Rie said the project should take approximately four weeks to complete.

The four storefronts included in the project house the Christian Science Reading Room, Dot's Smoke Shop, E.Z.-Tech computer shop and Paul's Barbershop.

Artios Associates of South Boston provided the architectural services for the project. Paul Rogan Company of Braintree is the general contractor. Division 10 Specialties of Quincy is the signage sub-contractor.

Project funding in part is through the Federal Community Development Block Grant program.

REDUCING THE ALZHEIMER'S RISK

Researchers at the National Institute on Aging began to study ibuprofen's role in preventing Alzheimer's disease after they had noticed a lower rate of this degenerative brain disorder among arthritis sufferers. These patients often rely on ibuprofen and other non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs) to alleviate painful inflammation. And, if NSAIDs could reduce inflammation in the brain, they might reduce Alzheimer's destructive effect. Indeed, after 15 years of study involving 1,686 adults, it was found that those who took non-aspirin NSAIDs for two years had half the risk of developing Alzheimer's. Those who took non-aspirin NSAIDs for the longest period reaped the most benefit. Aspirin's limited protective effect was thought to be due to low-dosage intake.

You can never underestimate the improvement in your general well-being that you can experience if you exercise regularly. Affiliation Ends Amicably Teen Program, YMCA Part Ways

Teen-Get-Away, a five-year-old program for youths offering healthy alternatives to violence, alcohol, smoking and other substance abuse, has severed its affiliation with the South Shore YMCA's Quincy facility.

Beginning this fall, the Y will host teen nights on both Friday and Saturday, featuring basketball, swimming, fitness programs, dances, field trips and occasional guest speakers.

The Friday night programs at the Y will be open to teens in grades 6 through 8 from 7 to 10 p.m. The Saturday night programs will be for teens in grades 9 through 12.

Previously, according to Ralph Yohe, president of the South Shore YMCA, only a Saturday program was held at the Y which served both middle and upper school students. A Friday night program was held at the Quincy Community United Methodist Church.

Jo-Ann Bragg, executive director of Teen Get-Away and a member of the school committee, had spearheaded efforts in 1991 to establish a youth center. A committee of teens and community leaders spent three years before the program became a reality.

To get the program "up and running," said Bragg, Impact Quincy, the Harold Brooks Foundation, Community Development Block Grants and Urban Development Action Federal Grants, awarded by the city, provided necessary funding.

Bragg said the board of directors of Teen Get-Away is keeping its options open and had been approached recently by another organization interested in opening teen centers in Quincy.

"We will work with the YMCA for a smooth transition as they open their own teen program, and we expect the YMCA to continue on with the mission we set forth at the inception of Teen Get-Away," said Robert Jarnis, vice president of Teen Get-Away.

Yohe said the Y had proposed taking over the youth center program in May in an effort to provide recreational opportunities for more teens, especially those in high school. By separating the two teen groups by middle school and high school, Yohe said he hoped to see an increase in participation.

"We are now in our sixth year, and we have had the opportunity to serve over 20,090 of Quincy's young people by providing them with safe, healthy, supervised recreational programs," said Bragg.

"We had two main goals from the beginning, and we have accomplished both of them. We wanted to create a successful youth center program that survived beyond the statistical life span of three years for youth centers nationally, and we wanted to provide a cross-section of Quincy's young people with a positive way to socialize with their peers in a safe environment, free from substance abuse and violence...

"We are honored that they plan to model their program after ours," Bragg said of the Y's efforts.

"Joanne has demonstrated a genuine commitment to teenagers within the community," said Yohe. "We look forward to continuing the tradition and making the YMCA available to many teenagers who have not been introduced to the YMCA's programs."

Bragg thanked the many people and businesses who supported Teen Get-Away from the start. "Without their support and assistance, we would never have been able to open."

Among the strongest supporters were Mayor James Sheets, Sheriff Michael Bellotti, Councilors Peter Kolson, Steve Durkin, Bruce Ayers, School Superintendent Gene Creedon, Police Chief Thomas Frane and former Chief Francis Mullen, Impact Quincy, the Police Athletic League, the police department, Barry's Deli and Presidential Camera, she said.

She also thanked Rev. C.A. Stine and the trustees of the Quincy Community United Methodist Church and the South Shore YMCA.

"Last but not least, we have also been fortunate to have a great staff, both past and present. We thank everyone who was a part of making Teen Get-Away the successful program that it is today."

Ayers, D'Amico Seek Hearing Device At Council Chamber

Councillors Michael D'Amico and Bruce Ayers proposed installing a hearing device for hearing impaired residents who wish to attend City Council meetings at Monday night's meeting.

The device would be connected to earphones which the hearing impaired could wear to amplify the sound of the meetings.

Ayers said many state buildings already have the devices installed in compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Residents Asked To Help Water New Trees

The City Park and Forestry Department requests that residents who received a new tree in the past two years help with the watering of the tree throughout the warm summer months.

Residents are urged to give the trees a good soaking once a week from June through September.

"Through the commitment of Mayor Sheets, we were able to plant more than 600 trees along our city's streets in the past year. We now ask that those people who received a new tree help the tree survive the hot summer by assisting with the watering duties," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park and Forestry Department.

Residents are asked to water the base of the tree until the ground is saturated and water begins to gather around the base. Depending on prior weather conditions, this might take 2-5 minutes per week.

The city's new trees will bring a host of benefits. Trees can; clean air by producing oxygen and removing dust particles; provide shade and cooling in the summer, improve the aesthetics of our neighborhoods; and increase property values.

"The City of Quincy has been recognized by the National Arbor Day Foundation for three consecutive years as "Tree City USA" for our commitment to maintaining the urban forest. That commitment extends beyond our local government to the people who comprise our entire community. We now must work together to ensure that the investment we have made in the future of our city is protected," Koch added.

Harold Run In 2,001

Paul Harold bowed out of this year's mayoral race but reportedly already has his eye on a bid in 2,001.

Those around him are convinced he will make the run then regardless.

Regardless of whether incumbent Jim Sheets seeks a seventh term or not.

Harold did a lot of soul searching about challenging Sheets this year but his final decision came down mainly to money. Not enough of it.

It's been estimated that something in the neighborhood of $100,000 would be needed to wage an effective campaign against a popular incumbent like Sheets.

There was no guarantee or enough up-front commitments that the money would be there.

There is speculation that this election could be Sheets' Last Hurrah.

That gnawing issues like trying to keep Quincy Hospital open and afloat, teacher and other union contracts, rising tax rate, etc. have taken some of the fun out of being mayor.

And, who knows, there could be more issues lurking around the corner.

Sheets has done a good job for a decade in the mayor's office. A sixth term will give him 12 years. That could set off that old political refrain, "Time For A Change."

Sheets already is the longest-serving mayor under Quincy's Plan A form of government. And it will be a long time before a future mayor even comes close to that record.

Being mayor is not going to get any easier. Sheets may have seen the best years.

Some City Hall observers believe he just might be thinking retirement in two years.

HAROLD'S DECISION not to challenge Sheets this year hasn't exactly brought the musical chairs to a screeching halt.

City Council President Peter Kolson has been seriously thinking of running for Harold's council at-large seat which would have become vacant.

HAROLD

SHEETS

But he may still run at-large.

"I'm giving it some thought," he acknowledges. "I'll decide shortly."

And that may be tonight (Thursday).

He has a "campaign announcement" reception set for 6 to 10 p.m. at Owen O'Leary's Restaurant, Southern Artery. Donation $15 per person.

DAVE MCGILLICUDDY, runner-up in the council at-large race two years ago, apparently won't be deterred by Harold not running for mayor.

He indicated to The Sun last week that he was running whether there was an open seat or not. "Absolutely," he said.

WILL THE THREE School Committee incumbents up for re-election this year go unchallenged?

STICE

CEDRONE

Vice Chairwoman Linda Stice, Sean Barry and Christine Cedrone have their nomination papers in circulation.

As of Tuesday, there were no other candidates in sight. But there is still plenty of time. Deadline for taking out and filing papers is July 27.

MILESTONE: Bob and Gloria Noble, who are always there to help when it comes to a worthy cause, are celebrating their 49th wedding anniversary.

BOB

GLORIA

For their involvement in the community, they were honored as a husband-wife volunteer team by the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post who selected them for their "Citizen of the Year Award" last year.

Congratulations and best wishes, kids.

LICENSE BOARD BRIEFS

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted permission to Presidential Liquors to alter their physical premises of their alcoholic beverage license to include an additional 1804 square foot space adjacent to the current 3000 square foot space at Pilgrim Plaza, 25 Scammell St. (the space was a former cleaning establishment)

•Placed on file a request from M & T Autoworks, 121 Fayette St. for a permit to store 50 gallons of gasoline in the tanks of five vehicles.

•Rescheduled a hearing regarding the Quincy Avenue Global, 451 Quincy Ave. until June 29.

•Granted a Motor II License and a permit to store 200 gallons of gasoline in the tanks of 20 vehicles to D.Z. Motors, 245-249 Willard St.

•Granted an extension of premises of their liquor license to Robert L. Nickerson Post, 20 Moon Island Rd. for use at their annual gold outing June 26 and their annual clam bake on Sept. 11.

•Granted a one day liquor license to St. Ann's Parish for use at an appreciation banquet Saturday, June 26.

•Placed on file a request from West Coast Cafe, 1659 Hancock St. permission to place small tables and chairs on the sidewalk in front of the restaurant. They are not allowed on city-owned property for safety reasons.

•Granted a one day beer and wine license to the Merrymount Association, for their annual July 3 festivities at Merrymount Beach.

•Allowed a change of ownership and a common victualer license to Fanny and Peter Chew, new owners of the 49 seat Golden Star Chinese Restaurant, 21 Scammell St. Former owner was Ling Zhang.

•Board voted to meet at 9 a.m. June 29 instead of the usual 10 a.m. because of its large agenda.

Chairman Joseph Shea said the meeting has to end by noon, as board members have other commitments. Shea said the agenda will include a request from Roche Bros. for a liquor license.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS is a 1930's postcard view of the old Norfolk Downs railroad station in North Quincy. Billboard ads covered the building's facade. The station was on the Newport Avenue side of the tracks, at the end of Billings Road, on what is now the site of a U.S. Trust branch bank. This view is from a small park and driveway that were on the Newport Avenue side. The station was demolished when the Red Line was built.

Teachers Get Too Little Respect

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Public School teachers get too little respect. When I think of the quality of life of our society, I place teachers up there with police officers, firefighters, doctors, lawyers etc. We all perform certain roles in society but the bottom line is always the future and the next generation in our classrooms today.

One time, teachers were just expected to be teachers but today we expect teachers to be all things to all students. Teachers have our kids, maybe, five hours a day in school but are expected to solve all the problems created in the other 19 hours in the day.

As a police officer I believe I help make life better for everyone but I truly believe we undervalue the role teachers play in our society.

We can't do without teachers anymore than we can do without cops or firefighters.

Public education is a partnership between parents and educators. It is silly when we let talkshows bash teachers without a response.

It is easy to call a radio station but a lot more difficult to work with our teachers in educating our children for the world that awaits them tomorrow.

Health, Safety And Highpoint

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I had a dream last month that shook me, and one which I can't shake. It was spring and my youngest child was wailing and moaning because he had to continue with religious ed classes while the other two had finished. He was to make his first communion.

My 4th grade son was also complaining and whining because he had to begin MCAS testing, and was certain "he is stupid". In this dream, meanwhile, I am vacuuming and listening to WJDA. The sound of blasting was beginning to annoy me unmercifully and I was grimacing because of the acrid, repugnant smell in the air all around. Waiting for my oldest child to get home from school, I was questioning my temporary insanity when on the radio came an announcement: There had been some kind of explosion at Central Middle School, and children had been seriously injured. Wow; was I glad to wake up in a sweat and scared beyond words; because it was only a dream.

And then, the next day, questioning the dream I had had...I realized something. Next spring my youngest child will be making his first communion. My middle son will be in 4th grade, taking MCAS and my 5th grader will be at Central. Oh, please, God...No.

Will the union contractors care or listen? No. Will Councillor Cahill care or at least listen? You bet. That is why I will continue to vote. And say "thanks" that, unlike Mr. Stratouly or his lawyers, my representatives will not use their power or their money for "revenge" or any other foolish action.

Now, can they use some of the defense money (which has been set aside) to proactively protect the residents of this city by reclassifying the 73 acre, North Commons area to a "Tier 1 C" site? Or can it only be used to defend our Councillors from vicious attacks of greed and what other nonsense is to come!!!!?

Think safety. Think health. I implore you to think.

$11,640 Raised To Research Cure For Quincy Girl

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Thank you very much for the well-written article by Tom Henshaw about Sara Chung and Children's Hospital.

Many of our neighbors, friends and co-workers commented on the story. We received a few more copntributions after the story was published. The grand total raised was $3,500 from the runner, Laura Liflandy, and $2,320 from our family.

These amounts were matched by the Oechsle International Advisors, a corporate sponsor, for a grand total of $11,640.

The total amount raised for the hospital from the entire Marathon Team and patient sponsor families to date is $409,000.

Again, we thank you for publishing Sara's story to help raise funds for this very worthwhile cause. We know that Dr. Millis (Sara's surgeon) and Dr. Kasser (Chief of Orthopedics) are extremely pleased and anxious to get started on a research project regarding major hip problems in children.

Many, many thanks. We are most grateful to the staff of the Quincy Sun. The Chung Family Chinsoo, Cynthia, Sara & Steven Quincy

Quincy's Yesterdays

50 Homes To Be Built At Dennehy Farm

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy builder Chauncey Luce announced he would construct 50 homes at the former Dennehy Farm in Montclair.

The Montclair landmark was owned by the father of City Councillor Daniel Dennehy, the late Timothy Dennehy, and was the last working farm in the city.

June 24 - 30
1950
49 Years Ago

Luce, who lived on Hamilton Ave., said construction would start July 1 and take an estimated one year. He said the first house would be ready for occupancy within 60 days. It would add $12 million in valuation to the city.

The new development was given the name "Green Acres."

'CRACKER BARREL' SCHEDULED FOR SQUARE

"Cracker Barrel" talks were scheduled for Quincy Square by three city organizations interested in good efficient government: the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, the Quincy Jaycees and the Quincy League of Women Voters.

The event was part of a national crusade to highlight the work of the Hoover Commission that identified ways to save federal tax dollars. A replica of a New England country store, mounted on a truck trailer, would be the center piece for the program.

Mayor Thomas Burgin lent his endorsement.

QUARRIES AS SWIMMING SITES STUDY

City Manager William Deegan said he would consider creating swimming places at quarries in the city, as part of a safety plan.

Deegan was acting in response to a resolution by Councillor David Crowley calling for safety measures at the city's abandoned quarries. Instead of looking only at plans to drain and fill the quarries, the city manager along with DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert and Health Commissioner Richard Ash, said that supervised swimming could be the solution to the safety problem.

In Hometown Visit

Louise DuArt Aids QHS Performing Arts

Comedienne Louise DuArt, a graduate of Quincy High, returned to her old home town recently for a benefit performance to support the Quincy High School Association of the Performing Arts.

DuArt, who is currently touring the country with comedians Tim Conway and Harvey Korman, has her own sit-com, "Cafe DuArt," on the Goodlife TV Network in Los Angeles.

In Quincy, with Cong. William Delahunt, she co-hosted a show for 500 elementary, middle and high school students active in the performing arts and answered student questions about her career.

Later in the evening, she joined Mayor James Sheets at the Tirrell Room in the Lodge of Elks for a benefit performance for more than 250 people.

The evening featured a special appearance local entertainer Donna Marie, who portrayed and sang the songs of Patsy Cline.

The Citizens Bank helped to sponsor the event and the Elks provided the facilities to make the evening a success.

Foot & Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

WHEN YOU'RE WALKING FOR TWO

When you're pregnant, you may be focused elsewhere and not give much thought to your feet (especially if you can't see them when you look down!), but your feet have special needs now, too. A hormone, aptly called relaxin, whose primary purpose is to help relax and expand the pelvis for the baby, also relaxes the ligaments in your feet. Add to that the shift in balance and significant gain in weight - especially as you near term, and you have the makings for sore feet. Toward the end of the pregnancy, your feet will likely be wider and flatter, providing a stable platform to which to balance. When you're walking for two, running shoes offer shock absorption, comfort and stability.

Just as you put your prenatal care in the hands of a specialist, so should you entrust your hard-working feet to a specialist - a podiatrist. It's time to pay attention to what your feet are trying to tell you when each step is more painful than the one before. Don't ignore foot problems, whether caused by pregnancy, injuries, diseases, or inherited conditions. Your feet aren't supposed to hurt and there is help through the techniques of modern podiatry when they do. We offer foot care for the family at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy. Call 617-472-3466 for an appointment.

PS: Your feet should resume their pre-pregnant state gradually after you deliver your baby.

Majic To Open Summerfest Concerts June 30

The popular band Majic will open Quincy's 17th Summerfest with a performance of songs from the '60s, '70s and '80s Wednesday, June 30, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater in Merry-mount Park.

Big bands will take over the Wednesday night concerts for the month of July with the 16-piece Silver Bullet Swing Band appearing July 7 and the 20-piece jazz orchestra, the Roy Scott Big Band on July 14.

The Continentals, a 16-piece swing band featuring the songs of the '40s, will be there July 21 followed by the Roy Natile Big Band, a jazz group featuring music of the past 60 years, will be there July 28.

Small combos will be featured in August, leading off with Razzmatazz, playing the classics of the '60s and '70s Aug. 4, and the Reminiscent, playing the classics of the '50s and '60s Aug. 11.

The John Penny Band, one of the top country show bands, will perform contemporary and traditional country music Aug. 18 and the Aug. 25 performance will be announced later.

The Summerfest will conclude Sept. 1 with the Alumni Big Band, with its repertoire of jazz, swing, pop and show tunes.

Farmers' Market Opens June 25

The Quincy Farmers' Market will start its 16th season Friday, June 25 at 11:30 a.m. at the John Hancock Municipal Parking lot, across from the Court House.

The market will continue through the summer months every Friday.

"We are looking forward to another great season, and the return of the local farmers and welcome all area residents to our historic city", said Harry Johnson of Quincy, market coordinator.

Several new farmers will join the market this year, including Alaska Wilds, smoked salmon from Gloucester, Mass.

Local farmers returning are, Jeannette McKenzie of Duxbury who specializes in herbs; Glenn Stillman Farm of Lunenburg, who has a full line of fruits and vegetables and melons; and Freitas Farm of Middleboro with strawberries, peas, beets, lettuce. Later in the season, he will also have blueberries, cranberries, sweet corn, sweet potatoes, plus several varieties of summer and winter squash.

"As the season advances, additional vegetables and berries become available, therefore each week the market takes a different look" said Anneli Johnson, Agri-Tourism Program Coordinator from the Department of Food and Agriculture, which sanctions farmers' markets throughout the Commonwealth. Johnson said local produce is fresh since it is picked the day of the market, and picked ripe and full of flavor.

As a side benefit, customers also help maintain open space at absolutely no cost to the taxpayers, when buying directly from their grower.

Quincy's Farmers' Market also invites local gardeners and garden clubs to take part in this weekly activity. To register, contact Harry Johnson at 617-479-1601 for application. A small fee is charged to pay for the insurance and expenses occurring in the managing the market.

Quincy Farmers' Market longevity can be attributed to the support it receives from the Mayor's Office, Quincy Planning and Community Development Office, South Shore Council on Aging, area restaurants, and their chefs, local media, Quincy Center Business & Professional Association and area residents who shop there weekly for their fresh fruits and vegetables.

Council Commendation For Loretta DeGrazia

Loretta T. DeGrazia, president of East Coast Petroleum and resident of Quincy, was commended at Monday night's city council meeting by Councillor Michael D'Amico for her outstanding dedication to the city and for winning the Blue Chip Enterprise Initiative Award.

"I'm very proud to be a part of this city," DeGrazia said after receiving her commendation.

DeGrazia was selected as one of six national winners of the annual Blue Chip Enterprise Initiative

LORETTA DEGRAZIA

Award. The award honors business owners who have faced and overcome challenges and emerged from them stronger.

"Loretta is a model for the city of Quincy," D'Amico said.

Councillor Bruce Ayers said that DeGrazia was a "hardworking individual, but most of all committed."

Councillor Paul Harold said the award was well-deserved, but DeGrazia could also be recognized for the many other things she has done for the city, including community service.

DeGrazia received a city seal pin from Council President Peter Kolson as a sign of appreciation from the City Council.

Seventh Annual Quincy Blues Festival Sunday

James Cotton Band Headlines Over A Dozen Acts At Veterans' Stadium

The seventh annual Quincy Blues Festival Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium is expected to draw 8,000 to 10,000 people from Massachusetts and other New England states, organizers say.

The eight-hour festival, which kicks off at noon (gates open at 11 a.m.), will feature at least a dozen acts headlined by the legendary James Cotton Band. The non-alcohol, family oriented festival has become a premier event for Quincy and one of the region's top rated cultural gatherings. It attracts some of the top musical performers in the East.

The day also features an art and photography show, an international food bazaar with a wide variety of food vendors and promoters. New to the festival this year is a "Kids Tent" featuring a variety of activities and educational attractions.

Quincy resident and businessman, Joseph Lamparelli will sing the National Anthem and give the opening remarks at noon. Other bands scheduled to perform are The Love Dogs, Greg Piccolo and Heavy Juice, Steve Murphy and the Yardrockers, The Boogalo Swamis, the Bruce Katz Band, Shirley Lewis and Weepin Willie, Dave Haley, Two Bones and a Pick, Rick Russell, the Racky Thomas Band and Bill Morrissey.

Blues legend The James Cotton Band, will headline the show with a scheduled 70-minute set beginning at 7 p.m. Cotton's career has spanned six decades, beginning in 1944 when as a nine-year-old he met his idol Sonny Boy Williamson in Arkansas in 1944. The harmonica master immediately impressed the crusty bluesman by mimicking the theme son from his King Biscuit Time radio show.

Today, Cotton is still at the top of his game musically. His 1997 Verve album "Deep in the Blues" won a Grammy.

Cotton's group includes some very familiar faces for Boston-area blues fans, as it is led by piano star David Maxwell, one of the most versatile accompanists in blues. Darrell Nulisch is a wonderfully moving soul singer in his own right, and having him backed by Cotton's visceral blues harp guarantees some magical moments.

Emcees include Holly Harris from WBOS and Peter Black of WATD.

This year, a portion of the festival proceeds will benefit the Thomas Crane Public Library Foundation, Inc. The Crane Library in Quincy Center is undergoing a 35,000 square-foot renovation and addition. The addition will include a new children's room, state of the art technology, a variety of meeting rooms, a study area and a library cafe.

The original building of the Crane Library was designed by Henry Hobson Richardson, one of the outstanding American architects of his time. The addition will compliment the historic original design and optimize the function of the new information age.

Ranging from pre-school to teens to adults to seniors, the festival continues to appeal to a wide spectrum of interests. This year, with the library as a partner, it is estimated another level of interests will magnify the day.

Tickets are $10 in advance, $12 at the gate, and $2 for children under 16 (accompanied by an adult). In recognition of this year's theme of reading, literacy and education, any adult showing a library card from anywhere will receive a $2 discount at the gate and children will be admitted free.

Since its inception, Joe Hajjar, owner of the award-winning Yard Rock Blues Club in Quincy, has been the producer and sponsor of the show. Over the years, the event's mission has remained the same: a wholesome event for families and music fans of all ages.

"Our children are the future, reading is the key, and music is the bridge," Hajjar said.

The committee responsible for orchestrating the event includes the Mayor's Office, city Event Coordinator Rhonda Merrill, and a number of interested individuals and companies as well as more than 100 volunteers and helpers.

Sponsors include State Street, Stop & Shop,

USTRust, The Patriot Ledger, Greater Boston Convention and Visitors Bureau, Eastern Bank, Citizens Bank, Signature Graphics and Signs, BankBoston and MediaOne.

BankBoston Presents $5,000 For USS Salem Preservation

BankBoston has contributed $5,000 to preserve the USS Salem, a major artifact of the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum in Quincy.

Built in the world-renowned Quincy Fore River shipyard just after World War II, the U.S.S. Salem was the highest achievement in technology, design and armament when the ship went to sea in 1949. The last of the big gun cruisers, it is home to an important collection of artifacts dating back to the American Revolutionary War.

"The Salem played an important role in our nation's naval history," said Charles Ritch, regional director in BankBoston's South Region, "and serves as the star attraction for the Museum's visitors. BankBoston is proud to contribute to preserving this grand ship that opens a window to the past. Generations to come should have the opportunity to experience life aboard one of the nation's great warships."

The U.S.S. Salem is berthed just off Route 3A next to the Fore River Bridge in Quincy. For more information on the museum, call 617-479-7900.

Fund-Raising For Library Addition Reaches $600,000

By TOM HENSHAW

The contractor who is building the new addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library is a little behind schedule but the building is expected to be opened next year at this time.

"By the end of the summer all the brick work will be in place," said Ann McLaughlin, library director. "We anticipate that it will be completed a year from now."

Fund-raising is rolling right along, too.

"We've raised about $600,000," said McLaughlin. "Our goal is $1 million. Donations come and go in waves. It would be nice to get a big one."

The biggest one yet has been $115,000 from the late Dr. Paul Ossen.

"He was a big library user," said McLaughlin. "When he was over 65 and retired he took courses for free at UMass-Boston as a senior and he used to come to the library to do his homework."

The late Mabelle Fullerton, longtime social editor of the Patriot Ledger, contributed $10,000.

"A lot of different people have contributed and will have a piece of this building," said McLaughlin, "I have always felt that the opportunity to have a piece of the library was the nice part of fund-raising."

The 65,000-square-foot addition, which will include a cable TV studio, will cost $15 million, including $13 million for the construction work alone.

Friday Deadline For Entering Photography Show

Local amateur and professional photographers are invited to submit their work for judging in the 4th annual Presidential Juried Photography Show that will be displayed at the City of Presidents Blues Festival Sunday, June 27 at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Organizer John Black of Presidential Camera & Studios, 1422 Hancock St., said last year's show drew over 300 entries. "This year, we hope to be the largest photo show held south of Boston," he said.

A total of $500 in cash prizes will be awarded, as well as ribbons and other special awards. Categories include Professional, Amateur, and Student. In addition, there will be awards for the Best Black and White, Best Quincy Historical Site Photo along with the people's choice "Photographer of the Year" award.

The deadline for entries is Friday June 25 at 5 p.m. All entries must be mounted, secured and ready for hanging. No frames may be used.

Entries should be submitted to Presidential Camera. The photo show will be held on the grounds of Veterans' Memorial Stadium from noon to 7 p.m. during the Blues Festival.

Works may be sold during the show, with 15% of the proceeds going towards the Thomas Crane Public Library Foundation, Inc. For more information, call 617-471-1437.

Farewell Service Sunday For Maj. Robert, Kathleen Klenk

Salvation Army Corps Maj. Robert Klenk and his wife, Maj. Kathleen Klenk, will be honored at a service at the Quincy Temple, 6 Baxter St., at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The Klenks are moving to Haverhill. During their two-year stay in Quincy, they founded a rehabilitation program for young offenders in conjunction with Quincy District Court.

After the service, a fellowship will be held.

The new corps officers will be Maj. Edward Forster and his wife, Maj. Florence Forster of Coshockton, Ohio.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Grilled Veggies & Pasta

The combination of certain vegetables when we were growing up was called "giambotte". It usually contained egg plant, peppers, onion, zucchini and tomato sauce.

But with the grilling craze the vegetables can be grilled for this dish. I mixed the veggies with pasta and of course tomato sauce, and it went well with the pool crowd!

Vegetable Combo & Pasta

- 1 medium egg plant
- 1 medium zucchini
- 1 red pepper
- 1 large onion
- 2 cups tomato sauce
- 1/2 pound penne, rotini or a favorite small pasta
- 1/4 cup grated parmesan or Romano cheese

Cut the egg plant and zucchini, onion in 1/4 inch slices and the pepper in strips. Place on grill or a lightly greased cookie sheet in a 350 degree oven and cook until tender.

Mix with cooked pasta tomato sauce and grated cheese. It can be served hot or cold, and can be made the day before.

Here is a delicious recipe given by our granddaughter Carly. She said her teacher Miss Farrell said the combination is a great source of calcium and protein.

Miss Farrell's Mix

- 5 tablespoons yogurt (any flavor or plain)
- 5 tablespoons cottage cheese
- 1 cup blueberries and raspberries.

Mix gently until blended.

Rev. Russell Metcalfe Retiring From Ministry

Rev. RUSSELL METCALFE

Rev. Russell Metcalfe, senior pastor of the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene for over 20 years, is retiring from full-time ministry this month.

Following a lifetime of service in the church, Metcalfe and his wife, Helen, announced their upcoming retirement last fall; the church has planned a variety of celebrations in the couple's honor throughout the coming weeks.

On Sunday, June 27, the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene will hold a Celebration of the Ministry service in honor of Metcalfe and his lifetime of dedicated ministry both to the Quincy community and the Church of the Nazarene at large. The service is open to community members and will be held in the sanctuary at 3 p.m.

Metcalfe, known as "Sonny" in his childhood, was born in Nyack, N.Y. in the early 1930s to Russell and Leona Metcalfe. The son of traveling song evangelists, Metcalfe spent the first seven years of his life on the road, accomplishing his earliest school days in constantly changing locations. By early November of his second grade year, "Sonny" had already attended five different schools in the three states, nonetheless managing to "make excellent grades in all of his subjects."

Metcalfe has proven a passion for the ministry of the church since his early days on the road. He preached his first sermon at age six in Oil City, Penn., and sang solos, duets, and trios from toddlerhood.

As one church bulletin from the 1930s explained, Sonny "is only six years old, yet believes that God has called him to preach, and has preached on several different occasions, with many people praying through at an altar of prayer. He is a real boy, full of pep and life and vigor, and yet, when the anointing of God comes upon him in an especial way, he preaches with a seeming understanding of one several years his senior."

In regard to music, another church bulletin remarked, "Sonny has been quite an attraction wherever the Metcalfes have gone. He has been singing since he was 22 months old. He sings solos, takes the alto part in duets, and takes the lead in trios."

As a young man in 1949, Metcalfe officially acknowledged his decision to become a pastor and received his first local preacher's license from the Church of Nazarene in Akron, Ohio. He attended Eastern Nazarene College here in Quincy in the early 1950s and served as a part-time youth leader, Sunday evening chorister, and choir director at the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene. He also traveled for the school throughout his college days in music quartets.

After many moves and changes following his graduation from Eastern Nazarene College, Metcalfe eventually made his way back to Quincy in 1977, assuming the position of senior pastor at the Wollaston Church. In the intervening years he had pastored in Muncie, Indiana;

Cherry Valley and Atwater, Ohio; Butler and Edison, New Jersey; Poughkeepsie, New York; and Melrose, Mass.

Metcalfe became a member of the Board of Trustees of Eastern Nazarene College in 1974, has been a member on the New England Advisory Board and the Board of Credentials, and was a member of the original New York district board at the Lamb's Club in New York City.

Metcalfe received the Doctor of Divinity degree from Eastern Nazarene College in 1987 and his gift for speaking and communicating to congregations has been recognized since his first sermons as a six-year-old. His speaking assignments have included Washington district camp meetings; revivals; retreats; a high school commencement; and baccalaureate services, in addition to decades of weekly preaching.

Transitional Care Unit Receives Perfect Score On Health Survey

Quincy Hospital's Transitional Care Unit (TCU) received a perfect score on a recent Department of Public Health (DPH) survey.

The survey, conducted by the DPH Division of Health care Quality, found the TCU to be in substantial compliance with all applicable requirements for certification in the Medicare and Medicaid programs for long term care facilities. This is the second consecutive year Quincy Hospital's TCU has received a perfect score on the DPH survey.

The DPH survey team arrives unannounced at the TCU each year and monitors the facility for an average of two days. The cleanliness of the facility, quality of care, records, policies and procedures as well as patient activities are scrutinized. The team also observes staff at work and interviews patients and families.

"We are very proud of our staff and facility," said TCU Director Carole Gagnon. "We work hard every day to ensure our patients the very best care and this survey shows we are doing just that."

200 Residents Entered Into Recycling Grand Prize Drawing

Two hundred Quincy residents randomly selected over the past eight weeks for recycling according to contest rules were notified to appear at City Hall Wednesday at 7 p.m. for the $1,000 grand prize drawing.

Although only one person will win $1,000, every entrant who attended the event received a prize made out of recycled material.

"We want people to realize that the plastic, paper, metal and glass they put in their blue bins are made into useful products that can be purchased in Quincy," said Sally Owen, chairperson of the city's Recycling Commission. "In order for recycling to work, it is just as important for consumers to buy products made from recycled materials as it is to put recyclables into their blue bins," Owens added.

All products distributed as prizes contained "post-consumer" recycled content, which means material recycled from household recycle bins as opposed to materials recycled from mill scraps. Almost any glass or metal container has post-consumer content. However, for plastic or paper products, consumers generally need to look for the words "post-consumer" content on the label.

Recycled products given away were donated by The College Book Store, CVS, QUINCY RECYCLING CHAIRWOMAN Sally Owen and Mike Hurley, a commission volunteer, prepare prizes for Wednesday's grand prize drawing at 7 p.m. at City Hall.

The Ink Spot, Kinko's Copies, Osco, The Quincy Sun, Roche Bros., Roseann's, Shaws, Star Market, Stop and Shop, the U.S. Post Office.

"I never realized how many products were made out of recycled materials and are available in Quincy," said Claire Silberman, an intern with the Quincy Recycling Commission.

College Courses, Inc. Donates $110,000 To QC

Quincy College has received $110,000 to develop and operate two interactive distance learning classrooms.

The gift is from College Courses, Inc., the non-profit corporation that operates the college bookstore.

The college will develop a distance learning classroom at its Plymouth and Quincy campuses.

With the new classrooms, the college will be able to conduct and participate in teleconferences as well as deliver instruction to multiple sites from one location.

The college hopes to have both classrooms operational by the beginning of the Fall 1999 semester.

4 Quincy Students On Franklin Dean's List

Four Quincy students have been named to the dean's list at Franklin Institute of Boston for the spring semester.

The students and the programs they are pursuing are Jeffrey M. Baldock, and Alvin P. Lui, and Yiu Kei Ho, Automotive Technology and Quang Chan Tran, Electrical Technology.

MORE FOR LEASE

During the 1999 model year, Whether you purchased or more than 33% of the new vehicles will be leased. Why is auto leasing expected to be more popular than ever? One reason is that a lease gives the right to either walk away from a vehicle or buy it at a set price at the end of the contract. Those who choose the former need not be concerned with selling or trading in their vehicles. People who choose the latter can purchase the vehicles for a set amount. The price of this freedom to purchase a vehicle at the end of its lease is not much more than financing an outright purchase, if one invests the down payment and the difference between loan and lease payments.

Harold Supports Limiting Raytheon Tax Break

Councillor Paul Harold proposed a resolution at Monday night's City Council meeting urging support for state legislation that would limit Raytheon Corporation's state tax break; requiring the company to create and save manufacturing jobs.

Harold said Raytheon was a major beneficiary of a state tax break of $8 million in 1995. The company was supposed to create jobs with the tax break, but instead has laid off more than 1,200 workers since then.

Harold made the proposal after he said, "the company has given employees at the Quincy plant no information on an upcoming closing, in apparent violation of the spirit and the letter of the state's plant closing law."

Recently Raytheon announced an award of one of the largest contracts in the company's history.

A copy of the resolution is being sent to the Quincy legislative delegation, Sen. Fargo and the Massachusetts AFL-CIO.

Summer Institute For Talented Students Opens July 6

The Quincy Public Schools' 18th annual Summer Institute for academically talented and motivated students will be held July 6 through August 20.

The program serves students entering kindergarten through Grade 8.

The Summer Institute is located at North Quincy High School, and offers classes in computer, science, art, Spanish, French, reading, nature, photography and other subjects.

"The Institute is extremely fortunate to have the most caring and enthusiastic teachers who are looking forward to challenging these young inquisitive minds," said Institute Director Sylvia Pattavina, "This is a wonderful learning experience."

Brochures have been forwarded to parents citywide listing a variety of subjects to select from for their children.

There are openings for students entering grades 4-8 in a variety of classes offered at North Quincy High School from July 6-16.

Closing date for applications is June 28. For more information contact Dr. Pattavina at the Quincy Public Schools Administration office by calling 984-8737.

Thayer's Last Chapel Awards Ceremony

Three Quincy students received awards at Thayer Academy's Last Chapel ceremony, an annual awards ceremony held the day before commencements. The ceremony recognizes primarily underclassmen.

They are: Matt Daylor and Laura Janowich, who both received the Bill

Holbrook Memorial Art Prize for Music, and Melissa Zine, the Wellesley College Book Award.

Fr. David White To Enter Society Of Saint James During TV Ceremony

Rev. David White, a parochial vicar at Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy, will be commissioned into the Society of Saint James during a ceremony to be carried live on Boston Catholic Television's Sunday Mass on Sunday, June 27 at 7:30 a.m. on WHDH-TV, Channel 7.

Richard Cardinal Cushing founded the Society of Saint James in 1958. It is an association of diocesan priests whose purpose is to provide services to other diocese critically short of clergy. The society has more than 70 priests serving 500,000 people in 40 parishes in the coastal, jungle and mountainous regions of Bolivia, Peru, and Ecuador.

Asked why he chose to enter the society, Father White said, "a third-world experience is something I've always thought about. I visited Peru on a priest retreat two years ago and I spent two months in the Dominican Republic during the seminary."

Father White's commission begins in early September and will last a minimum of five years.

"During the first four to six months I will learn Spanish and make visits within the three countries the society serves to help make a decision on which area to work in." Father White said he has been at Sacred Heart since June, 1996 after serving at Saint Thomas Aquinas Church in Bridgewater.

The Director of the Society of Saint James, Father Gabriel KTroy, will celebrate the Mass in which Father White will be commissioned into the society. Another priest, Father Terrance McSweeney, from England, will also be commissioned during the televised ceremony.

The Sunday Mass is aired weekly from Channel 7's studios in conjunction with Boston Catholic Television (BCTV). An estimated three million viewers watch the program each Sunday. It is the longest running continuous live program in history, airing every Sunday since January 1, 1955.

Father White has previously celebrated BCTV's Daily Mass, which airs Monday through Friday at 9:30 A.M. from Cardinal Law's residence on Channel 68 and BCTV Cable, and made his first appearance on the Sunday Mass in April. He said the TV Masses, "are a positive use of modern technology to spread the word of God. My father used to watch when he was sick and when I celebrate the TV Mass, I think of him and people like him who cannot get out to church, this is their Mass." He has received letters and comments from viewers, many who are the elderly, sick and homebound, but also from young people he meets on the street that say they have seen him on television.

Billy Chiu Award CPA Foundation Scholarship

Billy Chiu of Quincy has been awarded an Educational Foundation Scholarship from the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Chiu, a graduate of Quincy High School, is pursuing a bachelor of science degree in accounting from the University of Massachusetts, Boston.

Billy has appeared on the Dean's List every semester and sustains a GPA of 3.88. Aside from his academic endeavors, he serves as vice president of the Accounting and Finance Academy, is a member of the L Street Gym Wrestling Club and serves in the Massachusetts Army National Guard.

Every year, the Society presents an Award of Achievement to an outstanding student at each of the 26 Massachusetts colleges and universities offering an accounting major. The recognition of achievement is a way in which to acknowledge years of hard work as well as to encourage students to strive for excellence.

Hurricane Season: A Good Time To Buy Flood Insurance

With hurricane season now here, officials of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) are encouraging renters and property owners -- especially those in Atlantic and Gulf Coast states -- to purchase flood insurance policies now to provide financial protection from floodwaters and storm surge.

"Buying flood insurance is one of the most important things anyone can do to help themselves recover from flood damage," FEMA Director James Lee Witt said. "We're making a concerted effort to communicate that message to the residents of hurricane-prone states before this year's storms start heading their way. We can't stop hurricanes or the widespread floods they cause, but we can prevent them from ruining people's lives."

The National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), administered by FEMA, makes federally backed flood insurance available in communities that adopt and enforce floodplain management ordinances to reduce future flood losses.

Currently, more than 4.1 million policies representing over $485 billion worth of coverage are in force in more than 19,000 participating communities.

"Flood damage -- unlike wind damage -- is not covered by homeowner's or business insurance policies," Witt said. "This coverage must be purchased separately and is available only in communities that participate in the NFIP. And people need to keep in mind that there is a 30-day waiting period before a new flood insurance policy becomes effective."

Witt also had a warning for people who think they can rely on federal disaster assistance in lieu of flood insurance.

"Disaster assistance is only available when the President issues a major disaster declaration," he said. "Even then, it is quite limited -- and usually in the form of a loan that must be repaid with interest. It is hardly a substitute for flood insurance, which also covers losses from small, localized flood events."

"Flood insurance may be purchased through most insurance companies and licensed insurance agents," said Jo Ann Howard, administrator of the Federal Insurance Administration, the part of FEMA that manages the NFIP.

Howard said the maximum coverage amounts for a single-family home are $250,000 for the structure and $100,000 for its contents. Renters may also purchase up to $100,000 of coverage for their personal belongings. Maximum coverage for businesses are $500,000 for buildings and $500,000 for contents.

Howard also pointed out that there are two important exceptions to the 30-day waiting period. First, there is no waiting period following the initial purchase of flood insurance when that purchase is in connection with making, increasing, extending or renewing a mortgage or construction loan; the policy will become effective upon loan closing. Secondly, there is no waiting period if the initial purchase occurs during the 13-month period following the revision or updating of a flood insurance rate map; in this case, the policy will go into effect at 12:01 a.m. the day after purchase.

The NFIP is a self-supporting program. All claims and operating expenses are paid from the policyholder premiums, not tax dollars. Furthermore, it is estimated that flood insurance saves approximately $800 million annually in taxpayer-funded disaster relief costs.

For information about flood insurance, property owners should contact their insurance agent or call the NFIP's toll-free information line at 1-800-427-4661.

Transferred And Need To Sell Your Home?

(NAPS)—You're being transferred! Now what? For most homeowners, quickly finding the resources to prepare, market and sell (or rent) your home can cause enough stress to interfere with productivity at home as well as the office. However, you're not alone. According to a recent Prudential Relocation study, 53 percent of domestic companies surveyed anticipate a continued increase in employee relocation through the year 2000. So while you might be a proud homeowner today, there's a good chance you'll need to think about quickly selling tomorrow. Believe it or not, corporations can reduce stress by helping you rent or sell and find a new home, while saving you enormous tax fees.

If you're trying to sell your home, help make sure a buyer's first impression is a good one. Toss a fresh coat of paint on the walls and clean up the rooms.

The following are steps to help you get started. They include:

Learn Company Policies/Tax Advantages: Oftentimes, corporations hire an outside company to develop a policy package for transferees. A key provision to these policies is an option to sell your home to the company for an appraised price. There are real issues that corporations can utilize and save you a bundle of money. For some employees, this can be a beneficial alternative to managing a sale yourself.

Determine Your Home's Value: Appraisals set the probable value of your home, and usually help decide whether to sell or not. In your case, the decision has been made. Talk to a local real estate broker and get their help to develop a market analysis. They will consider recent selling price of comparable homes, style, age, location, recent construction work and other related factors.

Set A Realistic Asking Price: The use of a competitive market analysis developed by your real estate broker will tell you: the strengths and weaknesses of your home compared to recently sold and competing homes on the market, a recommended list price range, and an overview of local market conditions.

First Impressions ARE Everything: Estimates say more than one-half of all houses are sold before the buyers even leave their cars. You can immediately improve your "curb appeal" by talking with professional counselors who can suggest ways to add low-cost cosmetic life to your home. Landscaping your property, adding new house numbers or a brass door fixture, hanging flowers/plants to the deck or porch area and cleaning your glass storm door and windows can all increase curb appeal.

Mass. Realtors Announces New Scholarships Available

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors'® (MAR) Charitable and Educational Foundation announces a new series of educational grants for individuals pursuing a professional designation or degree program in real estate or another industry-related field.

This year, four $500 educational scholarships are available through the MAR Charitable & Educational Foundation's 1999 Scholarship Fund. To be eligible to receive a scholarship, students must be a resident of Massachusetts pursuing a college-level educational degree program or professional designation (i.e. GRI, CRS, CRB, CCIM, CPM, CREA, SIOR, ALC, LTG) in real estate or another industry-related field of study.

Applications are welcome from both MAR members and the public. However, trustees of the Foundation, members of their immediate family, and relatives of the association president are ineligible to receive scholarship funds.

Qualified applicants must complete a one-page application form and submit it to the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation by Aug. 1. Selected applicants also will be required to appear before the Foundation's Scholarship Committee to complete a personal interview.

Real estate licensees and others interested in learning more about the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation's 1999 Scholarship Fund may contact their local Board of Realtors® or the MAR Customer Service Department at (800) 725-6272 to obtain a brochure and application form.

Preserving And Protecting Your Home

(NAPS)—Experts at some of America's most historic and famous homes have helpful news for today's homeowners.

The National Trust for Historic Preservation wants to remind homeowners that dust and dirt on surfaces can lead to deterioration in many of our nation's most cherished homes. The same holds true for new homes.

Twenty of America's historic sites such as Montpelier, the Woodrow Wilson House and Woodlawn, are preserved and protected by The National Trust. To keep these historic homes free of dust and dirt, they use high quality home filtration and cleaning equipment made by Filter Queen.

As part of Filter Queen's program, Our Nation's Most Cherished Homes Preservation Project, Filter Queen donates products and other services to help preserve the National Trust's historic sites and other historical residential buildings.

Many historic homes, such as Montpelier, use indoor air quality systems to remove dust and dirt.

"There are ways to make cleaning more effective and less time consuming," says Gary Moore, president of the Americas Division of HMI Industries, Inc., Filter Queen's parent company. "For the National Trust's historic sites we use Filter Queen Indoor Air Quality Systems (IAQS)."

Filter Queen IAQS remove the many pollutants and allergens that can linger in indoor air and settle on surfaces, creating a cleaner, healthier environment.

High-quality and high-powered cleaning systems, such as the Filter Queen Majestic, help eliminate dirt and dust on floors and surfaces and return only clean air into the room. In addition, the Defender room air cleaner effectively removes impurities from the air 24-hours-a-day. The Filter Queen IAQS provides filtration levels of 99.98 percent which is far beyond HEPA government standards.

QUINCY ARCHITECT Jim Edwards has provided this rendering of the proposed handicapped access ramp to Adams Academy. A gentle, sloping grade will start from the parking lot behind the building and continue to the left front side, ending at an extended concrete porch. The present granite stairs will be moved.

Historical Society Seeks Go-Ahead Plans Handicapped Accessibility At Academy

By MARILYN JACKSON

The Quincy Historical Society has several ambitious goals as it approaches the millennium.

The first goal is to make the 1872 stone building handicapped accessible.

According to Edward Fitzgerald, director of the historical society, the city's historical commission will review its plans at its next meeting, June 28.

Quincy architect Jim Edwards, who is a member of the board of directors of the historical society, has designed a gentle, gradual slope that will begin slowly from the parking lot behind the building, parallel Dimmock Street and continue along the left front of the building.

"It's so gradual that a rail will not be needed," said Fitzgerald. But to make room for the slope to connect with the entryway, the red-stained concrete porch and granite stairs will be extended toward Adams Street.

"It's taken about a year to get to this point," said Fitzgerald who is optimistic that the work could begin during this building season.

Mayor James Sheets said some Community Development Block Grant funds would be available to make the building accessible.

Fitzgerald said the estimated cost of the project is about $50,000. "This modification will be far less intrusive to the building than anything that could be done at the rear of the building," which presently is used as the main entrance. "To do the back [entrance] would have called for much more violation of the building," said Fitzgerald.

The second goal is to reconfigure the traffic flow on the first floor, he said. The gift shop, which is located in a pass-through between the front and back entrances, would have to be moved and the exhibits would have to be realigned, which could lead to an expanded exhibit area, he said.

Before any interior changes are made, however, the historical society will need to secure permission from the Adams Temple and School Fund which owns the building and approval from the building inspector.

"We would like to tie this work to the millennium year and complete it during the year 2000," said Fitzgerald. He said the society would have to raise funds for the work.

The third goal calls for creating a new, comprehensive core exhibit for the South Gallery, and take full advantage of the Holly Room as a meeting and performance area.

"We would be looking at seeking financial support or in-kind donations for this project," he said.

"We're trying to do as much in-house as possible for cost-efficiency," said Fitzgerald. "As for content of the exhibits, we have to develop that ourselves."

He added that he has had some preliminary discussions with design firms as to how to present the exhibits in the most effective way.

The historical society has eight different themes, focusing on the earliest years of Quincy and continuing into the 21st century.

One of the exhibits focuses on the city's beginnings, when the first Europeans met the Native Americans. This exhibit will focus on Thomas Morton's Settlement and Merry-mount, Mount Wollaston and Old Brintree.

Another exhibit will present the story of John Adams and the Revolutionary generation which included John Hancock, Josiah Quincy and Joseph Palmer. This display also will focus on the making of the U.S. Constitution (John Adams wrote the Massachusetts Constitution after which the federal document was modeled), and the rise of John Quincy Adams.

The early search for economic prosperity will look at Winthrop's Iron Furnace, the Germantown Glass Works, Solomon Willard and Gridley Bryant and the Quincy quarries and monuments. This exhibit also will focus on the regional and national significance of Quincy in the development of architecture and technology.

As Quincy changed from a town to a city in the late 1800s, the community was growing rapidly, and many immigrants were settling in Quincy. John Quincy Adams was a congressman, the third and fourth generations of the Adams family assumed a great role in the community's development as it developed into a street-car suburb of Boston. Other leaders at the time included Francis Parker and Thomas Crane, and Quincy was becoming nationally influential as the birthplace of the educational reform movement.

Shipbuilding played a significant role in Quincy's economy, from colonial times to the present, but the real heyday was the first half of the 20th century at the Fore River Shipyard. During World War II the yard produced some of the greatest warships and subsequently built some of the biggest commercial and passenger ships of the time.

A seventh display will focus on 20th century Quincy and its suburban trends. Several national businesses started in Quincy — Grossman's, Howard Johnson's and Dunkin' Donuts — which will be recognized in this exhibit.

Lastly, the new Americans will be the theme of another exhibit, highlighting their pursuit of a dream, just as others did 75, 150 and 375 years ago.

Expanding the core exhibits will require fundraising efforts as well, said Fitzgerald. "We've been working on this for a long time."

Free Tours June 27 At Josiah Quincy House

Free tours of the Josiah Quincy House on Muirhead St. will be offered to the public Sunday, June 27 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Light refreshments will be served. For directions and more information call The Society For the Preservation of New England Antiquities headquarters at 617-227-3956.

In 1770, Revolutionary War leader Colonel Josiah

Quincy built the elegant country estate surrounded by fields and pastures and overlooking Quincy Bay. Tours of the house include a visit to the third floor "monitor," from which vantage point Josiah Quincy could see the bay. The view today speaks of Quincy's history and development from rural farm-land to residential neighborhood.

For generations, the Quincys, like the Adamses to whom they are related, played important roles in the social and political life in Massachusetts and the nation. The family produced three Boston mayors and a president of Harvard University. The house, considered to be one of the finest extant examples of New England Georgian architecture, is a repository of the Quincy family history.

The Josiah Quincy House is one of 35 historic house museums owned and operated by the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities (SPNEA), headquartered in Boston, in a museum of cultural history that preserves, interprets and collects buildings, landscapes, and objects reflecting New England life from the 17th century to the present.

Allerton House Recognized For Encouraging Volunteer Opportunities

Sarah Anne Frazier, director of Residents Services for Allerton House at Hancock Park, represented Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center at a recent luncheon for volunteer coordinators sponsored by Quincy's Head Injury

Community Services. Head Injury Community Services works to place brain injured people into volunteer sites that will enhance their skills and knowledge of job placement possibilities.

Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center has had a very successful partnership with HICS for over two years, with HICS volunteers working in Hancock Park's laundry department, setting tables for meal time, and one-on-one activities with residents in the nursing home and at Atherton House, Hancock Park's Assisted Living Community.

Frazier continues to work with HICS encouraging volunteer opportunities. A volunteer recognition certificate was awarded to Frazier and Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center at the luncheon.

Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center is owned and managed by Norwell-based Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, and is a 142-bed skilled rehabilitation and nursing center that also provides sub-acute care, specialized Alzheimer's programs, adult day care, and assisted living residences.

Junk Yard Dust, Early Hours Irk Residents

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board will ask David Sugarman, owner of Sugarman's on 299 Centre St. to attend the June 29 meeting to discuss complaints received from residents regarding late hours and Sunday operations.

Sugarman did not attend Tuesday's meeting.

Shea read a letter from Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, who said over a year ago, before the business went into temporary closure, the board had requested detailed plans regarding the operation of the business.

They included a loading zone area and a yard schematic of the operation. D'Amico said this was never done.

D'Amico questioned whether the For Sale sign means anything and what the real status of the business is after receiving calls from abutters about the early hours of operation. D'Amico called the current situation as "bad as it has been".

Two residents who live across the street from the junk yard told the board that Sugarman's began operating at 1 a.m. on Sunday and on the Memorial Day weekend, all night long until the police were called. They cited loud noises and dust.

Joyce Jenkins and Nancy Bush questioned whether the clouds of dust are from chemicals. They both testified that their homes are virtually full of dust where they have to wash coffee tables twice a day.

Shea said he and the board will have to redefine the rules and hours given to Sugarman last year when the complaints first surfaced. He said the rules stated that no business before 7 a.m. or after 8 p.m. should be conducted.

He said he had contacted Sugarman about the early hours, and was told it was for a "special project" that had to be done at that time.

He added that David Sugarman has held a license for the junk yard for 28 years. And the Sugarman family has held a license for 50 years.

Shea said they are conflicting signs on the property about closing and also a for sale sign at other times.

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said Sugarman must bring a dust control plan at the meeting.

The board continued the hearing until June 29.

3 New Quincy College Programs For Busy Adults

Quincy College has announced three new programs in hopes of attracting busy adults.

"These three new programs exemplify our effort to deliver programs in a fast, focused, flexible manner," college president Dr. G. Jeremiah Ryan said.

The three new programs are:

A 15-month degree program in Liberal Arts and Business. This program guides students through a speedier completion of degree that normally takes 24 months or longer to finish.

An External Degree in Liberal Arts and Business. This program awards more credits for life experience and a higher amount of transfer credits for other institutions so that students may finish their Quincy degree more quickly.

A General Studies Degree which enables students to design their own major to best meet their needs and to best match their experience.

All three programs are now available and applications for the Fall 1999 term are being accepted.

Summer Kindergarten At Beechwood

A Summer Kindergarten Enrichment Camp is being offered to Quincy families this summer announces Diana Stacey, Director of Children's Services at Beechwood on the Bay.

"During the school years, we offer a full-day Kindergarten program taught by credentialed educators," she said. "In the summer we modify the full-day program to two-three-or five-day enrollment choices, taking advantage of our well-situated site for outdoor learning opportunities "on the Bay".

Developed in response to parents' requests, the Summer Kindergarten is a "blended" class for both children who have just completed kindergarten, and those who will be starting in the fall.

Summer Kindergarten is open to all children ages 5-6, whether enrolled in Quincy Public Schools or in Beechwood prior to the summer session.

For more information about Beechwood's Summer Kindergarten, other summer offerings, or the private Kindergarten (Sept-June), call 617-471-5712.

Cancer Society Offers Tips For Skin Cancer Prevention

The American Cancer Society estimates that more than one million new cases of skin cancer will be diagnosed this year. The most serious form of skin cancer, melanoma, is expected to be diagnosed in about 44,200 persons nationally and in about 1,200 persons in Massachusetts in 1999.

A recent survey commissioned by the American Academy of Dermatology showed that fewer than one-third of Americans currently examine their skins for melanoma, and more than half don't know the signs of melanoma. Only about one-third of Americans even know what melanoma is.

When treated its earliest stage, melanoma can be cured. If not treated early, the disease can quickly spread to other parts of the body and can be fatal. Of the estimated 9,200 skin cancer deaths this year, 7,300 of them will be due to melanoma, according to the American Cancer Society. Since the 1970s, the incidence of melanoma has increased about four percent per year.

While early detection is important, the most effective way of fighting skin cancer is prevention. The American Cancer Society recommends the following sun safety tips:

- Use a sunscreen with an SPF of 15 or higher. Sunscreens should be reapplied every two hours, or after swimming or perspiring heavily. Use sunscreen even on cloudy days and while you are swimming; the sun's rays can reach through three feet of water. If a sunscreen causes a skin reaction, try a different brand. People with sensitive skin may want to choose a sunscreen that is PABA-free.

- Decrease sun exposure between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. The sun's rays are strongest during the midday hours. Try to plan outdoor activities for early morning or late afternoon.

- Wear clothing that protects your skin. Hats, visors and long-sleeved shirts offer the best protection against the sun's rays.

- Be aware of surfaces that reflect. Water, sand, concrete and snow all reflect the sun's rays. Be sure to take precautions when boating, skiing or walking on the beach.

- Don't use sun lamps, tanning parlors, or tanning pills. They can be just as harmful to your body as the sun.

For more information about skin cancer, call the American Cancer Society's information line at 1-800-ACS-2345 or log on to the on-line information Web site at www.cancer.org.

Breast Cancer Prevention Study Being Offered To Women In Quincy

Women in Quincy and throughout Greater Boston will have an opportunity to be part of a national study that will compare the effectiveness of tamoxifen and raloxifene, two promising breast cancer prevention drugs.

To be eligible, women must first undergo a risk assessment. Commonwealth Hematology-Oncology, based in Quincy, will be setting up appointments for such evaluations.

CHO was chosen to be one of the major clinical sites for this study, which will involve about 22,000 postmenopausal women nationwide, aged 35 or older, who are at increased risk for the development of breast cancer.

CHO will be collaborating with physicians and staff at Quincy Hospital to screen and evaluate women who wish to participate.

"Women who believe they may be appropriate candidates for this study are encouraged to speak with their primary care physicians or call us (617-479-3550) for a Risk Assessment Profile and an evaluation," said Walt Kagan, MD, PhD, president of Commonwealth Hematology-Oncology. "They will be evaluated regarding eligibility criteria and contraindications."

To be eligible, women must be postmenopausal.

They must also have an increased risk of developing breast cancer because of a family history of breast cancer, or have a personal history of breast biopsies that have shown changes, such as lobular carcinoma in situ (LCIS) or atypical ductal hyperplasia (ADH).

A woman's risk will be calculated by CHO medical oncologists, who will use a breast cancer risk assessment computer program generated by the National Cancer Institute and the NSABP Biostatistical Center. Risk factors also include age, age at first live birth, race, and hysterectomy status.

"If women meet the criteria of risk assessment, we will discuss with them the potential benefits and risks of participating in the study, which is completely volunteer," said Dr. Kagan.

In the study, women will be randomly assigned to receive either 20 mg. of tamoxifen or 60 mg. of raloxifene for five years. Women will self-administer the pills daily and receive two medical check-ups as well as a mammography screening during the year. Pills will be provided free of charge by the manufacturer.

According to Dr. Kagan, tamoxifen is already FDA-approved for the treatment as well as prevention of breast cancer. Raloxifene is still in clinical trials for its use as preventive therapy. Initial findings are that raloxifene may present less risk of endometrial cancer compared to tamoxifen. A goal of the national comparison study is to determine more definitively whether raloxifene reduces this risk.

The study will also include a review of related quality of life issues, based on the experiences of trial participants.

"If eligible women are reluctant to participate in the study, they may still be good candidates for tamoxifen," Dr. Kagan said. Dr. Kagan recently returned from a conference of the American Society of Clinical Oncology, which recommended that tamoxifen "may be offered" by physicians to women who have at least a 1.7% risk of getting breast cancer during the next five years. About 29 million women, or 20% of the U.S. female population, are in this category.

Available since 1978 as a treatment for breast cancer, tamoxifen can, according to Dr. Kagan, also cut women's risk of developing the disease almost in half.

For more information on the tamoxifen/raloxifene breast cancer prevention trial, call 617-479-3550.

After Season-Opening Win Over Quincy Morrisette Frustrated By Four 1-Run Losses

By CHRIS POISSON

After a season-opening win against Quincy #95, Morrisette has been dealt four of a kind, as in four straight one-run losses.

The latest bust was a 6-5 loss to Randolph Monday night at Adams Field.

Morrisette (1-4) has to regroup quickly before it hosts West Roxbury tonight and Canton Saturday night at Adams Field.

All four losses have come in the last inning.

"It's just so frustrating," said Morrisette manager Ray Cattaneo. "We can't get a victory. It's almost like we're snake-bitten."

Morrisette trailed 6-4 going into the seventh inning and scored a run to cut the lead to 6-5. It had another runner on base before Randolph south paw Mark Rosen shut the door on Morrisette's comeback bid.

"We're not getting the hits when we need them," said Cattaneo. "We have to turn this around shortly. We just need a couple of victories to get us going."

Rosen, one of the top pitchers in the state, baffled Morrisette hitters all night long. He went the distance, scattering nine hits, allowing three earned runs and fanning 14. Rosen also added a hit and scored two runs.

Nick Reuter went 2-for-4 with three RBI and Brian DeSousa had a hit and scored two runs to pace the Randolph attack.

Matt McCann (0-2) took the loss for Morrisette. He pitched 6 1/3 innings, allowing seven hits and three earned runs, but was a bit wild with five walks.

LEGION BASEBALL

Firstbaseman Rob Celata went 2-for-4 with a RBI. Secondbaseman Adam Goodrich had a good night at the plate going 2-for-3 and Keith Doherty had a hit and two RBI.

In its last game, June 17, Morrisette dropped another close one, 6-5, at Braintree.

Braintree trailed 5-3 going into the seventh inning and rallied to score three runs on a pair of errors by thirdbaseman John Gavin and rightfielder Shawn Manning.

Celata picked up the loss, allowing eight hits, three earned runs and three walks in six innings pitched.

Celata and Doherty had two RBI, and catcher Billy Walker had two hits.

In the previous game, June 15, Morrisette fell, 3-2, at Milton.

Again, Morrisette failed to hold the lead in the last inning. Doherty walked the No. 8 and No. 9 hitters and they eventually came around to score the winning runs on back-to-back singles.

Doherty pitched 6 2/3 innings, giving up three runs on seven hits. He walked three but did strike out seven.

Walker, Gavin and Manning had multiple hit games.

Morrisette opened the season with an 8-1 victory over its cross-town rival, the Quincy Post, as Rob Celata hurled a complete game, striking out 12 and yielding up only two hits.

The hits came after two were out in the top of the seventh.

Celata also went four-for-four at the plate, scored three runs and had two RBIs.

Helping out at the bat were teammates Keith Doherty with two doubles and two RBIs, Chris Bregoli with two hits in two trips to the plate and Shaun Manning, who went two-for-five.

Also chipping in with base hits were John Gavin and Joe Flynn.

Quincy Post pitcher Kevin Walsh also had a good game, keeping the Morrisette bats quiet until he tired in the sixth inning.

Three costly errors added up to three unearned runs and a 7-6 victory by Weymouth over Morrisette.

Pitcher Matt McCann was the victim of shoddy glove work as he went six and two thirds innings, giving up eight hits, striking out eight and walking just one batter.

Celata continued to shine at the plate, going three-for-four and driving in two runs.

Bregoli remained perfect at bat with one hit in one trip and Doherty, Manning, Flynn and Gavin also had single hits.

Weymouth pitcher Ryan Morgan was tough on the Morrisette batter for six and two-thirds innings, striking out 11 and walking four.

He gave up four runs in the bottom of the seventh to make it close but great relief from Joe Hawkins, who struck out the last batter with the bases loaded.

The camp will be taught by Lou Venturelli, head coach at Quincy High School and Dan Regan, head coach at North Quincy High School. The camp will cost $37. For more information call the Recreation Office at 376-1386.

Quincy Native Eyes NHL Draft Saturday

But College Hockey Will Be Next Stop For Prospect Mike Ryan

Even though Quincy native Mike Ryan plans to go to college next fall, he has another important date circled on his calendar - the National Hockey League draft Saturday at the FleetCenter.

Hockey News has picked the B.C. High graduate to go as the 54th selection, while Central Scouting has him penciled in as the 38th. Either spot would suit Ryan.

"I'm really not exactly sure what to think," said Ryan, son of John Ryan, a Quincy police sergeant and Elizabeth. "It would be nice to go somewhere that high."

Ryan decided not to follow the trend of high school superstars jumping straight into the professional ranks; instead, he opted to make a pit stop on Huntington Avenue, as he received a full scholarship to Northeastern University.

"I'm definitely going to Northeastern," said Ryan. "I'm pretty excited. They're a young and upcoming team and they have a well-respected coach (former Boston Bruin Bruce Crowder)."

MIKE RYAN NHL Prospect

Ryan didn't want to jinx himself by revealing which team he hopes to get drafted by, but he did say he would like to get picked by a veteran team.

"I'd like an older team, where I can get an opportunity to play in a few years down the road," said Ryan. It would be better than going to a young team that needs you right away."

The 6-1, 175 pound center played two years at B.C. High where he tallied 44 goals and 38 assists. Ryan skated for Milton High School during his freshman and sophomore years, before transferring to B.C. High, where he had to sit out a year.

"It was real hard," Ryan said. "But I got lucky. I grew a couple inches that year and I had a chance to work on other things. It helped in the long run."

Ryan lived in Quincy until the age of six before moving to Milton. He started to play hockey at the age of five in a Quincy youth league. Although he moved the next year, he remained in the Quincy youth leagues until he was 15.

"Quincy just had better youth programs; so I came back for them," said Ryan, who still returns to Quincy a few times a week to skate.

Heavyweight Steven Scigliano Headlines Boxing Card At Armory

STEVEN SCIGLIANO who passed away in 1983, the night O'Malley's Gym opened.

As an amateur, Scigliano boasted a perfect 16-0 record and was named one of the 10 toughest people in Boston by the Improper Bostonian Magazine.

In other heavyweight bouts, Dorchester's Pepe Munuz clashes with Holyoke's Juan Quintana and Kevin McBride (Clones, Ireland) takes on Domingo Monroe (Providence, RI).

In lightweight action, Eddie McAloney (Pembroke) matches up against Martin Moore (Derry, Ireland) and Jimmy LeBlanc (South Boston) battles Michael Corleone (New York).

Pat Bregoli Spins No-Hitter; Golden Print Downs Morrisette

Pat Bregoli dazzled Barry's Deli as he spun a no-hitter in the Elks 4-1 victory in recent Babe Ruth action.

Bregoli fanned 10 and the lone run came as a result of two errors in the seventh inning.

Brian Weeks came through with a clutch hit and Dan Duggan shined at third base.

The Elks finished the season with a league-best 17-1 record.

The Elks - 10

Houghs Neck - 5

Chris Ham picked up the win with nine strikeouts and he also chipped in with a double.

TK Kelly smacked a two-run single in the fifth inning to spark the offense. Dan Duggan had another strong day at the plate with four hits.

The Elks - 8

Houghs Neck - 3

Brian O'Hanly collected the win and helped his own cause with two scorching doubles.

Justin Hall did his part with a pair of hits.

Golden Print righthander John O'Connell limited Morrisette to three hits and drove in two runs himself to win 5-4 in Babe Ruth League action.

Giklden Print scored two runs in the first inning on a walk, a hit and a sacrifice fly by Pete Turowski.

Ryan Feldhoff's hit in the fourth frame scored Dan DiNardo, who had singled and stolen second.

Golden Print scored its final two runs in the fifth on a leadoff single by Matt Germaine followed by a double from the bat of Steve Pizzi, who scored on a fly ball by O'Connell.

Morrisette scored three runs on the first inning on a key hit by Jimmy Johnson.

They lost a potential run in the third when a good relay from Germaine to Pizzi cut down Dennis Thomson's scoring attempt.

James LaFleur allowed the Golden Print batters only six hits and walked two.

LaFleur added a single to the attack as did Andrew McAllister.

Jack Liuzzo played well

Boys' Soccer Camp Starts June 28

The Quincy Recreation Department is accepting registration for its Boys Soccer Camp, which will be held June 28 - July 2.

Registration will be taken on a first come, first serve basis at the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said the focus of the camp will be on the fundamentals of soccer with a particular emphasis on the skills of passing, trapping, heading, dribbling and shooting. Participants will receive instruction from high school coaches as well as local high school players. Lectures, demonstrations, individual and team strategies will also be covered.

The camp will be under the direction of Mark Scanlan, high school coach and collegiate player, and is open to boys 9-14 years of age. It will be held at Atlantic Middle School, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The cost is $37.

For more information call the Recreation Office at 376-1386.

JEFF RUSSELL of Quincy had an 8-2 record and a 3.06 ERA for the Suffolk University baseball team, which compiled a 24-125 season's mark, the second 20-win season in a row. Russell struck out 89 in 73 innings.

Quincy D.A.R.E. Fares Well Over Yellow Cab

Pitcher Brian O'Dea had three hits and his team scored 11 runs in the first inning as Quincy D.A.R.E. routed Yellow Cab, 14-3, in Triple AAA baseball play.

Erik Smith, Steve Nelson and Danny Mulligan also wielded big bat for D.A.R.E. while Anthony Adams and Bob Leahy turned in defensive gems in the outfield.

John Dahlquist played a solid second base while Ben Johnson called an excellent game from behind the plate.

Brendan Clifford with three hits and Bryan Donelin with two played well for Yellow Cab.

Domenic Poli improved his undefeated season's record to four wins and a tie with an eight strike out complete game performance. He struck out the side in the sixth and final inning.

He also drove in the first run of the game.

The best of many fine defensive plays came in the fourth when first baseman John Grillo ranged to his right to knock down a hard hit ball and flip to Poli covering first to get the runner by a step.

Grillo also reached base twice and scored a run.

Jason Purves helped the offense with a hit, a walk, four stolen bases and two runs scored.

John Benoit made a great run-saving catch in the outfield.

Steven Young went the distance and fanned 13 to improve his record to 3-0 in Quincy P.A.L.'s win against Flavin & Flavin in recent Triple AAA action.

TRIPLE A

David Cordiero stroked a double and a single and scored two runs. John Benoit had a bunt single and added two more runs.

Pete Grillo picked up his first hit of the season to knock in a run in the first inning.

Tom Henry made another spectacular running catch in the outfield and he also contributed at the plate with a hit and two runs scored.

Derek Young and Matt Edgerly each had singles and scored a run for Flavin & Flavin.

Quincy P.A.L. 8
Local 2222 - 3

Jason Purves racked up his fourth win of the season as he punched out 14 batters in his complete-game effort.

Purves also had a single and scored a run.

Danny Poggi led off the game by ripping a double and scored the first run later in the inning.

Alex Hardy was one hit away from the cycle. He had a single, double and a triple that was six inches short of a home run. John Grillo banged out three hits and scored twice.

For Local 2222, Chris Tierney had two hits and a run scored, and made a gold glove play at third base when he snagged a line drive.

Todd Shofield reached base twice and scored a run. Corey Lumaghini had a hit and played strong defensively at second base and at catcher.

Barbara Fernandez To Participate In Special Olympics World Games

Barbara Fernandez of North Quincy will travel to North Carolina this summer to participate in the 10th Special Olympics World Summer Games.

Fernandez will play on the bowling team as part of the Massachusetts delegation, which at 98 athletes and 28 coaches, is the largest delegation in the world to attend the Games.

Spillane & Epstein - 6
Yellow Cab - 5

Matt Young (6-0) knothced the win and also scored twice and had a RBI.

Cody Daniels had a two-run hit in the fifth inning, which proved to be the game-winning hit.

Brian Marsters played solid defensively at first base.

Brendan Clifford pitched great for Yellow Cab with seven strikeouts in four innings.

Yellow Cab trailed 6-2 going into the sixth inning and scored three runs on hits by Matthew Clifford, Chris O'Brien and Bryan Donelin, but that was as close as they got.

Justin Boyd had a perfect night at the plate, going 3-for-3.

Spillane & Epstein - 10
Quincy P.A.L. - 8

Kyle Daniels went 3-for-3 and had three RBI to bring his season total to 32.

Brendan Marsters went 3-for-4 with a RBI, and Jimmy Mullaney, Frankie Sorrento, Nick Lavie and Taylor Breen had hits in the last inning to regain the lead for S & E.

Matt Young struck out 13 on his way to picking up the win.

For P.A.L., John Murray was strong on the mound with 15 strikeouts.

Daniel Poggi had a double and a run scored and Derek Riihimaki also scored a run and made a fine grab in left field.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

A wise person once said, "Nothing more is needed to make a man unhappy than to believe he is." ...

Through the years, we all have made mistakes. We all have had certain habits, moods, fears and feelings of guilt which have kept us restless and unhappy at certain times. Yet it is possible to turn from the inadequate and unhappy things of life and begin living a new life. This can be done by deciding we are through with unhappiness ... we are going to cast unhappiness behind us ...

TRUE... there is some unhappiness that can never be cast aside, but some of it can ... TRUE... we need constantly to remind ourselves that we can be about as happy as we make up our minds up to be ... TRUE... circumstances play a part in our lives - but isn't it also true that willpower and faith play an important part? ... TRUE it is never too late to change. This has become a truth so often repeated that it is a truism.

Couldn't it be said that happiness can be ours when we are supported by this hope and confidence? ...

Hospital Affiliation Moves Ahead

and the mayor also would be required if emergency services at the hospital were to be terminated.

A two-thirds vote only of the board of governors of the new entity would be required to discontinue a major clinical service. The board of governors will include four mayoral appointees, four Quincy hospital staff members and six BMC staff members as well as the dean of the Boston University School of Medicine or his designee and the new chief executive officer.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond succeeded in incorporating an expanded hospital mission statement into the body of the petition.

Then, they voted unanimously to support the petition.

The councillors' overwhelming concerns about the petition — and the proposed affiliation — were twofold: That health care services would continue to be provided at Quincy Hospital and that the city and its taxpayers would be protected financially from future liabilities should the new entity fail.

Moche explained that the new entity would assume the city's $57 million of general obligation bonds, which were issued in 1993. At that time, the hospital paid in full a $1.9 million insurance premium against a default. Hospital director Doran said that resulted in a "more than $8 million savings" in the cost of the bonds to the city and improved the city's credit rating.

Doran added that the hospital is current on its repayment schedule for both principal and interest.

"We've never missed a payment," said Doran, adding that principal and interest costs $5.6 million annually.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he expected to meet with members of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's staff today (Thursday) to continue efforts to secure $23 million in federal funds to facilitate the affiliation with BMC.

He said the council's approval of the home rule petition and the memorandum of understanding reached with the hospital unions as well as the agreements the city has entered with BMC all point to the seriousness and the need to keep Quincy Hospital open.

The fact that the proposed affiliation would expand BMC's ability to offer the HealthNet plan to some additional 10,000 uninsured or underinsured residents in Quincy alone is especially attractive to Kennedy and his staff and to other federal officials.

HealthNet is offered not only in Boston but in the Greater Brockton area as well, Sheets said.

Sheets added that he is continuing to work with various state agencies as well to secure $12 million in state funds. He said Gov. Paul Cellucci is supportive of the proposed affiliation.

At last week's national mayor's conference in New Orleans, Sheets said he chatted with Boston Mayor Thomas Menino about Quincy Hospital.

"He told me, 'I know what you're going through,'" said Sheets. Boston University Medical Center acquired Boston City Hospital three years ago.

"We talked about a joint press conference," Sheets continued. "He was very pleased to see the affiliation developing between Quincy Hospital and BMC."

Working toward a common goal to approve, the home rule petition, the councillors expressed some frustration Monday night that revisions to the final document had been made at 6:30 p.m., barely a half-hour before they were to begin a public hearing on another matter.

Madden explained that some of the changed language focused on wording related to the hospital union coalition; other language was incorporated at the urging of bond counsel in order to comply with Internal Revenue requirements.

Hospital director Doran said the home rule petition allows the city to sever as many ties to the hospital, especially regarding its debt. By transferring the real estate to the new entity, it could turn around and use it as equity for any borrowings it may wish to undertake.

Bond counsel Moche said there is a six-month window of opportunity for the new entity to refinance the hospital debt. Bondholders would have no recourse against the assets of the city if the new entity failed, he emphasized, but they would be allowed to try to recover payments made by the new hospital entity on the outstanding hospital bonds should it fail.

On Tuesday, Sheets outlined how the financing for the transfer of the hospital will take place, pledging the city to provide more than $33 million over a six-year period.

For fiscal year 1999, he has proposed that the city pick up four hospital costs, using city reserve funds — $396,000 for FICA, $92,000 for stop/loss, $2.4 million for hospital pensions and $256,000 for unemployment — which total $3.144 million.

Sheets said he would ask the council to set aside $2.5 million in the stabilization fund specifically for hospital costs, and ask that another $1 million be placed in the stabilization fund to be kept there permanently.

"If everything goes well, in September or October, I will ask for an appropriation of $2.25 million for the hospital, which would be charged against the fiscal year 2000 revenue."

Sheets said those funds would be derived from adding 38 cents per $1,000 valuation to the residential tax rate. (Approximately 79 cents per $1,000 valuation would be added to the commercial and industrial tax rate, assuming that the council and assessors keep the same ratios between the two rates.)

For fiscal year 2000, the city would pick up the costs for malpractice insurance ($750,000); interest on a $7 million line of credit with Citizens Bank ($425,000); FICA ($131,000) and closing costs (nearly $1.3 million). "These are hospital bills the city must pay," said Sheets.

In addition, in fiscal year 2000, the city will set aside $1.8 million for workers compensation and slightly more than $1.9 million for a payment to the new entity.

Sheets has estimated additional payments of $4,588,667 would be made to the new Quincy hospital for the following four fiscal years, with a payment of $5,392,818 in fiscal year 2005.

Sheets said if the city's projected revenues fall, there would be an additional sum added to the tax rate "which would be minor." He suggested that perhaps 17 cents per $1,000 valuation would have to be added for a couple of years.

Sheets acknowledged that the city does not levy the full amount of taxes allowed under state law but added he would not propose "taxing to the max" either. In fiscal year 1999, the city could have raised an additional $4 million through taxation. "That [cushion] is only for emergencies, he said.

And, he reiterated he would not propose any new long-term borrowing to finance the hospital debt. "This budget [for fiscal year 2000] is as tight as this year's," said Sheets.

The council is expected to act on the proposed $165 million budget next Monday.

At the end of Monday night's council meeting, Councillor Bruce Ayers, who also is a state representative, said he learned that the home rule petition could be passed by voice vote in an informal legislative session if there are no objections. Ayers added he already had obtained sponsor sheets for the home rule petition to be signed by the Quincy delegation.

"We're not out of the woods yet," cautioned Councillor-at-large Timothy Cahill, who also serves as county treasurer. "We must push this through the State House and push state and federal authorities to come through with the funding.

"In some ways, this is unique," he continued. "We're breaking new ground, but we must keep [our] public mission."

Earlier in the meeting, Cahill criticized efforts by the councillors to insert language in the petition which would have given them more say about the new facility.

"The new entity is not looking for the council to be involved...If we try to micromanage, we will be returning to the '60s, '70s when the mayors and the city council made every decision," Cahill said.

Local Children Help Raise Funds For UNICEF

Youngsters from seven local schools and churches were among the organizations participating in a fund-raising drive which generated more than $375,000 for needy kids in developing countries.

Available funds helped UNICEF respond immediately to alleviate the suffering of Kosovar refugees: UNICEF runs make-shift schools for children in refugee camps, trained UNICEF staff works with children in need of war-trauma counseling, and deliver essential supplies daily to the needy. Donations of millions of dollars from children and adults have made it possible for UNICEF to continue its work.

Funds collected through "trick-or-treating for UNICEF" provide much needed water, vaccinations, education and medical help to children in 160 developing countries. Projects designed to abolish harmful child labor continue because money is available. The threat of malnutrition reduces significantly when UNICEF funds health education programs in places where poor nutrition causes the death of 1 out of every 50 children.

Students from the following organizations in Quincy who participated in the UNICEF "trick or treating" fundraiser are:

Central Middle School, Lincoln Hancock School, Broad Meadows Middle School, Atlantic Middle School Student Council, Quincy High School, United First Parish Church and Montclair Elementary School.

Besides helping the world's neediest children, UNICEF New England provides curriculum guides, videos, orange boxes and other materials that teach kids about global awareness. Schools, religious organizations and social groups in local communities may order these materials by calling (800) 252-KIDS.

Kolson Proposes $1 Million For Sidewalks

tioned that whatever funds are allowed for sidewalk repair be fairly divided among the wards after Councillors Michael D'Amico and Patrick McDermott expressed concern about the money being equally divided.

D'Amico didn't want his ward "short-changed by such a plan."

McDermott acknowledged that the city's sidewalks were "clearly a problem throughout the city." He was also concerned that Kolson's proposal would leave his ward out.

Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill voted against both proposals because he believes that Quincy is "not out of the woods yet with the hospital."

Kolson's proposal was passed 5-4 with Councillors Cahill, D'Amico, McDermott and McCauley voting against it. McCauley's proposal was also passed at Monday night's meeting. He estimated the cost of his appropriation to the average single-family household to be $12.65 annually.

Work, Inc. Seeking Youths For Urban Collaborative Program

Through a partnership with the Massachusetts Department of Mental Retardation and WORK, Inc., the Urban Youth Collaborative Program gives youths (age 18-23) a chance to gain "real life" experience by working closely with people with disabilities.

This program, which begins July 1, is currently looking for qualified candidates.

The Urban Youth Collaborative Program is creating awareness among high school and college students about jobs in human services. Those students in the pre-vocational program are not mere "extra hands," but work side-by-side with WORK Inc.'s staff.

The Urban Youth Collaborative Program is an 8-week summer training program and pays $8 an hour. Additionally, there may be opportunities for full-time employment at the end of the program.

For more information, call Cheryl Windle at WORK, Inc. at 617-691-1803.

CRITIC'S CORNER

THE LOVE LETTER: In the wake of the "Star Wars" madness, I thought I'd take a second look at this one. Take it as the "anti-Star Wars" movie, the one you won't have to give up your firstborn to see!

Kate Capshaw stars as Helen MacFarquhar, the owner of a bookstore on Cape Cod in the fictional town of Loblobly (love that name!). Under her employ are her friend, Janet (Ellen DeGeneres), and two college kids, Johnny (Tom Everett Scott) and Jennifer (Julianne Nicholson). A regular patron of the store is another chum, George, played by Tom Selleck. George is the town's fireman and obviously was once romantically interested in Helen.

The fun begins when Helen finds an unsigned letter which begins: "Do you know how in love with you

I am?" Somehow, Helen thinks Johnny wrote it to her. However, Johnny, in turn, thinks Helen wrote it to him. Separated in age by a full 20 years, the two begin a tentative affair. This leaves poor Jennifer out in the cold. She loves Johnny, but she won't tell him. The affair leads to a revelation for Helen. She doesn't love Johnny; she has feelings for George.

When Janet finds the letter, she begins fantasizing as well. She's married and has children, but that doesn't stop her from dreaming. Added to the mix are Helen's mother (Blythe Danner) and grandmother (Gloria Stuart). We don't really know why they come to town, but they add to the comedy and intrigue.

This is a feel-good romantic comedy. If you're looking for relief from sci-fi madness, this is it!

Your Horoscope

by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Stay alert and flexible as you anticipate the unforeseen. Since you don't know all the facts, you should at least have the details covered.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Sometimes it's just easier to go along with the inevitable than to try fighting it. Just make sure that you're not overriding important values.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're happy to repeat yourself for those who missed the beginning. Enjoy playing the role of teacher, then demonstrate by doing.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Whether you like it or not, the tide is turning. Make way for the new, and don't despair over the old.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You are not required to participate in any rituals that have become meaningless. Don't continue to hide your feelings from those you trust.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Weigh the short-term fun against the long-term consequences. A friend or relative has some surprising news for you; fortunately, it's good.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Even complete strangers want very much to be your best friend. This is more of a time for formulating a plan than making sweeping changes.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You may be forced to do a little sleuthing if you really want to know the facts. Realize that you must be prepared to accept what you uncover.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You could ask what it all means, but you probably already know the answers. Try to trust your intuition a little more.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although you speak from deep knowledge, someone still refuses to listen. Since you can't seem to get through to them, you may just have to let them learn the hard way.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your otherworldly magic is a breath of fresh air in a rational universe. Someone new recognizes you for the wonderful spirit you are.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) While you wish you could help someone, it's simply a little beyond you. Attend to your own needs before getting immersed in the drama of others.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: Despite your insatiable urge for material objects, you are at heart an extremely generous person. You consider all aspects of a situation, sometimes to the point of worrying yourself unnecessarily. Friends admire your diligence and adore your warm nature.

Dependable Cleaners Sponsoring Youth Reading Incentive Program

Read to Ride, the summer reading incentive program sponsored by Dependable Cleaners, is underway.

Dependable Cleaners will give away 30 bicycles worth up to $250 each to the winners of its Read to Ride Program.

The contest for children ages 6 to 15 encourages readers to read books with the incentive of winning a bike.

Three bikes will be awarded weekly for five weeks and 15 in the final week. The first drawing takes place the week of June 18 and the last will be during the week of July 23.

Christa Hagearty, president of Dependable Cleaners, decided to implement the program after seeing other's like it around the country.

"Read to Ride is a great program!" said Hagearty who has two small children and another on the way. "Reading plays such an integral part of a child's education, we look forward to encouraging more children to read this summer."

Winners will be announced daily on Radio Disney 1260 AM, at 7:58 a.m., 2:58 p.m., and 5:58 p.m. on weekdays. A list of winners names will also be posted at each Dependable location.

Entry forms, contest rules, and drop boxes are located at each of the 17 Dependable Cleaner locations, Quincy Cycle, and International Bicycle. Official entry forms must include the student's name, address, name of book and parent's signature. There is no limit to the number of qualifying entries.

Each contest winner is invited with their family and friends to attend the Read to Ride Finale Celebration which will take place at Merrymount Park, Quincy.

The program is co-sponsored by Quincy Cycle, International Bicycle, and The Patriot Ledger.

Dr. Mary Mathias Attends Congressional Conference

Dr. Mary Mathias, O.D., of Quincy, recently attended the American Optometric Association's Congressional Conference in Washington, D.C.

Nearly 200 politically active doctors of optometry from throughout the United States participated in the three-day conference to discuss managed health care reform legislation.

Managed care reform is one of the top legislative issues on the congressional agenda. The American Optometric Association supports patient protection legislation that would empower patients to choose their health care professionals and ensure competition in the health care marketplace.

A highlight of the conference was a visit to Cap-

Morgan Memorial Furniture Market Enter Into New Partnership

In a first of its kind partnership, Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries and the Furniture Market of Quincy and Kingston offer a new program for individuals to rid their homes of used furniture and get credit towards buying new.

The partnership makes it easier for residents to donate to Goodwill and buy something new.

From now until July 5, donors can get as much as a $75 credit from The Furniture Market by donating sofas, love seats or chairs.

"Not only do you get cash off your purchase, but you feel good about it, too," said Rick Morde, owner of the Furniture Market. All donated furniture goes to fund Goodwill's job training programs for people who want to work, but need skills training and help finding a job.

To participate, donors can stop by The Furniture Market in Kingston at Rt. 3 South, Exit 10 at Cranberry Crossing or The Furniture Market in Quincy off Route 3 South, Exit 19, 169 Parking Way. The Furniture Market will pick up used furniture when delivering new purchase or donors can bring used furniture directly to the store and take their new purchase home.

Donations enable Goodwill to provide "not charity, but a chance" for community residents with disabilities or who face other barriers to work. Individuals from more than 100 Massachusetts communities gain valuable work experience and earn a paycheck by processing, distributing, and selling donated goods.

Donors can take a fair-market value charitable deduction from their federal income tax and get a tax receipt.

Host Families Sought For Exchange Students

Families in Quincy are needed to host German students with good English skills and motivation who will be arriving in August to experience the "American way of life."

Host families learn about Germany, its culture and language without leaving their home.

Academic Year in America (AYA), sponsored by the not-for-profit American Institute for Foreign Study Foundation, has been bringing international students and American families together for the past 17 years. Students range in age from 15 to 18 years old and arrive from Germany and many other countries, including Brazil, Poland, Japan and Hungary. They attend the local high school for a semester or academic year and have their own medical insurance and spending money.

Both families and students benefit from the exchange experience. The host family can learn about another culture, make a special friend, and earn a scholarship worth up to $1,000 toward an AIFS College or ACIS travel-study program or AIFS Foundation's American Youth Abroad program for high school students.

For more information on becoming a host family, call Andrea at 1-800-322-4678 ext. 6078.

Council Approves Special Permit For Faxon Woods

The City Council approved a special permit to the Faxon Woods community allowing them to incorporate a 24-hour nursing facility and a smaller assisted living facility at Monday night's City Council meeting.

Earlier, the proposal had received approvals for a different configuration of units.

Councillor Daniel Raymondi focused on the surplus of excess material this change would create.

Tom French, project manager for the site, estimated that between 11,000 and 12,000 yds. of surplus material and rock is involved.

Raymondi proposed limiting the amount of fill that leaves the site to reduce the amount of trucks and dust in the neighborhood. He also wanted to ensure that there would be no rock crushing at the site.

The City Council agreed to limit the amount of construction at the site.

The amendment says they can work on Mon. through Fri. from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sat. from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. No work will be allowed on Sundays.

Raymondi said that excess trucks and blasting are becoming serious issues for many residents of Falls Boulevard.

Raymondi said that these changes were "necessary and required" in order to ensure the integrity of the neighborhood.

MCAS Preparation Course To Begin June 28

MCAS Preparation courses are now available through Quincy Academy.

Quincy Academy, part of the Quincy Public Schools, offers both English/Composition Preparation and Science/Math preparation courses for seventh, eighth, and night graders.

Beginning with the class of 2003, today's eighth graders, the state mandates that all students must pass their MCAS exams in order to graduate from high school. To pass the MCAS, students must not only understand the academics, they must be able to analyze questions and think beyond the basics. Quincy Academy's MCAS Preparation courses give students the tools they need to succeed on their MCAS exams.

MCAS Preparation is available in both English/Composition and Science/Math. The English/Composition course will review the basics - grammar, sentence construction, and critical reading - and then practice both review and writing. Students will learn to analyze literary passages and grammar questions and construct complete answers - getting their best possible scores on their MCAS.

The Science/Math course will review the basics - physical science, algebra, measurement, and geometry - then move on to more complex analysis. Students gain the tools they need to analyze math and science questions and create thoughtful, complete answers.

MCAS Preparation courses will run in two sessions. Session One begins June 28. Session Two begins July 19. Courses meet in the mornings, either 8:30-10 or 10:30-12, Mondays through Thursdays for three weeks. All classes are held at Central Middle School. Enrollment is strictly limited to ensure small class sizes. Each class cost $90. Applications are available at North Quincy, Central Middle School, or Quincy High/CTE.

Walk-in or mail-in registration is going on now at the CTE. For program information, contact Michael Hurley at 984-8975. For registration information, call Keith Segalla at the CTE at 984-8888.
